Price of gasoline goes up in valley stations

Even before the oil exporting nations announced a four per cent increase in the price of oil the cost of gasoline went up at many valley service stations.

"There's nothing you can do about it," complained Dick Tower, manager of the Gulf station on the corner of San Bernardino and Central avenues in Montclair.

Tower and other service station operators were surveyed Saturday afternoon by the Progress-Bulletin. More than two-thirds of the stations checked had raised their prices within the last week, and several made the price hike before the announcement Friday that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) had adopted a four percent increase in the price of crude oil.

Two stations made price increases late Friday night after the declaration — B and B Gulf in Upland and Cecil Garrison's Gulf station in Montclair.

"You want to know why the prices are going up?" asked Bob Crossland, a partner in B and B Gulf. "It's because we anticipate a price freeze on gas within three days. No, nothing is secured. It's just word of mouth. I've been selling under cost to promote sales. I don't want to get caught at a low price."

The price of gasoline at the Montclair station went up in response to a price increase by the Gulf Oil Corporation. "You have to go along with the company," Tower said.

He pointed glumly at a service station across the street, where four cars were being filled at once. There were no cars next to the Gulf pumps.

"You know people are buying by price," he said, noting that his competitor pumped gasoline at a considerably lower price.

On Central Avenue in Montclair the price of Gulf No-Nox, the premium brand, is now 59.4 cent pèr gallon, 2½ cents higher than it was Friday afternoon, and regular is 55.2 cents per gallon, up 3.3 cents from Friday afternoon.

The Upland station raised its premium from 56 to 59.9 cents per gallon and its regular from 51 to 55.9 cents per gallon.

Darryl Rodgers, proprietor of the Mobil station on Euclid Avenue and 9th Street in Upland, raised the price of his gasoline ,one cent for both regular and premium. He made the move a week ago, he said Saturday, in order to maintain his eight-cent profit margin after his supplier raised the price he has to pay for the product.

"I think it's a rip-off by the companies," Rodgers stated.

His premium now sells for 58.9 cents per gallon and his regular for 55.9 cents per gallon.

Chuck Smith, proprietor of the Chevron station at Riverside Drive and Central Avenue in Chino, jumped his prices two cents per gallon on the 10th of the month.

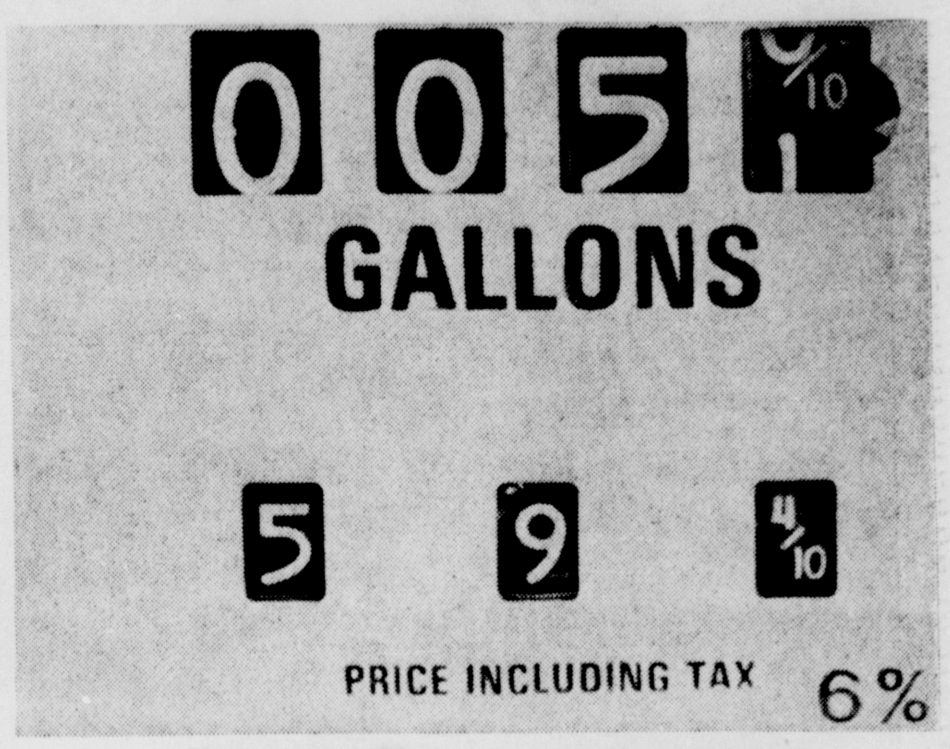
His premium now costs 60.9 cents per gallon and his regular costs 56.9 cents per gallon. Smith said his profit on a gallon of gasoline ranges from 8 to 10 cents.

The note of dissatisfaction with the major oil companies was sounded by several of the station operators interviewed Saturday. Some of the operators are convinced that the oil companies are reaping large profits while forcing their local dealers to raise prices to uncompetitive levels.

A station needs to make an eight-cent profit on each gallon of gasoline, these operators claimed.

The oil companies are certain to raise the prices paid by the station owners regardless of whether or not the OPEC action justifies the increase, a couple owners predicted.

News reports Saturday indicated that the action of the oil exporting nations would not make a significant difference in the price of gasoline at the American pump.



'It's a ripoff,' says station owner

AIM AT HEALING RIFT

President Ford and French President Giscard stand at attention as the United States National Anthem is played upon Ford's arrival on the island of Martinique Saturday.

Ford, Giscard meet on Martinique

France ready to work with U.S. on oil policy

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique (UPI) — President Ford met French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing Saturday on this lush green island, with Giscard indicating France would act in concert with the United States to deal with world oil policy and the Middle East.

France and the United States have been at odds over how to work toward getting Arab oil prices down. France wants the consuming and producing nations to sit down together with the underdeveloped world. Washington has insisted first on a meeting of consuming nations to arrive at a common front.

In his toast at a dinner for Ford, Giscard spoke of the 200-year-old "channels of concert" between the two allies that could defuse a "menacing situation" in the Middle East.

A senior U.S. official aboard Air Force One during Ford's flight from Washington held open the possibility the two leaders would work out a compromise policy at today's formal talks, starting at 9:30 a.m. est.

Ford's toast to Giscard noted that in dealing with the energy problem, "we seek constructive dialogue — not confrontation. The United States is convinced that cooperation and solidarity among the consumer nations mark the surest way to reach understanding with the producer nations, which we all desire."

On the Mideast, Giscard said, "...in spite of the remarkable efforts of American diplomacy...a menacing situation still exists." He said a "just and durable peace" should take into account Israel's right to live within secure boundaries, the Arabs' right to territory occupied by Israel and the Palestinians' right "to have a homeland like everyone else."

The senior U.S. official said if a compromise on oil strategy paves the way for a meeting of major consuming and producing nations next summer, the session would look at long-term petroleum pricing policies, explore the development of new energy resources and consider ways of recycling petrodollars.

Hypnotism helps policeman remember hit-run car number

LAKEWOOD, N.J. (UPI) — Police arrested a suspect in a fatal hit and run accident after a police officer was hypnotized to help him remember the license plate number of the car, it was reported Saturday.

Sgt. Bernard Gindoff said Officer Robert Maras, who was at the scene of the accident in Lakewood on Nov. 29, was hypnotized earlier this week.

The hypnosis led to the arrest of Samuel Cohen, 58, on Thursday, Gindoff said.

Gindoff said he thought of having Maras hypnotized because several years ago Gindoff identified the driver of another hit-and-ran accident after hypnosis.

The car was located in a Red Bank garage, where, Gindoff said, it was being repaired for damage sustained in the accident. Cohen was arrested on various charges, including causing death by an auto and leaving the scene of an accident.

He was released on $10,000 bail pending a Dec. 30 hearing in Municipal Court in connection with the hit and run auto death of Rabbi Jacob Katz, who came to the Beth Medrash Govoha seminary in the area from Connecticut three years ago.

At least 19 die in nursing home fire

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — A flash fire raced through a one-story prefabricated nursing home early today killing at least 19 elderly residents.

A police spokesman said 15 persons, including a fireman and policeman, were injured, and two staff members were unaccounted for.

Sixteen of the residents, mostly in their 80s, fled or were rescued unhurt from the building, police said.

The fire at the Fairfield Old People's Home, located 130 miles north of London, burned for three hours before firemen brought it under control.

Cause of the fire was not immediately known.

Plot foiled when Arab guerrilla band wiped out

Israel said its border forces wiped out an Arab guerrilla band that crossed from Lebanon Saturday in a plot to seize hostages for the release of imprisoned Greek Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capucci and 10 other jailed Arabs.

The Tel Aviv military command said all four guerrillas were killed and an Israeli police sergeant also died in a brief gun and grenade battle half a mile south of the frontier settlement of Menara in Israel's northern panhandle.

It said a second Israeli policeman was slightly wounded in the clash that broke out shortly after a security patrol spotted a break in the barbed wire fence marking the border.

"From behind a bush, they threw grenades at us and we threw ours back at them," said Hussein Fares, a member of the combined Israeli Druze, Bedouin Arab and Jewish unit that wiped out the guerrilla squad. "After four minutes of shooting, we charged the bush and sprayed them with fire. One of our men was wounded."

The Syrian-born Capucci was sentenced to 12 years in prison Monday by a Jerusalem district court on charges of smuggling weapons from Lebanon to the occupied West Bank of Jordan three times this year and of contacting Fatah commanders in Beirut.

Dean of American newsmen Walter Lippmann dies at 85

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walter Lippmann, "dean of American newspapermen" whose influence on American thought was felt for half a century, died Saturday after a long illness. He was 85.

Lippmann, a syndicated columnist who twice won the coveted Pulitzer Prize, had been hospitalized until recently with a heart condition. A pacemaker was attached to his heart on Oct. 22, 1973, the day after he suffered a momentary heart stoppage followed by a fainting spell.

President Ford expressed regret at the death of Lippmann.

In a statement issued by the White House press office as the President flew to Martinique for a meeting with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, Ford said:

"With the death of Walter Lippmann we have lost a great American. As a newsman, political analyst and author, Lippmann played a major role for more than half a century in the development of public dialogue and of shaping a new standard of journalism. Mr. Lippmann's contributions to the good society which he envisioned for his country will long be remembered. Mrs. Ford joins me in extending condolences."

A Lippmann family spokesman said the writer died at 7:25 a.m. in his Park Avenue apartment. He said the funeral will be private and memorial services will be announced.

Lippmann's career as a commentator and political philosopher began during World War I when Woodrow Wilson was president and continued through three wars and the administrations of eight presidents.

He was the author of 25 books and thousands of syndicated newspaper columns. He wrote of the tumultuous events of the 20th Century with an authority and pungency that won him millions of daily newspaper readers.

Lippmann's newspaper column, "Today and Tomorrow," first appeared in 1931. It was carried by as many as 250 papers in the United States and 25 foreign countries. He also wrote a column for Newsweek magazine.

A youthful Socialist, Lippmann proved difficult to classify politically as he watched the march of events in Washington and the world for more than 50 years.

He was a confidant of many presidents and interviewed such center-stage international figures as Sir Winston Churchill, Nikita Khrushchev, Charles de Gaulle, Jawaharl Nehru of India and Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Bottom not dropping out, says GM chief

Mid-'75 comeback in car buying, economy?

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Chairman Thomas A. Murphy says the cost of raw materials that go into building cars have leveled off in recent months and predicted this would bring the consumer back into a buying frame of mind.

Murphy also said he expected the economy to make a turnaround somewhere around the middle of next year, adding in contrast to Ford Motor Co. Chairman Henry Ford II, "It doesn't look like the bottom is dropping out of the economy."

Murphy said the leveling off of prices for raw materials was indicated by the giant automaker's in-house monitoring system, known as the Automotive Raw Materials Price Index (ARMPI).

"It may not come down to the levels that we'd like to see," Murphy said in an interview published in today's editions of the Detroit Free Press, "but I think the (upward) trend has been broken and that's important."

ARMPI is a statistical tool for measuring variations in commodity prices and calculates the year-to-year rate of change in prices of the basic raw material content of a vehicle each month. But it does not include rising wage costs.

In August of this year, the index showed a 42 per cent growth from the same date in 1973. Murphy said on Sept. 1, Oct. 1 and Nov. 1, it showed signs of leveling off —"going up practically nothing."

On Dec. 1, the index moved downward "one half a per cent, or something like that," he said.

He said he also believed the index "will continue to come down."

"I think that is going to give people some assurance that will bring them back into a buying frame of mind.

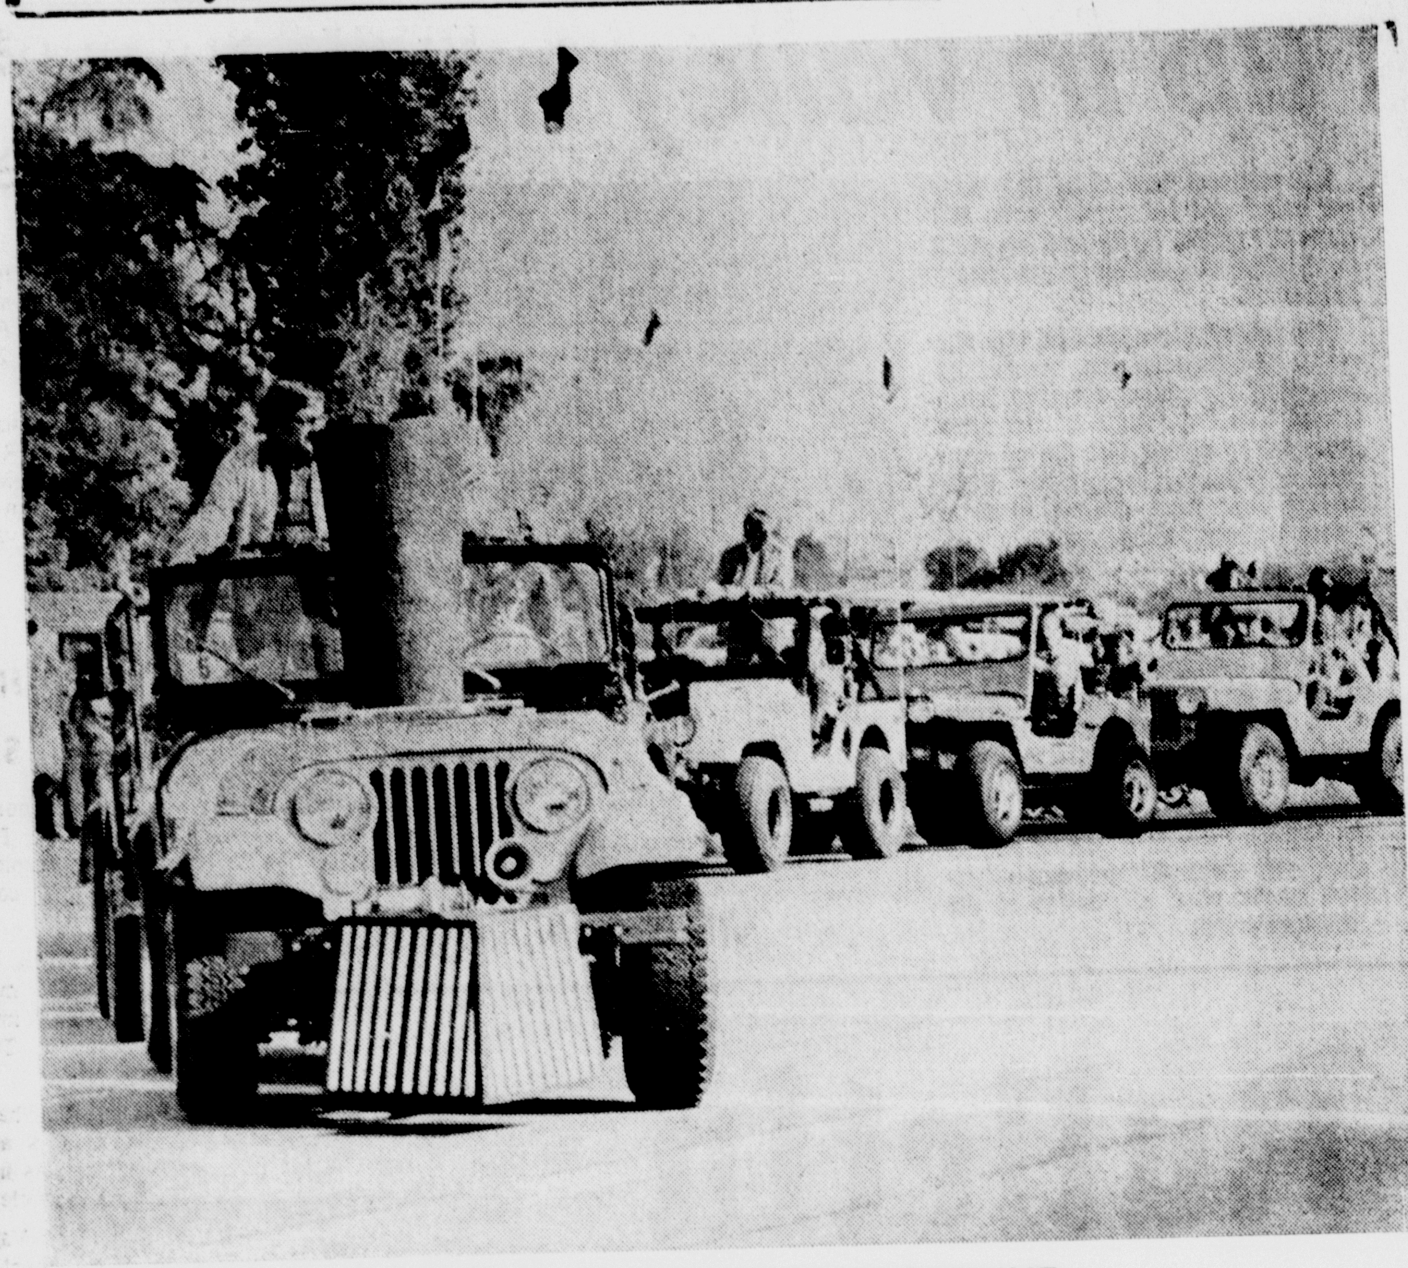
"But the real answer is to get the economy going," he added. "We all ought to be thinking about that."

After predicting an upturn in mid-1975, Murphy said the economy still has problems but "we've got some answers too."

"I'm trying to point out that it doesn't look like the bottom is dropping out of the economy."

He did not rule out the possibility that some downward adjustment in (car) prices may be used to draw more buyers into dealer showrooms.

"We are not going to overlook any possibility that might stimulate the market," he said.



CHUGGING DOWN THE AVENUE

Jeeps provided by the La Verne Jeep-A-Bouts are used to transport San Dimas Mayor Jim Lough and other members of the City Council at Saturday's parade down Bonita Avenue. Several hundred persons lined the two mile route. The parade, considered the largest in San Dimas history, featured many marching bands, drill and baton teams and several floats.

18,000 in Southland face Yule lockout

By United Press International

Eighteen thousand aerospace workers at McDonnel Douglas Co. plants in Southern California may be locked out of work by Christmas in a company attempt to force union members to accept new contracts.

McDonnell Douglas, which employs 72,000 workers nationally, canceled its Southern California contracts with the United Auto Workers Union Thursday and the International Association of Machinists Friday.

A lockout in the next few days "is a very serious possibility," a company spokesman said.

The pacts ran out Sept. 15 but were continued day-to-day, until Friday, while bargaining talks stalled.

The 18,000 union workers are seeking comparable pay raises to those granted by North American-Rockwell, Lockheed, Boeing and other aerospace firms.

McDonnell Douglas says it pays higher wages than the other companies and to give the same pay hikes would hurt its ability to compete. The unions dispute the claims.

McDonnell Douglas has offered a first-year pay hike of 16 cents an hour. North American-Rockwell has granted a 28-cent hourly raise, while Lockheed settled for 27 cents an hour more and Boeing will pay 59 cents an hour more to its workers.

A lockout would be the first by a major corporation in modern years, although 10,000 non-union workers would not be affected.

24 jailed in dope bust; stolen items found

Twenty-four persons were arrested Saturday in a marijuana bust in Valinda by sheriff's deputites responding to a complaint of a loud party in progress.

Industry sheriff's deputies reported that 11 adults and 13 juveniles were arrested at a party taking place at the residence of Jack Deubleyker, 165 N. Hambledon Ave., Valinda.

Deubleyker, 24, was arrested and charged with possession of narcotics for sale and suspicion of burglary.

Deputies stated that they confiscated a large quantity of narcotics, which included marijuana, and some construction hand power tools and supplies believed to be stolen.

The remaining 23 persons were arrested and charged with being present where narcotics were being used and being under the influence of narcotics.

Police said the names of the other persons arrested were not available at this time.

Senate committee okays 'bonus-for-poor' measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Meeting in unannounced session, the Senate Finance Committee Saturday approved a last-minute bill to provide direct cash payments to poor working families with incomes under $5,600 a year.

The cash payment measure —called a "work bonus" —was one of several riders the committee tacked onto minor tariff bills and sent to the Senate floor for consideration in tse final week of the 93rd Congress.

The "work bonus" proposal rewards wage-earners who earn less than persons on welfare.

Any family earning less than $4,000 a year would be entitled to a federal payment equal to 10 per cent of earnings. The money would be paid four times a year. The bonus would diminish as earnings rose above $4,000 a year and phase out at $5,600.

The cost to the federal treasury would be $600 million a year.

The plan is an alternative tot he Nixon administration's welfare reform program known as the "family assistance plan", which would have provided a guaranteed income to all families whether or not the head of the family worked.

3 boys arrested for taking 2 teen-age girls on kidnap ride

Two 16-year-old Valley girls were kidnaped and driven around in Pomona by three fifteen-year-old boys.

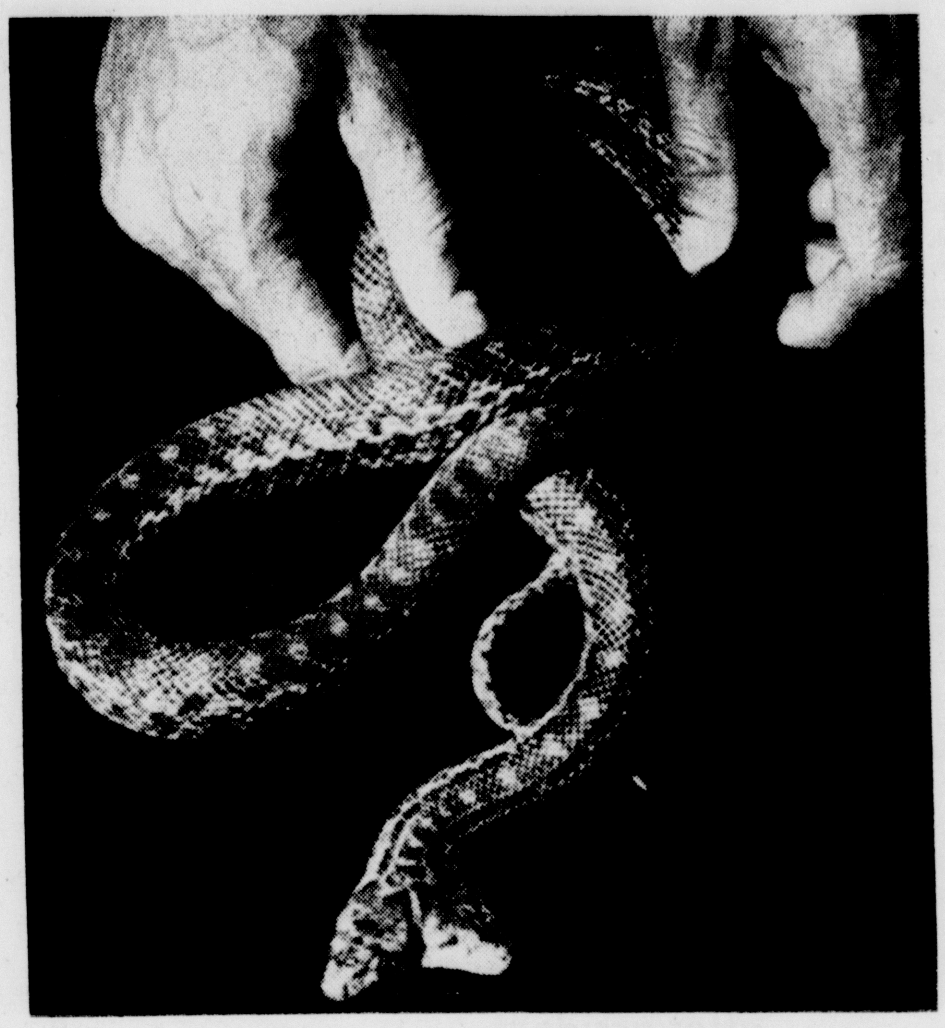
Police reported that the two girls were driving through the Cherryville area at 5:40 a.m. on Saturday when they were stopped by the three youths who were standing in the middle of the street.

The boys then rushed to the girls' car and, threatening to do them bodily harm, grabbed the keys and kidnaped the girls.

According to police the boys tried to make the girls sniff spray paint and beer but were unsuccessful. One girl managed to escape and called police.

A short time later police arrested the three youths in the girls' car, after the second victim had managed also to get away. Neither of the girls was harmed.

The boys were taken to Pomona jail and booked on suspected kidnaping and strongarm robbery.



TWO-HEADED SNAKE

A rare biological oddity is shown at Steinhart Aquarium in San Francisco—a two headed Pacific gopher snake. Two-headed vertebrates are rare in nature and according to authorities seldom reach a ripe old age —in this case 5½ years. Both heads feed and drink and apparently are joined in the upper esophageal region.

Pilot, six others survive air crash, week in jungle

LIMA (UPI) — A young pilot and six teen-agers and children walked away from a light plane crash and survived a week in Peru's Amazonian jungle to reach safety Saturday night, official reports said.

Three others died from injuries in the crash, the survivors said.

The pilot and the six passengers, aged seven through 16, arrived at the jungle town of Iscosacin, 150 miles east of Lima.

Their plane had been missing a week.

The story of the pilot and children who survived after seven days in the thick jungle recalled the story almost three years ago of a young German girl, Juliane Koepcke, the only survivor in the crash of a commercial plane in the same area on Christmas eve.

Miss Koepcke, daughter of biologists, struggled through the jungle for two weeks after all the other occupants of the plane were killed in the fiery crash near Pucallpa.

The survivors of this crash were in a small plane which left San Ramon Dec. 7 for Iscosacin, a half hour away by air. The nine children were related and children of German-born farmers in the jungle area.

The survivors walked into Iscosacin Saturday, after a six day search had failed to locate their plane.

They were identified as Oscar Zender, 24, the pilot, Gladys and Juan Zender, 16 and 12, their cousin Herta Zender, 14, another cousin, Casilda Zender, 9, Herbert and Carlos Panduroll both 7, also cousins of the Zenders.

The dead were Ketty Zender, a sister of Herta Zender, Antonio Simon Ruiz, 14, and Juan Wingert. The young Miss Zender died only a few miles from Iscosacin of a wound to the jugular vein, the survivors said.

Motorcyclist hurt in rear-end crash

A rear-end collision Saturday morning on Indian Hill Boulevard in Pomona sent one man to the hospital with facial lacerations and a concussion.

The injured man, John Salverda of Pomona, was hurt when the motorcycle he was driving crashed into the rear end of a car driven by Tai Shik Choi of Los Angeles.

Police reported that Choi's car had stalled in the street and he was attempting to restart it when it was hit from behind by Salverda's motorcycle.

Salverda was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for treatment.

Elephants okay, but not driver after accident

SYLMAR, Calif. (UPI) — A semitrailer truck carrying four circus elephants overturned on a curve recently, trapping the animals in the wreckage. It took firemen more than two hours to untangle the pile of pachyderms.

The elephants suffered only cuts and bruises, bux the driver, Ben DeWayne, 34, of Canoga Park, Calif., appeared to have a broken arm, firemen said.

Propose bomb shelter food for the starving

HANNIBAL, Mo. (UPI) — The Hannibal City Council suggests bomb shelter supplies be used to feed starving nations.

"This food is needed in the bellies of human beings, not in the bins of forgotten storage sites," said Dr. E.W. Harder, president of the chamber of commerce.

The city council voted to make eight tons of high-carbohydrate candy and high-protein biscuits available, if it receives written verification from the state that the city can do so.

The food has been stored in Hannibal's 12 bomb shelters since the early 1960s as a precaution against nuclear attack.

George Pace, manager of the chamber, said, "The food carries a five-year-on-the-shelf guarantee and- can be used indefinitely thereafter. But the food is good so far; we tasted it. A report from the Department of Defense says it's 99 per cent good.

"Perhaps other communities will take similar action to alleviate the food problem," he said.

Neil Plantz, director of Civil Defense in Jefferson City, said similar stores of food recently removed from state buildings had been fed to pigs at a prison farm.

Television commercials like African fertility rites

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — American consumers watching commercials on television have a lot in common with Swazi tribesmen participating in fertility rites.

"Civilized man accused tribal peoples of being superstitious, magically minded and irrational in their rituals —but modern commercials bear all the hallmarks of rituals," says Dr. Merlin Myers, an anthropologist at Brigham Young University.

Both utilize symbolism, mysticism and the value systems of the culture to which they are geared.

Just as the Swazi believe a certain dance will bring rain, American consumers submit to a certain "mystical mentality, becoming convinced that a record album or toothpaste will bring romance, that a candy bar will bring social acceptance, or that a certain brand of makeup will immediately transform a woman into a South Seas island beauty."

"The Iroquois sing over their seeds. Others do a rain dance. And we view it as magic," said Myers, chairman of the BYU Department of Anthropology and Archaeology, who has spent nearly two decades studying tribal cultures.

"But such things are not one whit more magical than what we see and are led to believe in our ads."

The main differences between tribal rites and "secular consumption rituals" lie in their industrial, sexual and religious aspects.

Whereas nonindustrial cultures are mainly concerned with production, American society concentrates on consumption.

"Tribal rituals reflect the basic concern of producing enough food to sustain life. If the crop fails, the people starve. So they pray to the spirit of vegetation and to the Creator that the crop won't fail," said Myers.

"Our concern, on the other hand, has not been with production —at least not until now with all our shortages. Our concern has been with consuming what we produce. To keep the wheels of industry turning, we consume ourselves into prosperity and happiness," he said.

Such concern dominates American advertising, which promises certain rewards and even salvation for consuming a specific product, he explained. Many of these rewards are sexual.

"Advertisers are well aware that sex roles are poorly defined here and use this fact to their advantage," said Myers.

"If a man can't get masculinity in society, he is made to believe he can get it in a mystical ritual way by smearing some commercial product all over himself or buying a rugged type of a car."

American men need an "outside" assertion of their masculinity because, unlike tribal cultures where male-female roles are clearly established, men and women in the United States are doing the same thing, said Myers.

Tribal ritual dramatizes the sexual dichotomy by assigning specific roles to men and women participating in the rites.

Such rituals have religious connotations.

"Tribal rites are more of a prayer than a technical act. They express important information to the people and appeal for help to the supernatural," said Myers.

Advertising, on the other hand, is secular because Americans are not supernaturally oriented.

"God is poor competition for penicillin in this country," said the social anthropologist.

Similarities between advertising and ritual, however, far outweigh the differences, according to Myers.

Both promise the desired end result if a certain prescribed pattern is followed, or damnation if it is not —"unless you use a certain toothpaste, your teeth will rot," or in tribal cultures, "unless you perform a certain ritual, your crops will fail."

Both reflect cultural values and needs. Both are means of mass communication, both utilize people's superstitious beliefs, and both are necessary, he said.

Nonindustrial peoples need their rituals to enhance their hopes for survival, said Myers, while the American economy needs advertising to flourish.

MODERN LIVING

Blue jean price tag now comes to $4 billion each year: can't meet demand

NEW YORK (UPI) — Demand for American-made denim, at home and abroad, led to the selling of 450 million yards of the indigo blue stuff last year.

That was up 50 million yards from the previous year. The value of the denim sold? Close to $4 billion.

The Denim Council, composed of textile manufacturers who turn out most American denim, says 100 million more yards could have been sold — most of it for export. But mills turning out denim haven't been able to expand fast enough.

The $4 billion figure includes about $1 billion worth of exposed denim products —the greatest, most famous and most numerous being the humble blue jeans.

Over 300 million pairs of blue jeans were bought last year in America alone. Demand for same goes on without end.

In advertising campaigns for all kinds of products and in a high proportion of popular movies, main figures wear blue jeans these days. This keeps the blue jean craze going, the Council figures.

Consider the blue-jean-wearing thespians who emote while dressed like most of the audience. They include:

Robert Redford and Paul Newman, "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid;" Al "Serpico" Pacino; Burt Reynolds and John "Deliverance" Voight; Barbra Streisand "Up the Sandbox."

The Council asked a New York psychiatrist, Dr. H. E. Walker, about blue jeans as a uniform on the screen.

"Audiences," he answered, "like to think that man or woman up there on the screen could be me. The fact that both audience and actor are wearing blue jeans definitely aids this concept."

The audiences of today prefer to identify with actors instead of "worshipping them from afar" in the manner of yesteryear's fans.

Beyond jeans, where's blue denim going? New directions were shown in a Council fashion show.

Featured were the creations of six students from the Fashion Institute of Technology, Pratt Institute, Rhode Island School of Design and Traphagen.

The new denim outfits included:

—Sharon Allen of the Traphagen School and a native of Winnipeg, Canada, designed a scoop neck sleeveless calf-length coat dress bound in white satin.

—Sandy Beneditti of the Fashion Institute of Technology made a denim design for skiing. The resident of Ridgefield, N.J., stitched up a quilted, hooded jacket cinched at the waist and worn with matching overalls.

—Sigie Chapman of Pratt Institute and from Dorena, Ore., designed a hooded sports outfit, top-stitched to indicate detailing on jacket and patch-pocketed pants.

—Nansil Choi of the Fashion Institute of Technology and a native of Korea showed an indigo blue denim flared coat with oriental collar, buckled shoulders, wrist tabs, pocket detail and self belt.

—Susan Ekahn of the Rhode Island School of Design and from Merrick, N.Y., showed a denim suit with horizontal slot seam detailing. The short jacket had a high-standing collar, elbow sleeves with cuff illusion, and a six-gore flared skirt with hidden patch pockets at the seams.

—Markuerite M. Wilwon of Pratt Institute and from Charlotte, N.C., designed a wrap-around pinafore in denim. It was lined in gingham and had top-stitched ruffled armholes and ruffled hem on a flared skirt.

Finds himself under bumper after TV nap

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Michael Sellers, 16, fell asleep watching television. When he woke up he found himself beneath the bumper of an automobile which had crashed through his living room wall.

Sellers suffered a minor cut to the back of his head. The driver of the car, James Tumrell, 22, was fined $100 for drunken driving.

"I was partly under the bumper, part of the TV set was in the bathroom and you'd have trouble finding any piece of the stereo set," said Sellers, recalling his rude awakening early Wednesday.

Lack of bees could hurt world field crops

Dr. John Harbo examines hive of experimental research bees at Agriculture Department's Baton Rouge, La., Bee Breeding and Stock Center Laboratory.

By RAFAEL BERMUDEZ

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The world's supply of bees is declining and it could affect man's food supply, according to a government bee expert.

It isn't that man in running out of the busy insects, but there may not be enough of them around to pollinate properly.

"Man is at a point right now that anything that gets in his way ought to be sprayed and killed. It's an attitude that has to change," said Dr. John Harbo, research leader of the Agriculture Department's bee breeding and stock center laboratory in Baton Rouge.

He said the worldwide shortage of bees has not reached a critical stage despite assaults on the insect from herbicides and insecticides and intrusions of civilization into their habitats.

"This isn't something sudden. It's been happening for years," Harbo said. "We're not going to run out of bees. I don't think there's anything to worry about."

What does worry some scientists is the effect a continued decline in bees could have on the world food situation. The cross pollination of flowers and plants that bees accidently carry on as they gather food is essential for successful growth of many fruits and other crops.

For example, the seed of alfalfa, a main source of food for cattle, has to be pollinated in order to grow.

"The reasons for the shortage, I think you could start with the fact that bees depend on wild plants for growth. They get their food from natural flowers," Harbo said.

"As our population keeps growing we lose some of the waste grounds where these wild flowers grow."

He said some of the flowers from which bees draw food are a nuisance to farmers and are mowed or sprayed. And pesticides used to kill harmful insects often kill bees as well.

Harbo said he had no statistics on the rate of decline of the bee population, but had noticed sharp increases in the price bee growers pay for queen bees and worker bees.

The price of a queen bee is up to $5.50, about double what it was a few years ago. And the wholesale price of a pound of honey has jumped from 12 cents three years ago to 47 cents this fall.

Harbo said some of the research conducted at his laboratory involved breeding techniques and the behavior and habits of certain types of bees. Much of the research is aimed at improving methods of raising honey bees.

"There are certain environmental factors which make a bee more likely to sting. Some bees are meaner than others, just like people. We're trying to learn the aggressive nature of stinging bees," Harbo said. "If you had an ideal bee, you'd have one that produces a lot of honey and that doesn't sting much."

Many farmers who grow crops that need pollination hire a bee keeper who brings in hives to do the job. But the number of man-tended bee colonies used to pollinate crops has dropped by 11 per cent, according to one report. The report estimated a net decrease of almost 200 billion bees in the world.

"I think whatever good could come of this is if it brings home to people that all insects aren't bad.

Closure of Monroe St. before council

The closure of Monroe Street at Orange Grove Avenue will be considered again by Pomona City Council Monday night, with the city staff recommending that the temporary closure become permanent.

The street has been closed on a temporary basis since September. A survey of the areas residents last week indicated that approximately 67 per cent were in favor of the permanent closure.

Due to a California Supreme Court decision last week involving controversial public projects, City Attorney Patrick Sampson is expected to recommend that an environmental impact report be prepared if the council votes to close the street permanently.

The council also will consider a request from the owners of Cole-Schaefer Ambulance that the city join the county's Emergency Aid Program. The request has to do with a county ordinance concerning rates charged by ambulance companies. No action is expected.

The council will receive a number of recommendations from Councilman Benjamin Ochoa concerning the downtown area. Ochoa is expected to propose a staff study of the mall area to include designation of structures for possible demolition or rehabilitation.

In a related item, the council will hear a report concerning the old Pomona Hotel, which was ordered demolished by the council several months ago. The order has not been executed due to high bids for the demolition work.

Average number per home falls

Census reveals unexpected population drop

A rapid decrease in family size in San Dimas is thought to be the reason for low special census population figures.

The special census, conducted last month, showed San Dimas with a population of 16,393. The state had estimated the city's population as 17,200 last January. The new census shows only 1,167 gain over the 1970 census.

Cities receive various tax revenues based on population.

In an analysis done by Barbara Henderson, assistant to the city manager, and Mary Ann Kastead, planning assistant, the average size of the San Dimas family in the past 4½ years has fallen from 3.8 per household to 3.3.

In the area bounded by Valley Center Boulevard, Lone Hill Avenue and Cienega Avenue south to Covina, population per housing unit had been 4.06 in 1970 compared to 3.69 now. Another tract located south of Arrow Highway between Lone Hill Avenue and the freeway had 5.15 persons to a housing unit in 1970 and today has 3.52. Per capita for mobile home units has been reduced in the city from 2.05 to 1.83.

In addition to lower per capita per home another major factor contributing to the unexpected low population is a high vacancy level in new units.

According to Mrs. Henderson's report to City Manager Robert L. Poff, about 25 per cent of the new housing units added in the past 4½ years are vacant. Of the 501 new single-family units built, 53 are vacant. Of the 546 new condominium and apartment units built, about 192 are vacant.

Vacancy level in the other residential areas of San Dimas has remained constant at 100 units in 1970 and 1974.

Occupied new single-family units built since 1970 have a per unit population of about 2.9, the report estimates.

Occupied new condominium and apartment units have a per unit population of 2.7.

The report concludes that the unexpected loss was due to a per housing unit population decrease throughout the older sections of the city. This is based on the fact that if the older sections had remained static from 1970 to 1974 the population increase would have been 2,400 new residents (from the new units) rather than the lower figure of 1,167. The inference, according to the report is that "a significant transfer of population has occurred in the past four and a half years."

Blame space heater for $2,600 blaze

A defective electric space heater may have been the cause of a fire Saturday at 644 W. Belmont St., Ontario, according to Battalion Chief Joseph Piscioneri.

The bedroom fire was estimated to have cause about $2,600 damages to the building and contents.

Fireman Joel Denton sustained a minor head injury. He was treated at the scene.

'Biofeedback' helps back-pain patients cure selves

ALL IN THE MACHINE

Biofeedback therapist Virgil Hockersmith monitors patient Michael Bankov, on the left. The method is being successfully used at Casa Colina Hospital for disabling chronic low back pain conditions and a number of other tension-related conditions and for muscle retraining or paralysis therapy.

By BARBARA RAUCH
P-B Staff Writer

Chronic low back pain patients who physicians and surgeons failed to cure, now are curing themselves at Casa Colina Hospital for Rehabilitative Medicine.

It is the only U.S. hospital with such a therapy program. The service was established after several years of research with a $125,000 state grant.

Treatment hinges on "biofeedback" in which a patient is able to look at and listen to meters on a complex package of scientific instruments which monitor his muscular and mental functioning.

By learning the electronic patterns peculiar to his illness, the patient is able through experimentation and training, to alter the patterns he sees and hears, thus curing his illness.

It is much the same as a television technician viewing his testing devices to spot trouble in an ailing television set. Once he spots the trouble, he changes an errant tube or diode.

But instead of changing a tube in a human, the patient, through training, changes a physical or mental pattern which is the root of his problem.

The low back pain treatment unit is unique in itself. Laban C. Strite, program manager, believes the new program's success stems from its comprehensive nature. The Casa Colina program combines biofeedback training, group, individual and family counseling, physical therapy, autogenic relaxation, vocational counseling and job replacement.

Patients go to the hospital on referral from their physician and are screened by Casa Colina personnel. Those accepted as patients spend five to seven weeks in the hospital undergoing the intensive treatment as inpatients. There is no out-patient program for low back pain conditions at Casa Colina.

"Approximately 85 per cent of the clients completing the program return to active living and-or employment, with minimal or no chronic pain discomfort," reported Strite.

Training is based on the principal that it is possible to learn to make a certain response when there is some way of knowing which response is correct. For reducing tension, the machine responds as the patient relaxes, either generally or specific muscles. For retraining of muscles, as in the paralysis associated with stroke damage, the machine signals when the muscle has been contracted or tensed.

"By the time we see the patient, all conservative measures have failed. The patient is chronically tense and anxious having experienced, perhaps nine to ten years of pain and two or three surgeries," Virgil Hockersmith, biofeedback therapist states,

"Pain-tension-pain cycle is broken by the patient. Over the years the pain has contributed to tension. Finally the tension can cause or intensify the pain. Relaxing muscles at will gives the patient control over his body which reduces the anxiety-pain-anxiety series.

Casa Colina also is using biofeedback in a number of other important and unusual ways. At the hospital stroke victims with muscle paralysis have been treated, using biofeedback to retain and strengthen muscles. A number of patients have been able to discard leg braces and walk unaided after the training. Migrain and tension headaches, wryneck, epilpsy and asthma also have been treated experimentally. Some spastic patients have been trained successfully to relax the formerly uncontrolable muscles.

William H. Garton, Casa Colina physical therapist who has been engaged in research on the uses of biofeedback for a number of year, notes the unlimited number of uses of the training method.

"The method has possibilities for preventative medicine," Garton said. "Relaxation training possibly could prevent high blood pressure, heart attacks and many other diseases. We don't know what diseases would not be prevented by this training."

History's lesson for the oil-rich nations

History never repeats itself exactly, but the past does have parallels with the present that can sometimes throw light on the future.

Thanks to the gold it looted from the New World, Spain at one time was the richest nation and foremost power in Europe. The future, however, belonged to those countries that were beginning to develop industrial economies.

Today, thanks to the massive and continuing transfer of wealth from these same industrial economies, Saudi Arabia the world's largest producer of oil, has zoomed to the rank of fourth richest nation in the world in terms of foreign-exchange reserves.

With its reserves now over $11 billion and piling up at a rate of more than $2 billion a month, Saudi Arabia will soon overtake Japan and the United States and stand second only to West Germany, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Altogether, according to the International Monetary Fund, the 13 nations of the OPEC — the Organization of Oil Exporting Countries — now holds nearly 20 per cent of the world's monetary reserves.

Yet like the average Spaniard of the 16th and 17th centuries, the average citizen in the Arab world, with the exception of the Kuwaitis and a few others, lives at about the same level of poverty and ignorance as he always has.

By 1980, says Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, the OPEC's total accumulations could exceed $500 billion. "Imbalances of this magnitude cannot continue. They are neither economically nor politically tolerable."

The lesson of Spain is not likely to be lost on the Arabs. But so far they are using their new-found oil wealth much as Spain did its gold — as political clout far out of relation to real national strength.

Baby boom's bottom line

During the 1960s, the population bulge caused by the post-World War II "baby boom" increased the number of Americans between ages 14 and 24 by 13.8 million.

Current projections are that the growth in this age group in the decade of the 70s will be only 600 000 and may even decrease in the 1980s.

Just as the burgeoning numbers of youth in the 1960s spurred the expansion and development of the educational community, the sharp decline in their numbers will also create unprecedented challenges and opportunities.

So argues Caryl P. Haskins, former president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, writing in a special issue of Daedalus magazine devoted to the crisis in higher education. The journal is published by the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

"We have a tremendous resource borne by the tide of those years (the '60s)," he says. "We had better be sure that it is used."

One group that might still benefit from a refocussed educational system, he suggests, is "that substantial part of the legion of the 14-to 24-year-old sector, whirled in the currents of the Sixties and most especially Vietnam," that lost its normal opportunities for higher education and has now dispersed into the body of our citizenry.

For them, Haskins envisions an "Open University," with unconventional kinds of accreditation and certification using new technological devices.

Increasing the student-teacher ratio may be another opportunity created by the shifting demographics of higher education.

The number of required teachers should drop through the '70s and '80s. "But," says Haskins, "there are going to be many teachers preparing and maturing and eager to make instruction their life's work during those decades."

'Bye Jupiter-Hi, Saturn

Pioneer 11's unimaginable, yet real journey to Jupiter — our largest planet — was according to early evaluations one of the great astronomical events in history.

For the first time man has been given a chance to study at close range that mini-solar system within our solar system . . its composition, its activity, its history, and quite probably its evidence as to the formation of the whole shebang in which we live.

Now it's Saturn, with its unique rings. Pioneer 11 borrowed strength from Jupiter's energy to whip itself on an orbit that hopefully will take it to that other mysterious member of our immediate, if widely separated celestial family.

On this trip no man was along to take a small step. Certainly, however, there has been at least one great leap for mankind, and a promise of more.

Quality of life to be eroded unless U.S. conserves energy

WASHINGTON — The United States, which has called upon oil-consuming powers to reduce oil consumption by three million barrels a day by the end of 1975, has made little effort to take its own advice.

Now a House study, which will soon be ready for release, gives the United States only five years to cut in half its rate of increase in energy consumption. Otherwise, the quality of life in the United States will erode.

The exhaustive, 19-month study by the House Government Operations Committee concludes hopefully that the energy cuts can be made and, therefore, that the nation's fabled standard of living can be maintained.

But it will take, declares the 133-page report, some sacrifice, enormous ingenuity and decisive White House leadership.

We have obtained a draft copy of the study, which is certain to become a major guideline for congressional action by 1975. It grew out of unusual joint hearings by the conservation subcommittee, headed by Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., and a science and energy subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash.

The study offers no dramatic, one-shot solutions for solving the oil crisis, such as higher gas tax, strict rationing or sudden deregulation of natural gas. The emphasis, rather, is upon conservation.

"We must reduce the rate of growth of our energy consumption," states the report, from 4.5 (to) two per cent annually." The alternative will be an energy crisis, which will "inhibit our activities" in every walk of life.

A promising start was made after the Oct. 19, 1973, Arab oil embargo.

Largely voluntarily, the nation "succeeded in reducing overall energy demand substantially — probably by more than five per cent."

But as soon as the first scare had passed, frugality gave way to an energy binge that has helped raise U.S. consumption to eight times the world average.

The report cites the example of industrial nations such as West Germany and Japan, which have high living standards yet have adopted everyday energy conservation practices.

West Germany's Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, pointing to a 10 per cent reduction in oil consumption by his country, has called upon the United States to practice what it preaches.

Echoes the House study: "Turning down thermostats during the winter, repairing steam leaks, driving slower, traveling less, putting up storm windows, adjusting air conditioning, heating, lighting and other energy uses in buildings, adjusting motors . . . are examples of conservation measure requiring relatively little capital investment."

These should be accompanied, either voluntarily or with government encouragement, by a change in transportation habits. Trains, buses, subways, bikes, barges and, of course, shoe leather must be used more, trucks and planes less.

For builders to get federal loans, their designs must include far more insulation, declares the report. Even old houses with federal loans must have their insulation upgraded.

The report cites favorably some scattered steps that private industry is now taking. Dow Chemical, for instance, uses infrared photography to spot heat loss in plants. General Motors and DuPont have found they can manufacture goods with techniques that save 10 to 30 per cent of the energy.

"Processing recycled aluminum requires only 5 per cent of the energy needed to process virgin ore," says the study. "Smelting scrap iron to make steel requires 74 per cent less energy."

Yet the White House has launched no drives to collect waste aluminum or scrap metal. The auto graveyards, which litter the landscape, are rich lodes of scrap metal.

Automobiles alone use 28 per cent of our oil, which amounts to 13 per cent of our total energy. "Regular tuneups, properly inflated tires and better driving habits," urges the report, "can improve gas mileage by more than 10 per cent in existing cars." But more important will be lightweight cars with high-mileage engines. There is no reason, contends the study, why a 15 per cent increase in gas mileage cannot be achieved by 1980.

Another 20 per cent of the total energy is consumed in private homes and apartments, half of it for heating. The report raises the prospects of federal insulation regulations.

It also calls for innovative ideas, citing the example of Michigan Consolidated Gas, which contracted with its gas customers to put up to six inches of insulation in their homes and add the cost to the gas bill, interest free. The energy savings: 17 per cent for houses more than 35 years old, 10 per cent for newer homes.

The study also advocates better maintenance of home furnaces. Their "rated" efficiency is 80 per cent, yet most are operating at 45 to 60 per cent because penny-wise, pound-foolish homeowners and landlords won't get them cleaned and repaired.

The study's industrial proposals are complicated. They involve recycling of heat through plants, new types of boilers and generators, fine adjustments of plant lighting and ventilation, seemingly minor shifts in cleaning and working hours, and drastic new designs for energy-using goods. Taken together, these add up to enormous energy savings, since 57 per cent of the nation's energy goes into industrial and other commercial uses.

"Major appliances can be redesigned . . . Refrigerators, ovens and dryers could be more adequately insulated . . . Gas pilot lights for stoves, which consume 30 to 50 per cent of the gas used in cooking, could be replaced in new stoves by electric starters . . . Substituting flourescent for incandescent bulbs would result in a (75 per cent) reduction in energy for residential lighting," adds the report.

The study endorses the usual conventional solutions but suggests more decisiveness in going ahead with them. Government research funds should also go into such projects as aerodynamic cars, low-energy engines, solar energy, garbage heat and other novel energy research, the report recommends.

The federal establishment must do more to get its own energy house in order, the report insists. The Federal Trade Commission should crack down on false energy ads; other agencies must require posting energy-use stickers on appliances; the Federal Power Commission should assist energy users instead of energy profiteers; and the Environmental Protection Agency must keep testing cars for gas economy and publicize the results.

"Reducing the . . . demand for energy will not only help to resolve many energy supply difficulties," concludes the study, "but also will contribute to reducing the detrimental impact on the environment of energy supply and consumption."

Just in jest

As a good citizen—no, let's put it this way—as a citizen to chicken to defy the law, I forked over my $35, plus tax, and installed an anti-smog device on my car. Now, with all the fuss some of our lawmakers are raising, it could be that smog device installation ruling may be reversed. Which means, of course, that those who have the guts to defy the law may save themselves $35 plus tax.

As one of those conforming citizens who always goes along for the ride, I saved my old newspapers in order to help improve the economy by recycling them. Now paper being saved for recycling is a glut on the market—but the price of newsprint still goes up. —Likewise, I have been using less electricity but it is costing me more. —And after getting my last phone bill I'm beginning to doubt the old saying about talk being cheap.

Time and again, of course, the political intellectuals and government economists have spent countless hours explaining in official governmental gobbledegook why we fearful, ordinary citizens should continue to grin and bear it. But the more I listen to their constant lecturing the more it reminds me of what was going on back in the Seventeenth Century when the intellectual giants were forever arguing about how many angels could dance on the head of a pin. — To put it another way — and probably ungrammatically at that — who's kidding who? — Never mind! Don't tell me! I'm sure the answer would just add to my ever increasing ordinary citizen confusion.

"Now wasn't seeing that new 'disaster show' better than sitting at home thinking about our deliquent loan payments?"

RALPH NOVAK

On the shores of the Potomeca

"We interrupt our regular programming to bring you a special message from Washington.

"Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States . . ."

"Good evening, my fellow Americans. I am speaking to you this evening because of the speculation that has arisen during the current election campaign, concerning the possibility of undue Arab influence in the United States.

"Now I want to assure that such speculation isn't worth two drachmas. You may remember that back in 1974 there were similar concerns voiced when our Arab brothers first began to buy real estate in the state then known as South Carolina but which we all now know, of course, as South New Kuwait.

"There were those who thought that our Arab friends would use all their profits from the increase in oil prices to buy the world. This kind of rumormongering was and still is riduculous, as I was saying just today in a discussion with Senator Hamari-Rabad of North New Kuwait.

"It is the same kind of petty partisan thinking that led others to suggest we were motivated by cynical factors when we suggested to our Israeli friends that they would probably all be a lot happier if they moved their country to Antarctica.

"Now, the truth is that we have only begun to realize how much the dynamic Arab democracies have to offer us — in terms of ideas and inspiration, that is. For instance before this campaign began, I changed by name from Gerald Ford to Abdul Kareem Ahmed-Azis. It was charged by some that I did this out of purely political motives, to attract campaign contributions and curry favor with our Middle Eastern allies. But as I pointed out in my speech to the Rose Bowl champions from New Yemen State University last January, I was just trying to indicate my feelings of compassion and understanding with other world peoples and chose the Arab name more or less at random, though I did ask the U.N. to take a vote on what kind of name it thought I should have.

"In the cosmic scheme of things, of course, our friendship with the Arab nations is only beginning. But as our old saying says, out of little acorns, giant palm trees do grow.

"I hope this little talk has helped put your minds at ease. Someone once said — I believe it was King Farouk — we have nothing to fear but fear itself.

"You'll all want to join me now, I'm sure, in a few bows to the East and a few stanzas of our new national anthem, 'The Sheik of Araby.' Thank you and good night."

"We now resume our regular programming, joining 'Championship Camel Racing,' which is already in progress "

Heartline: I am drawing $225.70 per month from my deceased husband's railroad pension. This doesn't seem like enough to me. Shouldn't I receive more? — P. O.

Answer: That amount is probably correct. The average railroad widow's annuity awarded in August 1974 was $208. However, in January 1975, most railroad widows' annuities will be increased.

Heartline: I am a veteran. Can I get my teeth fixed under Veteran's care? — A. C.

Answer — As well as the one-time treatment available within one year of separation from active duty, the following veterans are also eligible for dental treatment: 1) Those whose dental conditions are service-connected and compensable in degree; 2) Those with service-connected non-compensable dental conditions resulting from combat wounds or service injuries, former prisoners of war with service-connected non-compensable conditions, and those whose non-service-connected dental conditions are found by the VA to be directly related to or aggravating a service-connected condition; 3) Disabled veterans training under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act and Spanish-American War veterans who may need dental treatment.

Heartline: What is the new amount of earnings that Social Security taxes can be deducted on? — R. S.

Answer: In 1975 the amount will be $14,000, up from $13,200.

Heartline: I am covered by one of the plans under the Federal Employee's Health Benefits Program. At age 65, can I take out Medicare also? I have enough quarters for Social Security. — M. L.

Answer: Yes, assuming you are eligible for Medicare, there is no bar to your being covered simultaneously under Medicare and under one of the Federal Employee's Health Benefits Program's plans. However, you should realize that you cannot receive benefits under these programs which, in total, exceed the medical costs involved.

Wife sales by month dangerous practice

It's a matter of record that some husbands in southern Italy have sold their wives on the installment plan. Look at the town of Calabria, for instance. A baker named Vicenzo Marino charged a legal clerk named Antonio Raffa the equivalent of $1,600 for Marino's wife, Francesca. Raffa was to pay out the debt at $100 a month. But after 10 payments, he demanded a discount with the complaint that he had been given shoddy merchandise. Marino said no dice, let the buyer beware. So Raffa shot Marino to death. This led an Italian police official to point out that the installment sale of a wife tends to be more dangerous than a cash deal.

MIDGETS

Q. "I read once that those famous midgets, Tom and Lavinia Thumb, had so many babies that they exhibited a new one almost every year in their rounds with the circus . . . ?"

A. That's not quite right. Their only child, a daughter, didn't survive infancy. But promoter P. T. Barnum hired a whole batch of babies one after another to show off as the couple's children.

Q. "DO PIGS perspire?"

A. No, people perspire. Pigs sweat. But only on their snouts. This testy reply comes from our Language man, that sensitive fellow.

Q. "THE MOON is receding from the earth, it's reported. By how much?

A. About half an inch a year.

LOVE AND WAR

This item from our Love and War man's file is a little hard to buy at first, but maybe it's right. Husbands and wives who bicker a lot tend to bring up highly creative children. Or so report some Cincinnati researchers. They studied 32 youngsters and their parents. The children who did the most imaginative work in painting and writing turned out to be the offspring of fighting folks.

AVERAGE DAMAGE to recovered stolen cars now is said to run $246.

NOT JUST coconuts, but all nuts contain milk at one time or another in their development, say the nut experts. And that milk does for nuts just what milk does for people, nourishes the young. Watch this space for additional reports on nuts, milk and the young, as demand warrants.

ANN LANDERS

Reader complains about psychiatric questions from Motor Vehicle Dept.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for making the statement that, in your opinion, the question, "Have you ever had psychiatric help?" should be dropped from all job applications.

Our state Motor Vehicle Department has four such questions on their license exam forms. Then, to make you feel even more like a mental cripple, the examiner asks you to sign a second form swearing that you have, or have not, had psychiatric care.

A friend of mine who suffered a nervous breakdown several years ago put down the truth. She had to meet with a committee and convince them that she wasn't crazy. Then she had to obtain a letter from her former therapist declaring that she was of "sound mind."

I wonder if Mrs. Gerald Ford had to sign anything before she could become the nation's First Lady? Mrs. Ford is a fine example of why such questions should be dropped from all job applications. Her honesty about having had psychiatric help has done much to remove the stigma which never should have been there in the first place.

Please don't identify the city I live in because I don't trust our "friendly" Gestapo Motor Vehicle Department. They might revoke my license. — A Good Driver.

Dear Driver: Thanks for a chance to bring up the subject again. Many people who have had psychiatric help are in better mental condition than those who haven't — and could use it.

Mrs. Ford's frankness was extremely admirable. And recently, Canada's Mrs. Pierre Elliott Trudeau made a similar acknowledgement. Both women deserve a great deal of credit.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 14 years old and I like your column. But I can't find it in the Houston paper without my mother's help. It bugs me the way Mom grabs the paper first and starts to read aloud from your article, especially if the letter has something to do with teen-age sex. I am a well-behaved person and it burns me up that Mom doesn't seem to trust me.

Last week when I went to look for your column, I found a hole in the paper. Mom had already torn it out. When I asked her why, she said, "It is taped to your closet door." Sure enough it was. The letter was about a 15-year-old girl who got pregnant. Cool, Huh?

Don't suggest that I ask my father to talk to her. Mom runs everything in this house including my father. Please tell me what you think of this scene. — Hassled In Houston.

Dear Hass: I think your mother (and all other mothers) should not cram my column down their kids' throats. It turns them off.

No matter how much they want their teen-agers to see a certain column, they should keep quiet and hope they see it on their own.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know you aren't a lawyer, but you do have some very good consultants in almost every field and I hope you will provide me with a fast answer.

I need to know how long the husband of a widow must wait before he can marry in the state of Texas. Thank you.—Eager But Uncertain

AT WIT'S END

Consolidation upsets whole house

By ERMA BOMBECK

I poured myself a bowl of cereal this morning and out dropped the weirdest array of raisins, flakes, oats, puffs and squares I have ever seen.

"Whatya call this?" I asked one of the kids.

"Frosted, fortified, cracked, Cranbran flakes."

I dropped my spoon and slumped. "Don't tell me. Your father is on his annual crusade to consolidate all the empty boxes cluttering up the cupboards into one box!"

"Right," said my son. "If you think the cereal tastes rotten, you should dip into the ice cream. He found six cartons, each with a different flavor, with a spoonful left in each box and put them into one bucket. It looks like someone spit up at Howard Johnson."

"Please," I cautioned, "No more."

"Not only that, he mixed all the cookies left laying around into one bag and everytime you reach in, it's like trick or treat. You don't know if you're getting one baked this year or not."

"I'll speak to him," I said. I found their father in the bathroom trying to siphon a cap of toothpaste into another tube. "I want to talk with you," I said.

"If it's about the jellies being mixed together into one jar, I think you'll find the flavor rather interesting."

"It's not just the jellies," I said. "You're becoming paranoid about empty boxes."

"What's wrong with that?" he asked.

"You're making skeptics out of the children. They don't believe in anything anymore. They grabbed a box marked pretzels off the shelf the other night and sank their teeth into a banana flavored corn chip."

"The banana corn chips weren't moving in their box," he said.

"That's not the point. You do it with everything. Mother asked for an aspirin. I gave her one of the pills that you mixed together into one bottle. I didn't know if it would cure her headahce, sweeten her breah, dry up her cold, put her to sleep, make her regular again, or control birth. I can't go on living with a man who grafts soaps together in the soap dish and who puts cake coloring in old shampoo and pours it into herbal shampoo bottles."

"Go on out and have your cereal," he said softly. "You'll feel better after breakfast."

I checked the dog's food supply. The box was full. I felt better already.

U.N. report

Prison the worst place for criminals?

By KENNETH J. BRADDICK

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — For many criminals, prison is the worst place they should be, according to a U.N. report.

The report by a committee which studied crime prevention and control said the main value of imprisonment is that it keeps dangerous offenders out of the community and the fear of going to jail acts as a deterrent to some potential offenders.

But, the report said, the disadvantages of prison are the expense of operating them and the glaring fact that only a small number of inmates are ever rehabilitated in jail.

"In fact, by removing the offender from normal social and family contacts and exposing him to the influence of others who have committed crimes, imprisonment may make the task of rehabilitation more difficult," the committee said.

The study group suggested better prison facilities, humane treatment of inmates and guarantees of their basic rights and redress of grievances.

"Prison labor should be integrated within the local, national and regional economy," it said. "It should not be used as cheap labor and inmates should be remunerated at a rate in accordance with the prevailing labor policy."

Even so, it said, offenders who do not pay fines —except where the refusal is malicious —should not be sent to prison as is common practice. Some other form of noninstitutional treatment should be meted out, it said.

The committee urged development and extension of correction methods as an alternative to prison, and suggested:

—Special treatment for the mentally disturbed, alcoholics, drug addicts and others who require it.

—Parole and early release systems coupled with supervision designed to reintegrate prisoners into the community.

— Semicustodial treatment such as hostels and training centers.

— Noncustodial treatment such as fines, probation and work in the community.

In a general review of crime prevention methods, the committee warned against the dangers of the growing number of private security forces to combat rising crime.

Private forces sometimes become vigilante groups, it said, taking the law into their own hands.

And they frequently create inequality of protection, the report said, "since the richer groups in the society could afford additional security services while the poorer sections were left to manage with whatever services the state could provide."

"Too much private security, favoring some groups against others, could foster insecurity on a large scale."

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Statistics and other superstitions

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Folks once relied on superstitions, such as Friday the 13th, to pinpoint ominous periods. Today that service is performed by government indexes.

We have the cost of living index to show when we are threatened by inflation. The air pollution index appraises our chances of breathing. Plus other examples too numerous to mention.

The trouble with this system is its lack of correlation. One must look here and there, to this indicator and that, to ascertain his relative degree of vulnerability.

If the government were run right, it would assemble all the statistical gauges, balance one reading against the other and come up with a single Federal Parlousity Index.

We could look in the paper each day and there it would be —an all-inclusive calculation of how parlous the times are.

Twenty years ago, an index showing the relative degree of parlousness probably wouldn't have been technologically possible. But in these days of wonder-working computers, the FPI would be easy to establish.

Data programmers would simply feed into a computer the Dow Jones stock averages, weather reports, unemployment figures, Arab oil prices, the rag weed pollen count, Henry Kissinger's itinerary and the scores of other factors that affect our well being.

These figures would be compressed into a single unit and calibrated on a scale of zero to 100.

The upper end of the index would approximate some period —say the "Black Friday" stock market crash or Pearl Harbor day —when times were exceedingly parlous.

If the index registered as high as 95.2, it would be like the stock market crash coming on Dec. 7, 1941.

That leaves the lower end to equate periods of exceptional salubrity. Should the index ever drop to 2.7 or lower, it would be like your birthday, Christmas and National Safe Boating Week all rolled into one.

As wages in some industries are adjusted according to the cost of living index, labor contracts also could be tied to the Federal Parlousity Index.

Any time the FPI rose as much as five points, the equivalent of Friday the 13th, workers covered by the contract would stay home in bed on the premise that this would be one of those days when it wouldn't pay to get up.

Persons not covered by the contract would have to turn to each other for moral support. I recommend joining hands and singing "Help Me Make It Through the Plight."

WHO HAVE THEY GOT

What Democrat can get bootblack's vote

By RONALD E. COHEN

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The bootblack at the hotel stopped whisking his rag for a moment and asked, "What are those Democrats doing over at the hall?"

"Well," came the response, "they've taken a strong stand about what Congress can do to beat inflation, and they're adopting a charter —a set of party principles."

"Yeah, yeah," he interrupted impatiently, "but who have they got?"

And that's the problem the party faces in the aftermath of the first national convention ever held by an American political party in a non-presidential year.

They've got their strong economic stance, and a warning from leaders that if the Democratic-controlled Congress does not pick up the ball and run with it, the party can kiss goodbye its dreams of the White House in 1976.

They've got the first constitution ever written by an American political party, an impressive document that gives party reformers a great deal of what they wanted, yet may be palatable to those who thought the reformers got too much.

And they've made a heroic effort to bind the wounds still festering from the intra-party bloodbaths that have kept them out of the White House since Lyndon Johnson chose not to run.

But for all that the mini-convention accomplished, the question still hangs over the party.

"Who have they got?" the bootblack repeated.

"Well, Bentsen and Jackson have elaborate set-ups at the hotels and in the basement of the convention hall, and Udall is pumping a lot of hands, and Byrd people have put up some signs."

"Who?"

The Democrats' problem is that those who don't want the nomination are infinitely better known than those who do. Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and George McGovern, greeted with an outpouring of adulation at Saturday's session, have pulled out.

And Sens. Henry Jackson, Lloyd Bentsen and Robert Byrd, and Rep. Morris Udall are names that still draw a quizzical "who?" among most voters.

Presidential politics more often than not is man against man, not party against party. And the Republicans right now have an edge in that no incumbent has been defeated since Herbert Hoover in 1932.

So the post-Kansas City dilemma for the Democrats no longer is party unity or issues.

It's finding somebody to run for president that the bootblack has heard of and might vote for.

What people say

"The difference between the revolutionary and the terrorist lies in the reason for which each fights. For whoever stands by a just cause and fights for the freedom and liberation of his land from the invaders, the settlers and the colonialists cannot possibly be called terrorist."

Las Vegas

Recession or no, they still gamble

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Despite the recession, Nevada's gambling industry is flourishing.

"October's business was one of the greatest months of the year," said Les Kofoed, executive director of the gaming industry of Nevada, an organization of northern Nevada's casino owners.

Casino executives and state officials say that despite the national economic downturn the gambling business has not been hurt. In some cases the number of players may be down but the betting volume is up.

Clark Russell, general manager of the Ormsby House here, a hotel-casino, said the last two months easily topped the business of the same period in 1973. He feels the public during this time of economic stress still seems willing "to try to run up their money."

Not everyone in Nevada's tourist business is thriving. The smaller motels in Las Vegas have experienced a drop-off in volume.

Robin Cahill, executive director of the Nevada Resort Association which represents most major hotel-casinos in Las Vegas, said the motels that depend on the over-flow have felt a loss. He said sight-seers give a lot of business to the smaller hotels and these persons are traveling less.

But the big hotel-casinos are enjoying a brisk play, Cahill said, mainly because of a number of large conventions visiting Las Vegas.

"The people that are real gamblers may be more prone to gamble when other things tighten up," said Cahill. "They are figuring they might get well.

"I've always heard it expressed that the real gamblers gamble more in poor times to win something back ... they plunge more."

Frank Johnson, an official of the Hilton hotel chain which owns two casinos in Las Vegas says winnings this year are not as good as last year but "1973 was a super year." Johnson, former chairman of the Nevada Gaming Control Board, holds the theory that "gambling is one of the last things people do give up" in times of hardship.

He cites the small town of Ely which several years ago was hit by a major labor strike. Despite widespread unemployment, Johnson said, casino receipts skyrocketed.

Kofoed, who has been in gambling for more than 20 years, says the business during hard times has suffered but to a lesser degree than many other industries in this nation.

He said casinos offer the lure of "something for nothing." Unemployed persons with large amounts of time on their hands "see if they can't pick up a few extra bucks," said Kofoed.

James "Jake" Noel, chief of Economic Research and Securities for the state Gaming Control Board, says "the talks I have had with casino people is they just haven't felt the crunch like other industries."

And casinos, according to Noel, are not writing off any more bad debts or "markers" than in past years. Casinos in the past during some periods have had trouble collecting debts owed by the players.

The winter is usually the slow season for Nevada's casinos but Noel said there are no more employe layoffs planned than usual this year.

Because of inflation casinos have been raising the prices on food and drinks. The $1 minimum bet on a 21 table is slowly vanishing in favor of a $2 minimum in many of the major casinos. The price of a keno ticket was increased this year but the payoff has not changed.

Despite the overall optimism there are some soft spots. A study by the state Gaming Control Board shows that the real growth in the gambling industry, discounting the inflation, last quarter was 1.8 per cent over the same quarter of 1973. Nevada gambling casinos have been reporting 15 per cent and more dollar volume increases each quarter but these figures include the inflationary trend.

Noel says the real growth in Clark County, which includes Las Vegas, was four per cent during the last quarter compared to 1973; Washoe County, which includes both Reno and North Lake Tahoe, dropped 8½ per cent in comparing the three month period, and Douglas County which has its gambling center at South Lake Tahoe had a five per cent rise in "real growth" in the card and dice industry.

Contoocook's problems the same nationwide

Mood of America

CONTOOCOOK, N.H. (UPI) — The people of this New England hamlet feel no great relief about the passing of America's troubles with Vietnam, student riots and Watergate because the big trouble still is with them—not enough money.

"I wonder what's going to happen, the way prices are going up. Back in the '50s they said prices wouldn't be going up much higher, and they're saying it now—but they are," said Tom Gullage, 30, who runs the Village Barber Shop.

"People with three or four boys come into a barber shop and spend $10 for haircuts—that's a pretty good chunk out of your salary," he said, whisking clean the shoulders of a client, first with the traditional brush, then with a vacuum cleaner hanging on the front wall.

His young client wanted a long but neat haircut, because he was job hunting—outside Contoocook.

"Kids younger than me can't buy homes; they have two or three kids they can't afford to feed them. Things are pretty tough," Gullage said.

"I don't think things are over. I think we've still got problems," said David Packard, an insurance dealer who doubles as town clerk. "I'm not an economist but I know I think twice before I spend a dollar today."

"I just got back from a trip and I think prices around the country are outrageous," his clerk, Mary Merrill, said. "Until people do stop spending it's not going to change."

There isn't all that much to spend money on in Contoocook. The village center boasts a covered railway bridge now used for storage, two banks, two grocery stores, two garages, a white frame post office, one small restaurant and a handful of little shops.

There used to be a covered bridge to carry auto traffic, too, but it was washed out in the '38 floods and replaced with a stone arch bridge, a minor work of art in gray granite. It carries Routes 103 and 127 over the fast running Contoocook River, which once powered more mills than it does now, but which still delights canoe paddlers in search of white water.

For industry, there are a paper box factory, a firm which makes equipment for the timber industry, a fiberglass shower and tub maker, a wholesale distributor of educational books, two artesian well drilling firms, and O.D. Hopkins, who installs aerial tramways anywhere in the western hemisphere.

Many residents commute to work in nearby Concord, the state capital, or Manchester, New Hampshire's largest city with 80,000 inhabitants.

Contoocook itself has somewhere between 900 and 1,500 inhabitants, the range of "wild guesses" offered by local people. There are no state statistics to show population—Contoocook is just a village within the town of Hopkinton (west of the Alleghenies you'd call it a township), and New Hampshire counts only cities and towns.

"The economy's the big thing right now," said David Story, 35, a town selectman and owner of Reed's Store. "I hope they come up with some substantial ideas that are going to bring us out of the slump it's in right now."

He is a registered Republican, but only because you must sign up either as a Republican or Democrat to vote in New Hampshire primaries. If the law changed, he said, "I'd definitely be an independent. I never voted a straight ticket in my life."

Larry Hemphill, who works at the paper mill, said he has faith in President Ford, but not in his choice of a vice president. He said he thinks Nelson Rockefeller is too like Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in philosophy, which he described as one of "international giveaway."

Barbara Ray, who with her husband, Donald, owns "the nostalgic country store", and also owns the covered bridge, thinks it will take something drastic to snap America out of its problems.

"I think we've got to go back to the basics, law and order," she said. "They let people get away with too much."

Over at the Fountain Square Sandwich Shoppe, (hamburger 65 cents, two eggs with bacon $1.30), large signs on the wall call on residents to help in "Operation Identification — Put a Thief Out of Business."

City folk, perhaps through wishful thinking, sometimes wonder if the turmoil of the past decade might have passed by the small towns. That makes Mrs. Ray snort.

"We're not passed by—with television, smaller towns are up on things as much as New York," she said.

Santa, as we know him, is 152-years-old this year

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI — It was on a snowy December night 152 years ago that Santa Claus became the jolly figure Americans recognize today—"dressed all in fur from his head to his foot. .and a round little belly, like a bowl full of jelly."

On that wind whipped evening a serious scholar named Clement C. Moore sat down at his desk in his snug, candlelit study to compose a verse he had promised to recite to his children on Christmas Eve.

Its title was "A Visit from St. Nicholas."

Moore wrote his poem in New York City in 1822, but he later moved to Newport with his wife and nine children and it will be read there again this year in a ceremony that has become tradition.

Each Christmas season for the past 20 years Newporters have recognized Moore's accomplishment with a reading of the poem. At first it was read to neighborhood children before the fireplace in Moore's old home on Catherine Street.

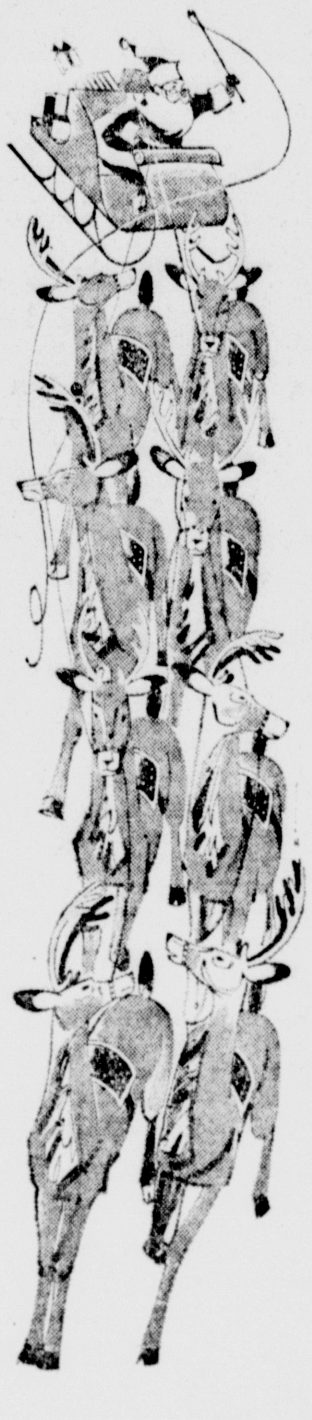
Now the home has been turned into apartments and this year the reading will take place at the Van Alen Theater on the Saturday before Christmas.

The man who has portrayed Moore for most of the readings is James H. Van Alen, one of Newport's most noted citizens and the founder of the National Lawn Tennis Hall of Fame. Up to a thousand children this year are expected to hear Van Alen read:

"Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house, not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse."

The words, by some unexplained inspiration, came to Moore with great ease.

Today it is difficult to think of Santa Claus except as Moore described him, but the figure originated in Europe hundreds of years ago as a withered old man in white robes astride a horse and carrying a bag full of toys for good children and a birch rod for the nasty ones.



Santa Claus, as Moore envisioned him, is thought to have been based on a beloved Dutch servant employed by the author.

Moore and the servant had recently been out for a sleigh ride during which Yule presents were delivered to friends and relatives.

Moore sat beside the servant as they rode through the night: "the stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth, and the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath ... he was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf."

It also is likely that during this evening out, Moore had wished his sleigh could fly through the air so he could get home faster and out of the cold: "when, what to my wondering eyes should appear, But a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer, More rapid than eagles his coursers they came, And he whistled, and shouted and called them by name."

Moore, a scholar whose field was ancient languages and who wrote books such as "A Compendious Lexicon of the Hebrew Language" and a biography of King Castriot of Albania, never meant his poem to be made public.

But a friend of the family copied it down and had it published in the Troy, N.Y., Sentinel. In fact, Moore often denied he was the author. But his attitude softened when he saw that the poem was becoming a children's favorite.

A magazine article written after Moore's death in 1863 said: "Santa Claus as we know him, and as the world knows him, is almost 100 per cent American. Not until St. Nicholas passed through the crucible of Dr. Clement Clarke Moore's imagination did the patron saint of childhood ever ride a sleigh, or have eight tiny reindeer with bells to convey him over rooftops."

The article was entitled: "Is Santa Claus An American?"

How the Christmas seal was born

BY GUSTAV DETJEN, JR.

While sorting mail in the Copenhagen, Denmark, post office during the 1903 Christmas season, a postal clerk, Binar Holbcll, was struck with an idea to benefit mankind. He spoke of his idea to friends and in a short time King Christian IX heard of the plan and summoned Holboll for an audience.

The proposal was the issuance of a stamp, not for postal use, but to raise funds to fight the dreaded disease, tuberculosis. King Christian approved the idea and requested the central design to bear the portrait of Queen Louise who had recently passed on.

In the following year, 1904, this first Christmas seal appeared and was so popular in Denmark that four million seals were sold.

As years passed on the idea caught fire in other countries and in 1907 an American philanthropist, Jacob A. Riis, wrote an article in "The Outlook" entitled "The Christmas Stamp." Miss Emily P. Bissell, then Secretary of the Delaware Chapter of the American Red Cross, read Riis' plea for Christmas seals and decided to help. Fifty thousand seals were printed at first and were placed on sale in the lobby of the Wilmington post office on December 9, 1907. Sales of the stamps, however, were very slow but with the aid of columnist Leigh, Mitchell Hodges and E. A. Van Valkenburg, owner of the Philadelphia North American, the first campaign was publicized, more seals were printed, and the program became a success.

The next year the American Red Cross sponsored the idea nationally and it has been successful ever since. In 1910, the National Tuberculosis Association joined with the Red Cross and since 1920 the campaign has been sponsored entirely by the National Tuberculosis Association, now known as the American Lung Association.

The 1974 Souvenir Mint Set, containing all the U.S. commemorative stamps issued during 1974, is now on sale at most post offices. The three-panel folder, selling for $3.50, has see-through acetate strips for mounting the stamps. Descriptive text about each stamp is included, as well as information concerning the designers and the issue of the stamp. There were fifteen subjects commemorated in 1974 totaling 29 individual stamps. Many post offices also have the 1972 and 1973 Mint Sets in stock, selling for $3.00 each. Any or all may also be ordered by mail from the Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, D.C. 20036, at the quoted prices plus a 50-cent handling charge per order.

To commemorate the 100th anniversary of the birth of Albert Schweitzer the Federal Republic of Germany will on January 15 issue a commemorative showing the head and shoulders of the Nobel Peace Prize winner. Check with your local dealer for availability or contact World Wide Philatelic Agency, 116 West 32nd St., New York.

Since 1975 on the Chinese lunar calendar is the year of the Hare, the Wild Hare indigenous to Taiwan is being used for the stamp design of the New Year's issue of the Republic of China. Your local dealer should have this stamp in stock now.

Auto woes

Russian drivers...................U.S. sales slump

By BARRY JAMES

MOSCOW (UPI) — Along with a rapid rise in automobile production in the Soviet Union has come an inevitable consequence—a big increase in the number of traffic accidents.

The Soviet Union has never been forthcoming about its bad news, including accident statistics. But a nationwide accident prevention month has just given some idea about the gravity of the traffic problem.

Boris Shumilin, deputy interior minister, said on television that the accident rate this year has increased 85.5 per cent over previous years.

The home-produced Zhiguli automobile, the Fiat 124 made under license, now is reaching the market in large numbers. The government newspaper Izvestia said at least 40,000 of the 1.5 million Zhigulis produced have been involved in accidents so far this year.

According to Shumilin, 300 persons died and 2,000 were injured in 2,000 accidents in the Novosibirsk region during the first eight months of this year. In Azerbaijan, 350 persons died during the same period, he said.

If the figures for sparsely populated areas in Siberia and central Asia are so high, the accident rates in population centers such as Moscow and Leningrad may well be appalling. Shumilin did not give details.

Moscow has 7.5 million inhabitants and about 250,000 automobiles, a small proportion of cars to people compared to Western cities. Despite the relatively sparse traffic, driving in Moscow can be hazardous.

Streets are badly lit, badly posted and often potholed. Cars weave from lane to lane at 50 or 60 miles an hour without signaling. Passing on the right is frequent. Visibility in winter is poor and roads often are iced over. Drivers make U-turns in the middle of the busiest highways and often don't use headlights.

Traffic in Moscow is slowed by convoys of battered trucks. Taxis, which generally seem badly maintained and often recklessly driven, are involved in many of the city's accidents. Lack of service and inspection facilities makes the roadworthiness of all automobiles suspect.

Outside the city, conditions are worse. Traffic crawls along two-lane highways that lack both passing lanes and hard verges. Half the time rear lights are obscured by mud and even at night drivers often use only parking lights.

To make things worse, this is a nation of brand-new drivers.

Driver training in Russia stresses theory and mechanics, but not roadmanship. The National Automobile Society said last year that only a third of Soviet drivers have been properly trained.

The weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta several months ago blamed the characteristics of the Zhiguli for many accidents. It is a relatively fast car and peppier than most Soviet automobiles, such as the lumbering but solid old-model Volga.

Most automobiles lack basic safety features such as collapsible steering columns and seat belts. According to law, automobiles are supposed to come equipped with seat belts. Few do, apparently because of a bureaucratic mixup in the Ministry of Light Industry. Soviet sources said factories have produced an excess of seat belt buckles, but not enough webbing to make the belts themselves.

Pedestrians cause many accidents. Moskovsky Komsomolets said pedestrians were involved in more than half of Moscow's accidents in September. It said police that month stopped nearly 60,000 pedestrians for violating traffic rules and fined 56,515 of them on the spot. Moscow drivers all tell of narrowly missing, or hitting, pedestrians weaving across darkened streets under the influence of vodka.

So different and dangerous is Moscow driving that the American embassy warns new arrivals to drive defensively.

It particularly warns drivers not to play king-of-the-road with lane-hopping Soviet drivers.

"The chances are that the other driver has paid nothing for the car he is driving," the embassy says in an information bulletin. "It probably belongs to his organization. His car if and when it collides with yours will display some of the characteristics of a tank, and will probably come out of the competition less damaged than yours. Finally, even if his company car is damaged, the local driver is not likely to be greatly inconvenienced or financially penalized."

DETROIT (UPI) — Nearly 300 new car dealerships have closed their doors during the year-long sales slump and at least 1,000 have changed ownership, but dealers are maintaining much of their usual optimism.

Dealers across the country surveyed by United Press International cited two main factors behind the slump: higher prices averaging $400 on 1975 models and uncertainty over the national economy. Many dealers blamed President Ford for his "don't buy" advice in October.

"The customers still coming in are pretty well off, but people are in a quandry whether this is a so-called recession," George Riggs, president of a San Francisco Chrysler-Plymouth dealership, said. "They're also wondering how far it's going to go before it comes back up.

"But everybody thinks it will come back up."

The trade publication Automotive News said its dealer census at the end of the 1974-model year in September found 25,111 dealerships handling domestic makes, compared with 25,404 in business a year earlier when the '74 season began.

The disappearance of 293 establishments was far greater than the decline of 68 outlets during the 1973 model year and the 184 that faded away during the 1972 season.

But Automotive News said the casualties were fewer than in the earlier periods of this decade. The 1970 model year resulted in a loss of 793 outlets, and another 700 left the business in 1971.

In November, the 25,111 dealers sold 505,511 new cars. It was the smallest total in a bad year and amounted to less than one car a day per dealer.

Last spring, Reed T. Draper, a Saginaw, Mich., Chevrolet dealer and chairman of the government relations committee of the National Automobile Dealers Association, was in the forefront of the doomsayers. He admits there was static from other dealers because of his pessimism.

"I was much more pessimistic in the spring, but I'm kind of optimistic now because I see some daylight," Draper said. "Right now, everybody is in a wait and see attitude.

"The nice part about the auto business is that every day that goes by, people are using up the product. When economic stablization comes, there will be some great sales years ahead."

The thing that has surprised many dealers is the strength of the big car market and the demand for luxury options.

In the Los Angeles area, one downtown Chevrolet dealer said sales were off 25 to 35 per cent from a year ago, while a Hollywood Buick dealer said he is up 20 per cent from this time last year.

American Motors dealers in Los Angeles said most people are asking for six-cylinder models in hopes of gaining a few more miles out of a gallon of gasoline.

A Glendale Lincoln-Mercury dealer said his big cars are going as well as they did last year and a Chrysler man said the mid-sized Newport and Fury sales are hurting, but Imperial owners are coming back for more.

Robert Martyne Jr., general sales manager of Heritage Cadillac in Atlanta, Ga., said buyers are more cautious and "they're not buying as they bought in the spring."

"But, the people who buy our cars have not been knocked out of the market yet," Martyne said. He said he expects an upturn in the spring and is adding 20 more service stalls and 20 more mechanics.

In Los Angeles, another dealer echoed the sentiment.

"When Ford said 'don't buy' a lot of people paid attention to him."

Draper, in Saginaw, Mich., doesn't expect December to be much better than October or November.

But Draper said by February and March, barring any new developments to curb consumer confidence, there should be an upturn and a pretty fair closeout on the '75 models. He admits he's an optimist.

Scrap industry

Export lid, recession taking toll

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It used to be a nice arrangement.

Southern California automobile drivers would crack up their cars at a rate of more than half a million a year.

The junk cars, some abandoned and nearly all stripped of their expensive parts, would then find their way into sprawling automobile graveyards, which in turn sold the car bodies to five major auto shredding firms in Southern California.

Depending on supply and demand, the bodies would bring from $15 to $50 a ton.

Then, like huge garbage disposals and more efficient than the older auto bailers, the one-story high shredders would grind up a car in seconds and spit it out as thousands of fistsize nuggets of steel.

The balls of steel were taken to the dock and shipped to Japan, Taiwan, South Korea, the Philippines and other countries eager for American scrap metal. The scrap dealers would make up to $100 a ton. Everyone made money.

It was a nice arrangement — until the federal government imposed export controls and quotas in July 1973, and until the recession hit.

"Scrap metal is backing up on everyone —America is being inundated by it," said Richard Nu, an official of Hugo-NuProiler, which operates one of the big auto shredders on Terminal Island.

"Right now things look rather bleak for our industry," said Nu, who also serves as regional president of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel. "About all we can do is let the scrap pile up."

The scrap metal crisis centers on both the West Coast and in New England.

There are few large domestic steel mills located on the coasts that can use the scrap, so instead of bearing the expense of shipping to mills inland, the scrap dealers sold abroad and business was booming in the early 1970s.

Joe S. Schapiro, part owner of Clean Steel of Long Beach, Calif., said his automobile shredder used to process about 125,000 cars a year and had markets throughout the Orient.

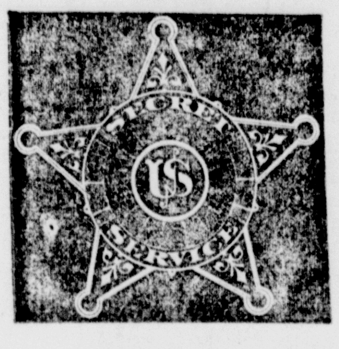
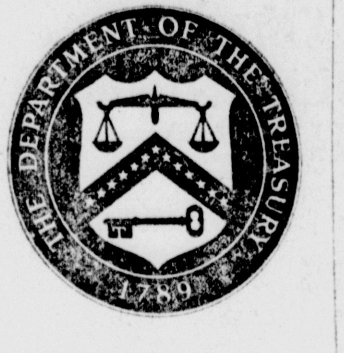
Secret Service gears up for counterfeiting surge in gold, coins

In two weeks, Americans will be able to own gold legally for the first time in 40 years. With this privelege will come the fast-buck artists and confidence crowd to bilk the unwary with everything from worthless gold mine stock to counterfeit coins, gold bars and bullion. In an effort to alert citizens to the dangers of gold buying, Progress-Bulletin coin editor Mort Reed compiled the following article on the United States Secret Service which is charged with investigating all counterfeiting within the U.S. — Ed.





By MORT REED

With an excessive number of gold coins surfacing, a question arises: Has the Secret Service the right to confiscate these coins without some form of remuneration to the original owner? The answer can be found in Section 492 of Title 18 of the United States Code.

"Seizure and forfeiture is not taking property without due process of law witnin the meaning of the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution since such coins were neither property nor the subject of property, but were products of felonious acts outside the law." Page 295 Encyclopedia of U.S. Coins.

Nothing in this section authorizes the secretary of the Treasury to return to a person from whom a coin was taken either the counterfeit or the value of the bullion it contained.

The Treasury Department, through its enforcement arm, the Secret Service, has the authority to determine when a coin is counterfeit; when unlawfully in the possession of a party from whom taken; and to forfeit it, and after forfeiture, to direct in what manner it should be disposed of with no judicial condemnation being necessary.

As a bureau of the Treasury Department, the Secret Service is the oldest law-enforcement agency in the federal government, with headquarters in Washington, D.C. and field offices throughout the United States. It was established in 1865 for the express purpose of checking widespread counterfeit and alteration of the nation's currency.

The duties of the Secret Service are prescribed by the U.S. Code, Title 18, Section 3056. In addition to providing protection for the president, president-elect, vice president, the vice president elect, their families and related responsibilities,its functions are:

The detection and arrest of persons engaged in counterfeiting, forgery or alteration of currency, checks, bonds and other obligations of the U.S. and foreign governments, including violations concerning the manufacturing, sale and use of tokens, slugs, paper or other things similar in size and shape to any of the lawful coins or other currency of the United States.

COUNTERFEIT AND FORGERY

An authorized coin of the United States is an obligation of the United States, and any unauthorized reproduction as defined in the U.S. Code, as considered unlawful and subject to penalties described in violations by classification.

Reading Sections from Title 18 of the U.S. Code will familiarize readers with the requirements of the code, thereby avoiding direct or indirect involvements in an illegal act pertaining to the coinage of the United States.

YOU AND THE SECRET SERVICE

A statement by the director of the Secret Service to the effect that an informed public is a strong foe of the counterfeiter is backed by constant public relations efforts to educate the public on the detection of counterfeit money and steps to be taken when a piece of questionable currency is found in circulation.

1) Do not return the questionable coin or bill to the passer. Unless it is detected at the time of exchange at a bank or cashier's window.

2) Delay the passer. Use any reasonable excuse to delay the passer until help can be summoned, such as a store manager or person of authority to whom you can relate the situation without causing the passer to notice. Note his physical appearance, license plates, etc.

3) Telephone the nearest police headquarters. Explain the conditions under which you received the counerfeit, give a description of the passer, his car or any other identifying qualities.

4) Mark paper currency. Write your name or initials and the date — in ink — on the face of paper currency believed to be other than genuine. Ask the responding officer for his identification (this is not considered offensive to a police officer). Ask for a receipt before surrendering the counterfeit, but under no circumstance surrender it to anyone other than a recognized police officer or bona-fide representative of the Secret Service.

SEC action against silver trading firm delayed to Jan. 30

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — James Ray Houston, owner and founder of the Western Pacific Gold and Silver Exchange, has been granted a delay on a federal court hearing to determine if his firm should be barred permanently from doing interstate business.

The hearing, scheduled earlier this week, will now be conducted Jan. 30. Meanwhile, a temporary restraining orderissued against Western Pacific Nov. 29 will remain in effect.

Attorneys for the Securities and Exchange Commission and attorneys for Houston Wednesday agreed to the delay on the hearing. U.S. District Judge Roger Foley signed the necessary papers.

The temporary restraining order prevents the Las Vegas-based silver company, which had more than 70 branch offices throughout theU nitedS tates, from doing business interstate.

The SEC filed suit against Houston and the silver company last month and charged thef irm sold securities illegally.

Houston, who has filed a reorganizational bankruptcy proceeding in federal court, may testify before the federal grand jury here Thursday.

He told a news conference earlier that he had asked to appear before the grand jury to explain how his business became the target of a newspaper expose because of his candidacy for governor on the Independent American Party ticket.

Houston was subpoenaed to appear before the same federal grand jury last month.

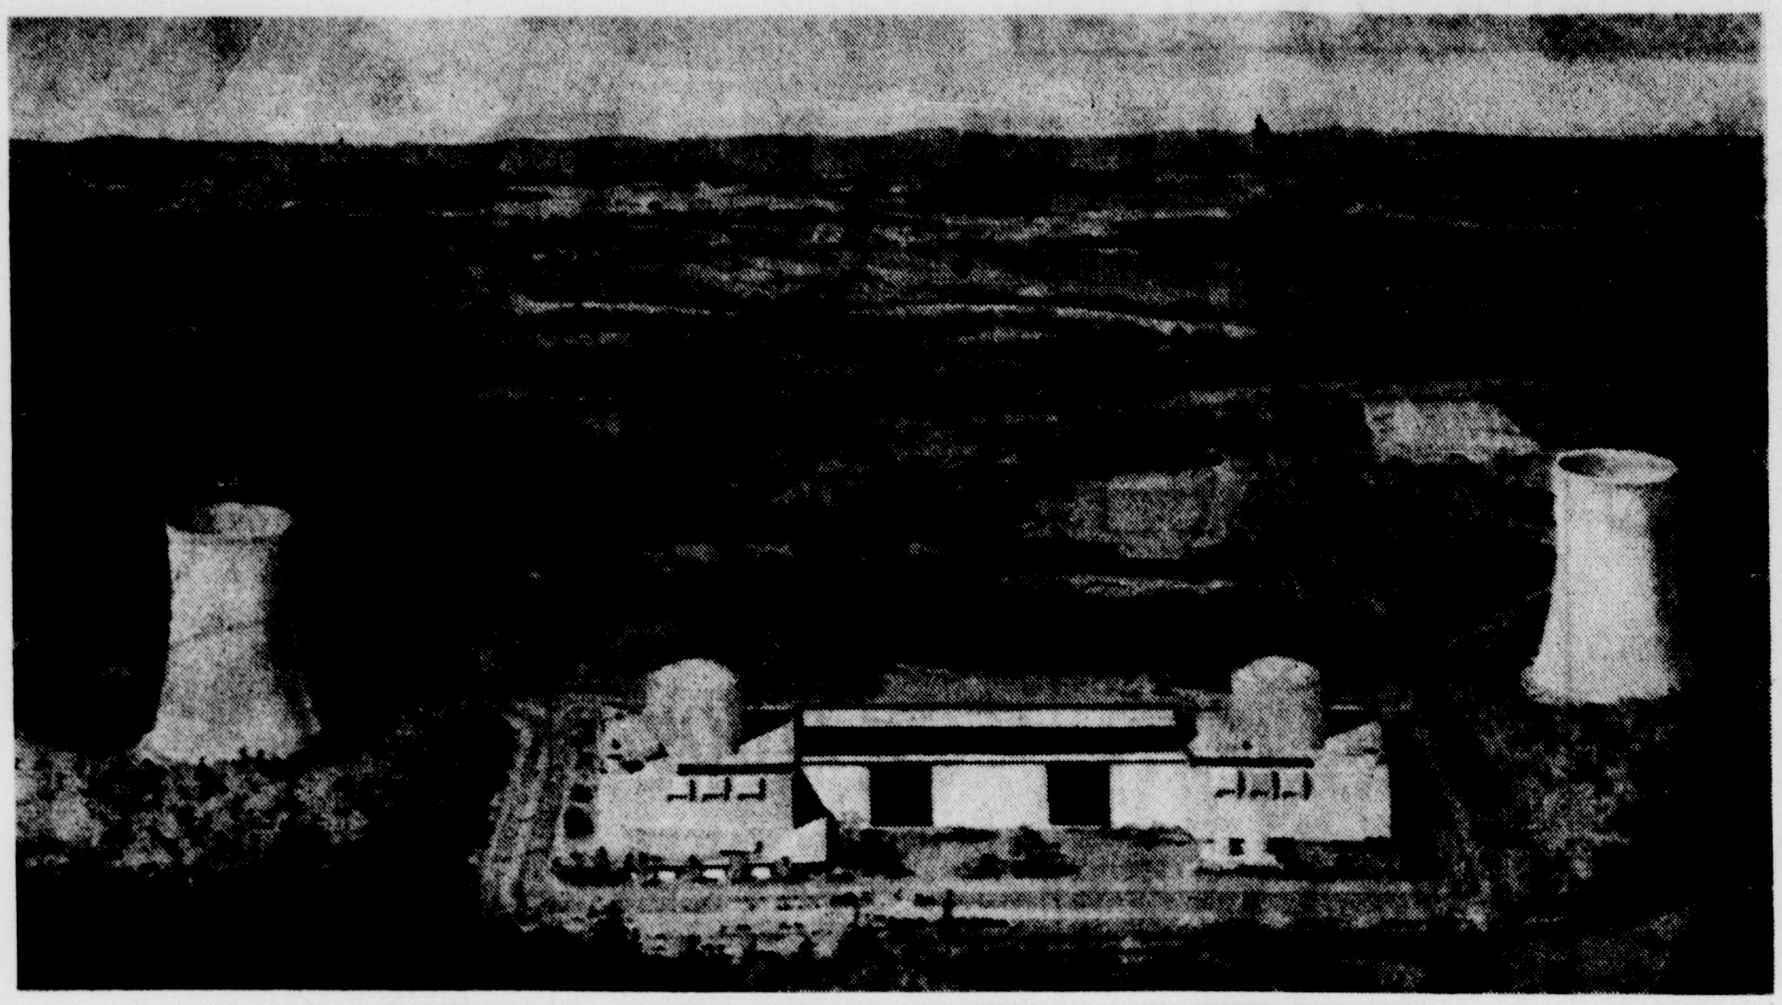
Atom power dispute splits Rhode Island



ARCHITECT'S CONCEPT OF PROPOSED RHODE ISLAND TWIN REACTOR

CHARLESTOWN, R.I. (UPI) — Edward E. Mulligan says he is a "reasonable man taking a reasonable approach" to the issue of nuclear power plants.

He is president of Narragansett Electric Co., which is seeking to build a $1.5-billion twin reactor system in this rural community of 3,000.

"If I thought this thing would kill babies, then I wouldn't want to build it," he said.

There are some people in the community who doubt Mulligan's sincerity and to him they are "unreasonable."

They complain about big money, influence and corporate lobbies; about questions unanswered and the possibilities of dangers to the environment and health that such a project could bring about.

Rhode Island is the only New England state without a nuclear power plant or one under construction. But the debate on whether one should be built, and where, is a hot one, and not only in Rhode Island.

ECOLOGY

As of now there are 54 operating nuclear plants in the United States, 74 more under construction and another 109 in the planning. Nuclear plants are located primarily in the East Coast states, the midwest, California and the Pacific Northwest, but they are spreading. The battle of Charleston is being replayed in many other American communities.

Charlestown is one of Rhode Island's southernmost points. It is a sleepy farm community in the winter and fall, but during spring and summer its population goes up 25,000 with visitors who want to take advantage of its shady groves and the sparkling waters of the Atlantic Ocean.

It is also boasts a high proportion of intellectuals from the nearby campus of the University of Rhode Island. Many of the town's residents are ecologically minded and opposed to nuclear power plants.

"If they are so damned sure this thing won't kill babies, then why the heck do they want to put it way out here away from large populations,'' asks Dr. Samuel Seely, a professor of electrical engineering at URI.

Seely speaks out against nuclear power plants with the same zeal that Billy Graham condemns the devil. He is also the president of the Concerned Citizens of Rhode Island which has fought Narragansett Electric every step of the way.

"One of the most critical aspects of nuclear power is the production of toxic wastes such as strontium and cesium which are serious producers of cancer and leukemia. Of grave concern is plutonium, which is probably the most toxic material known to man," Seely said.

"If anybody asked me if a nuclear power plant emits radiation I would have to say yes, because it does," Mulligan admitted. "But it is on the scale of the amount of radiation from the phosphorous dial of my watch, or one chest x-ray every 200 years."

Mulligan believes that the arguments espoused by opponents of nuclear power raise "unfounded fears" in the minds of persons unversed in the subject.

What it all comes down to, Mulligan says, is the old story of everybody thinks nuclear power is the answer but not in their own backyards.

"We are dealing with a technology which is under tight controls. I have never heard of a single person being injured or killed in a nuclear power plant. If we are ever to get Project Independence off the ground (making the United States independent of foreign oil) then Rhode Island and New England are going to have to do their part," Mulligan said.

The utility has spent thousands of dollars for tests and studies, according to Mulligan.

"We have to go through a year and a half of studies, and while that is going on the opposition is running around and anything could happen. It is very difficult to get anybody opposed to this to come up with any 'for instances'. I say that reasonable people wait for a reasonable study," Mulligan said.

Seely and his friends agree that Charlestown is an example of all the communities which have faced up to the issue or will face it in the future.

"They softened up the town council. We were told by the utility and by some council members that anybody who is opposed is either a fearmonger or an obstructionist," Jack Hearn, a Charleston pharmacist and member of Concerned Citizens, said.

"I don't like to be charactezized as something subversive. That's just not the way it is. If anything is going to be done about nuclear power and its obvious dangers it will have to be with groups like ours.

"We've had to meet in basements of our homes instead of in town hall like we were some kind of radical group getting ready to attack apple pie, motherhood and the American way."

Narragansett claims to have set out to educate the residents of Charlestown on the issue. "We have set up a reading room in town hall where studies are made available so people can draw their own conclusions," Mulligan said.

Seely and Hearn claim that town hall has not given Concerned Citizens equal opportunity with opposition literature. "We try to put up a poster and they take it down or put it behind an open door," Seely said.

The plan calls for the plant to be constructed on an abandoned 600-acre naval air base bordered by the ocean, a highway and a small body of water called Ninigret Pond. The site is studded with dilapidated buildings, broken glass and evidence that it was being used for target practice.

"How can anybody say we will be doing a disservice if we take this site over and beautify it?" asked Charles Sokolsky, Narragansett district manager.

A state government official close to the Charlestown problem says the issue has not yet polerized, but when it does one of the main arguments for the plant will be the amount of revenue a $1.5 billion facility will bring to the town. "Charlestown will become a battleground," he said.

"Everything we have seen so far tells us it is an excellent site. We'll be taxpayers in the town for a long time, and that's a pretty total commitment to the community," Mulligan said.

Suitability of site, ecology, economics, politics and science all have something to do with the attempt to bring nuclear power to Rhode Island.

State Rep. Lucy Rawlings Tootell recently summed up the controversy.

"The more you study this, the more complicated it becomes," she said.

"ULCERATIVE COLON GONE"

Says T. L. Henson: "I had ulcerative stomach and colon trouble as shown by x-rays. I went to several doctors but did not receive any help. I went to Dr. Wing for 5 weeks and was better. After fonr months, I went to another doctor and had him X-ray my stomach to see if the ulcerative stomach was better. The X-ray showed the ulcerative colon and stomach was cleared up. It has been 6 months and I am well with no signs of recourance."

NO NEWTS IS BAD NEWTS

Chris Nelson, chief naturalist at Orinda's East Bay Regional Park District near San Francisco, displays a handful of tiny newts next to a sign erected Friday to protect the amphibians. Newts are members of the salamander family and important to scientists in research. They also are an endangered species and in Nelson's baliwick were being decimated by autos as they crossed the road. Nelson said sign is believed to be the only one like it in the world. Nelson says his tiny charges resemble little dinasaurs. Creatures live in dark, swampy regions of Bay Area.

Watergate guard hero finds little luster in scandal limelight

FRANK WILLS

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Frank Wills, the lone night watchman at the Watergate the night all hell broke loose, says more than two years later that he cannot understand why Richard M. Nixon "got off scot free" and he has suffered nothing but trouble ever since.

Still a bachelor at 26, Wills said in an exclusive interview that he has had trouble finding a permanent job since that night of June 17, 1972, when he alerted the police who arrested five men inside Democratic National Committee offices at the Watergate.

"I have had problems finding jobs," he said. "I don't know why. I guess some (prospective employers) were afraid of Nixon and didn't want to get involved.

"I feel very bad about it. You fight for your country and stand up for it, and what does it get you? Here I did my best on the job and I get slaps in the face for it.

"Here they talk about Nixon and how he might get a nervous breakdown. It's very hard to understand. No one felt sorry for me when I had my problems. I wasn't given executive privilege like Nixon. He got off scot free with the pardon, the money, all the benefits —all that goes to the big guys, not the little guys like me.

Making his rounds that night at the Watergate, Wills removed some adhesive tape he had found on a garage door lock, then strolled across the street to a hotel for a post-midnight coffee break. When he returned, he noticed the tape was back on the door.

He phoned the police. At about 2:30 a.m., after a search of the posh office-apartment complex on the Potomac, they arrested five men wearing business suits and rubber surgical gloves inside Democratic headquarters. All, it turned out, were hired by President Nixon's 1972 campaign committee.

The arrests for burglary and attempted bugging of Democratic offices led over the following two years to the unfolding of one of the greatest political scandals in U.S. history, culminating in the convictions of many of Nixon's highest White House and campaign aides and finally in the resignation of the President himself.

Wills left his job as Watergate security guard shortly after the break-in, and not until early this year did he land a regular job doing the same thing elsewhere. He lost that one in July because of conflicts with his occasional speaking engagements, now his sole source of income.

Wills, a black high school dropout, is slowly working his way through a local vocational school toward a general education degree, the equivalent of a high school diploma, and is thinking about college-level studies incriminology or social work.

He blames a lot of his troubles on "people who supported Nixon no matter what, people who wanted to rebel against me because they didn't want to hear the truth" about Watergate.

Wills did receive a plaque of appreciation in October from Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss for helping expose the Watergate scandal. He never got a chance to read the tribute, Wills said, because the plaque was reclaimed almost immediately for recasting.

"They gave the break-in date as Sept. 17 instead of June 17," Wills said with a rueful laugh. "Only the Democrats could

Coed beats odds; wins election

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. (UPI) — Weekend trips are traditional for New England college students, but not the type that led Katie Hanna down the campaign trail to the New Hampshire legislature with more votes than two incumbents, one her high school principal.

Actually, Ms. Hanna, 21, a senior at Mt. Holyoke College, one of the academically prestigious Seven Sisters, is used to it. Last year, while her classmates were off on social visits, she made weekly treks home in a longshot campaign that saw her beat Keene, N.H.'s mayor for a delegate spot to the state constitutional convention. Before that she was a delegate to the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

Nevertheless, when the state House of Representatives convenes in January, she'll look like everyone's little sister among a group of older men. But then, that's the way she planned it.

A liberal Democrat in a stanchly conservative GOP state, she won apparently by taking her cue from the McGovern and McCarthy 1972 and 1968 presidential primaries, in which the two liberal Democrats attracted unexpectedly sizeable votes by grassroots campaigning.

New Hampshire, with the largest legislature in the Western hemisphere, and the smallest legislative districts, may be one of the few places where Ms. Hanna could have met her campaign goal of knocking on every voter's door.

Once there, always in a skirt and sweater, never jeans, she sold her image as the girl next door, unless the constituent wanted to talk issues, in which case she was more than happy to oblige.

"The original plan was for me to run as the good kid down the block and win on my smile," she said. "After a while, however, I couldn't stand it so I started talking issues."

Ms. Hanna, who stressed land use planning and tax relief for the elderly in the only state in the nation without sales or income levies, said that most voters didn't want to talk issues. Others, she said, only wanted to discuss her age and sex.

It was at the constitutional convention, to which she was sent by a 3-1 margin over Keene Mayor James A. Masiello, that she argued successfully for an 18-year-old age requirement for gubernatorial candidates.

The resulting publicity, plus that given her as the nation's second youngest 1972 Democratic convention delegate, made some constituents wary, she said. She dealt with the problem by stressing the contributions a young woman could make in a male dominated body whose members averaged 67 years of age during the last session.

"People just kept telling me politics was a dirty business and wanted to know when I was going to get married and settle down," she said. "A lot of them seemed amused by me."

Many more, however, were impressed. She won handily, getting almost twice the votes of one incumbent, who also won election from the two-delegate district, and burying a three-term lawmaker who was her high school principal when she got her political start as student government president.

Part of the explanation, she said, lies in the Granite State's politics and its voters.

"Some people said that even though they didn't agree with my views on some things, I deserved the job because of the work I put in," she said. "I think that's what makes New Hampshire politics a little different than elsewhere, you can get to talk to the people."

In addition to her canvassing, Ms. Hanna said she sent out more than 1,600 individually written pieces of mail asking for support from the district's 2,400 registered voters. Then, she said, there were personal touches, like the 77-year-old man whose vote she got by baking him a birthday cake.

Ms. Hanna, whose $246 campaign was financed by her family, says she'll leave school for the spring semester to make the $200 job a full-time occupation, one of her campaign promises.

Starts, stops, rallies, dips confuse market watchers

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market rose on anticipation and simply meandered when confronted with reality this week. As a result, prices closed irregularly higher on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average gained 15.17 to 592.77, most of that coming on Tuesday when the closely watched average climbed 13.93 points. Standard & Poors' 500-stock index gained 2.06 to 67.07. The NYSE common stock index added 0.95 to 35.40.

What confused the picture was the fact declining issues edged advances, 931 to 785, among the 2,000 issues crossing the tape.

Volume for the week totaled 75,442,760 shares, compared with 65,731,110 traded a week ago and 95,013,364 during the same week a year ago.

On Tuesday, the market had its best rally in a month.

It went up after the Federal Reserve Board lowered the discount rate it charges member banks for loans, which resulted in a sharp decline in short-term interest rates.

(Chase Manhattan Bank, third largest in the nation, pleasantly surprised many when it lowered the prime lending rate it charges key corporate customers to 10 ¼ per cent from 10 ½. But trendsetting First National City Bank of New York, second largest, failed to lower its rate from 10 per cent on Friday, a disappointment to investors.)

The other rally spark Tuesday was anticipation President Ford would announce new plans to perk up the economy in a speech to the prestigous Business Council Wednesday night. His answer to the speculation:

"If there are any among you who want me to take a 180-degree turn from inflation fighting to recessionary pump-priming, they will be disappointed."

To a degree, Wall Street was. But some investors took heart the President said he would present the next Congress with some new plans to combat "the devils of inflation, recession and energy." He did not discuss any proposed tax cut, which many have urged.

In a meeting with leaders of the ailing automobile industry Thursday, he again ruled out an increase in gasoline taxes. But some of the meeting participants said he was sympathetic to a freeze on safety and pollution emission standards for the next five years. Wall Street appeared pleased simply because he met with the leaders, who urged tax cuts and tax incentives.

In his Wednesday speech, Ford said he had seen signs inflation was slowing, and the next day, the Labor Department reported its wholesale price index rose only 1.2 per cent in November, a smaller increase than the October rise. The most important part of that report was the fact prices for industrial commodities rose only 0.9 per cent, the smallest increase since September, 1973. That indicated inflation, indeed, may be leveling off.

Meanwhile, oil remained on everybody's mind. The Organization of Oil Producing Countries (OPEC) adopted a new price structure for its crude oil, which had the effect of slightly raising the price. But members said that price would be frozen for nine months.

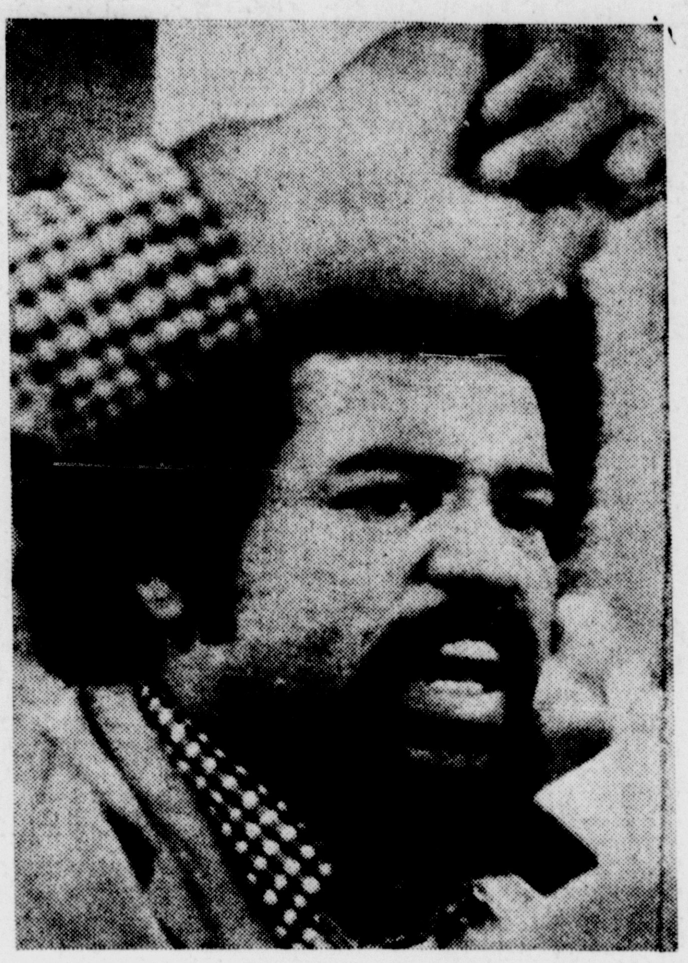
Prior to the meeting, which ended Friday, Saudi Arabian and Iranian expressed beliefs there would be no sharp oil price increases this year. The fourfold increase in the past year has created chaos in the economies of the industrialized West.

Saudi Arabian officials met with representatives of Exxon, Texaco, Mobil and California Standard to discuss terms of its total takeover of the American -Arabian Oil Company (ARAMCO). The unanswered question was what Saudi Arabia charge for the oil.

From NFL lineman to CBOT floor

CHICAGO (UPI) — George Seals listened to quarterbacks call signals for 10 years while playing as a lineman in the National Football League. Today he calls his own plays as a trader on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Seals became the first black to trade on the 126-year-old CBOT, world's largest commodity exchange. He bought a $40,000 membership last February, along with a $10,000 seat on the CBOT's Options Exchange.



GEORGE SEALS

"I thought for a while I'd be back with the Kansas City Chiefs for this season, possibly a few more, when I left after last season," said Seals, 32, a 6-foot-3 260-pounder.

"But I changed my mind. I didn't want to get to a point where I'd have to play football to survive—you know, hang around too long, then make a desperation decision. I'm in good shape now and I feel I'm leaving while at the top of my game."

Seals, a one time All-Big Eight lineman from the University of Missouri, admitted the move from the brawny, banging, physical atmosphere of the gridiron to the business world of split-second decision-making didn't come easy.

"There are a lot of expressions that are used in both places, like 'going along,' 'going short,' 'spreading,' 'charting,'—but they have a different meaning," Seals said. "In this business it means you're usually making a big bet on the direction a commodity will move. If you guess right, you profit. Hit it wrong, you lose."

Seals is what the trade calls a "scalper." "That means I make lots of trades, one right after another. All the action is quick. I must make hundreds of trades daily. The action is unbelievable. I'm hooked. I love this better than football."

The physical shoving around might be over for Seals, but the fatigue from the trading pits is more severe, he said, than it was on the football field.

"It's no accident that trading lasts only four hours and 15 minues," the articulate former athlete said. "The pace is too exhausting to go beyond that. Eight hours daily would kill a guy well before his time.

For Seals each trading day is like the day of a football game. "You got to be 'up' every day. It's like having a kickoff every day, instead of only once a week as it was in the NFL.

"A big difference here is that you've got to generate the enthusiasm on your own. There's no coach prodding you, trying to get you emotionally charged for the pit."

"Shatkin hung over me like a shadow, getting me started," Seals said. "He guided me through the early days, and still counsels me almost daily. Without his help, I'd have a lot more difficulty."

One thing Shatkin taught Seals is that the market often acts inconsistently "so when I get in the pit, the important thing is to be ready to move when the opening bell sounds, just like in football. Because the market does not discriminate. There's no character about it."

From marketing stocks to washing socks; he likes it

LAWRENCE HETHERINGTON

By BRENT BOWERS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The decision to switch from selling stocks to washing socks came easy for Lawrence Hetherington.

"I worried so much about my customers, whether they'd make or lose money, I couldn't sleep at night," the former securities broker said as he folded shirts in his laundromat on Manhattan's West Side.

As a result, the slight, grey-haired Hetherington urged clients not to buy certain stocks and ended up losing money himself.

"Finally, I decided to go into my own business, it didn't really matter what, as long as I knew it couldn't hurt anybody," he said.

So when a friend offered early this year to sell his part-time laundry business, Hetherington didn't hesitate. He left his thick-carpeted office at the firm of Bache & Co., plunked down his savings, and went to work.

Immediately, he transformed the business into a full-time, one-man operation, keeping it open nearly 12 hours a day and greeting housewives, construction workers, office clerks and even an actor and a novelist at his door with the promise to wash, dry, fold and package all their dirty clothes for 15 cents a pound.

"It's not quite the same as trading in securities, but it's an honest living," Hetherington, 44, said, pausing to light up a little cigar. "I work 75 hours a week and I go home exhausted. But you know what? I sleep pretty good these days."

Whereas previously Hetherington puzzled over the comparative price-earnings ratios of blue chip stocks and wondered what direction the Dow Jones would take, now his main concern is how to fold "silky" garments.

"They just slide and come unfolded, and my customers must wonder why I didn't do a better job," he said.

In general, however, Hetherington thinks his customers appreciate his performance and he says his trade is growing so fast he'll have to expand soon. "Hard work works," he said. "I believe if you want to be in a service business, you should give good service."

His former clients apparently thought highly of him too. Several have called him to ask for advice and urge him to return to his old job.

"No way," is his answer. "I still see some of my former colleagues and I think I can sum up their mood pretty well: gloom and doom."

However, unlike some economists, Hetherington does not believe a depression is imminent. The government, he says, "pumps too much money into the economy for a repeat of 1929."

On the other hand, brokers who are hoping that the general public will start buying stocks again soon are off base, in his opinion.

"I know too many investors who say 'never again,'" he said. It'll be 15 years before we get a new generation of people who never got burned and see the stock market rising and decide they want a piece of it."

What does the broker-turned-scaker do in his spare time? "What spare time?" he asked, then admitted he sneaks away from his business every couple of weeks to watch the New York Jets football team in action. And sometimes, he added, he stops in at a bar after work, "just so somebody'll wait on me for a change."

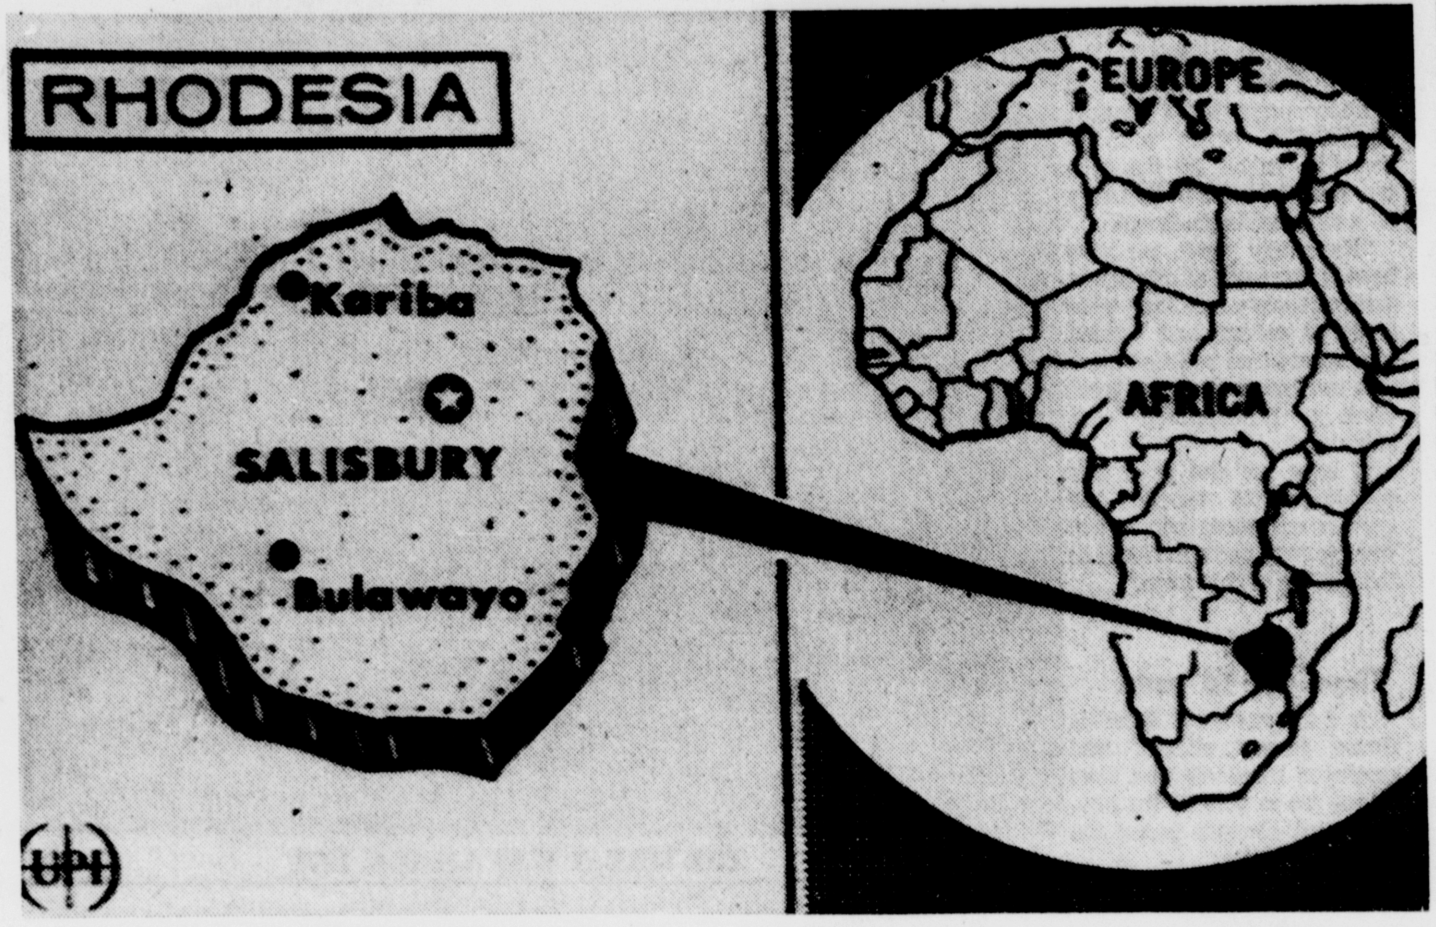
Rhodesia's guerrillas and white supremacists agree to halt warfare



MAP OF Rhodesia shows where the Southeastern nation is placed on the dark continent. At the announcement of this week's cease fire, Prime Minister Ian Smith said he would release political prisoners and allow blacks into normal political activity.

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — The white supremacist government and black nationalist movement have agreed to end two years of guerrilla warfare and begin talks "without preconditions" on Rhodesia's future.

Prime Minister Ian Smith said he would release about 100 black political prisoners and let Rhodesia's black majority engage in "normal political activity."

Nationalist sources in neighboring Zambia said Rhodesia's two major guerrilla leaders — Joshua Nkomo and the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole —would begin talks with Smith within two months, probably in London.

"I have received assurances that terrorist activity in Rhodesia will cease immediately and the proposed constitutional conference will take place without preconditions," Smith said this week in a nationwide radio broadcast.

IAN SMITH

Smith said, however, the accord was only a step toward a final settlement and the United Nations might keep on imposing economic sanctions on Rhodesia.

The agreement climaxed two months of behind-the-scenes talks between leaders of Rhodesia's 5 million blacks and quarter-million whites. White-ruled South Africa and black-led Zambia helped bring the two sides together.

The accord set the stage for a possible end to the political uncertainty in Rhodesia since the white minority regime broke away from Britain in 1965.

Smith's government has been the target of international sanctions for nine years and increasing guerrilla warfare in northeastern Rhodesia for two years.

Diplomatic sources said Smith held two months of secret talks with Rhodesia's black leaders before freeing Nkomo and Sithole from prison last week and letting the two guerrilla chiefs travel to Zambia.

Nkomo, head of the Zimbabwe African Peoples Union, and Sithole, leader of the Zimbabwe African National Union, agreed last weekend in the Zambian capital of Lusaka to unite Rhodesia's long-divided nationalist movement.

Smith, in his radio broadcast, promised "to release African leaders from detention and restriction and their followers as well."

Militant whites criticized the move. Len Idensohn, leader of the Rhodesian National party, said, "His decision is a betrayal of the white man in Rhodesia."

Tornado town's Phoenix-like rebirth from ruins

TEMPORARY CITY HALL

BRANDENBURG, Ky. (UPI) — The story of Brandenburg is essentially a tale of two cities— the one that existed before the April 3 tornado and the one now struggling to rise from the ruins.

It also is the story of a determination to make the quiet Ohio River community about 50 miles southwest of Louisville a better place to live for the approximately 1,700 survivors of that horrible April day.

Thirty-two Brandenburg residents died in the tornado, at least 50 were seriously injured and damage totaled more than $7 million.

"We can never bring back the people we lost in the tornado, but we can come back bigger, better, and stronger, and we intend to," said Henry "Monk" Ross, Brandenburg's affable, white-haired mayor.

Jane Willis, editor of the Meade County Messenger located in downtown Brandenburg, said that "at least 60 per cent of the people who lost their homes have built back and less than 20 families are still living in the trailers provided by the federal government."

For Mrs. Shirley Miles, proprietor of an apparel shop just across the street from the newspaper offices, the tornado was one of a series of misfortunes to plague her family this year.

"When New Year's Eve comes, we'll really be celebrating a good riddance to 1974," she said. "I can't imagine ever going through a worse year in my life."

Just two days before the big tornado churned through town and heavily damaged her store, The Hitching Post, another twister sent a hugh tree crashing down on the Miles home south of Brandenburg. Mrs. Miles, her husband and son were unhurt.

"It made our home unlivable," she said. "For the next six weeks, we moved from one relative's home to another each week while our house was being rebuilt.

"That Wednesday afternoon when the big tornado came, my husband and some other men were doing repair work on our house when he saw a funnel cloud heading toward Brandenburg. He ran to a house across the road and phoned me to take cover in the store."

In addition to the tornado damage, and that from a heavy rain coming in through a hole ripped in the roof, the shop more recently was hit by an avalanche from an eroding cliff behind the building during another deluge. That buckled the floor of the store.

"We've had a tornado sale and a mud sale," Mrs. Miles said. "I don't know what will be next.'

Most Brandenburg residents probably would join Mrs. Miles in a New Years Eve toast to the end of 1974 as a year they'd like to forget.

Take Jane O'Bryan, an office employe for the Meade County Rural Electric Cooperative.

Her father, 93, and mother, 82, were killed in the tornado that destroyed the home she shared with them. The storm also demolished the office where she worked and even destroyed her car parked nearby as she and some 20 other employes huddled in a basement for safety.

"They say time is a great healer, but it is awfully hard to get over all that happened that day," she said. "My parents were well along in years, but they were still enjoying life very much."

Much as they may want to forget 1974, Brandenburg's citizens still see daily unpleasant reminders of that April day.

There is the makeshift City Hall in a one story, storefront building shared with an insurance agency for $170-a-month rent. The old City Hall was leveled by the tornado.

County offices now are dispersed in a half-dozen trailers, in the public library, and elsewhere because the tornado destroyed the County Courthouse.

The city government, already heavily debt-laden from a federal water and sewer system loan obtained several years ago, was backed to the wall by the loss of an estimated one-third of taxable property in the tornado.

"We are hoping to get the government to cancel our remaining debt on the water and sewer system," Mayor Ross said. "That would be about $700,000 if it was paid up now. If the government does not grant us forgiveness on this loan, I guess theyll have to come in and take over the water system."

Bob Jones, manager of Brandenburg's radio station, WMMG-FM, which was reduced to rubble by the twister, sees the tornado recovery as a crossroads challenge.

"For many years, we have been losing most of our bright young people when they went away to college and located somewhere else because there was not much to bring them back to Brandenburg," he said.

"I hope we can seize this opportunity to rebuild and grow so our young people will want to stay and contribute to the vitality of this town."

Bangkok housewife queen of rare fish salesperson

By BOB NOOR

BANGKOK (UPI) — Suwanee Visetsiri is a middle-aged housewife who makes a living shipping fish thousands of miles from Thailand's territorial waters to fish collectors all over the world.

In fact, her fish breeding business is so successful that she has made three round-the world trips, and her husband gave up his government job to help out.

Suwanee, now 48, first started to take an interest in fish breeding at 19 when she purchased two tiger barb fish from Indonesia. She noticed the pair hatched thousands of eggs and, seeing a potential profit, she began to sell the fish.

"Most of my customers are in America and Japan," she said in an interview at her "factory" just outside Bangkok which employs 20 men to raise fish in an acre-sized pond.

"The best time to sell or export fish is during the cold months. It is the time when most persons are confined at home."

Part of Suwanee's success may be that she tries to keep her prices down. The most expensive fish she ever sold is the sauvage, about eight inches in length, which goes for $20. Is inflation a factor nowadays?

"Oh, yes," said Suwanee, who spends $250 a month for food alone. "Naturally, my prices reflect rising costs." She fattens fish on mosquito larvae or red garden worms.

The most popular kinds of fish Suwanee sells overseas are the altea eater and silver sharks. The latter cost about $2 apiece, plus delivery costs.

Her best customer, she said, is a rare fish distributor in California (Long Beach Fisheries). It orders 1,000 to 2,000 pounds of fish at a time.

The fish are packed in plastic bags half filled with water and flown to their destination on commercial jetliners.

But the profitability of her business isn't the only interest Suwanee has in the fish. She appears to have a genuine foundness for fish and goes to considerable pains to breed them.

In 1972, she won first prize at a 40-nation fish exhibition for her two entries, the probarbus jullien and the catlocarpio, which are only found in Thailand.

Tri-state radioactive waste dispute

By KEN CONNAUGHTON

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Idaho's governor gave an emphatic "no" this week to an Atomic Energy Commission proposal to use his state as the site of a temporary nuclear garbage dump.

However, Gov. Cecil Andrus left open a door for the AEC to use Idaho as a storage site for the radioactive wastes if they have been reprocessed—and if the agency first removes tsansuranic wastes currently buried at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

The statement by Andrus was delivered at an AEC hearing in Salt Lake City today by Michael Christie, Idaho Health and Welfare Department radiation control officer, when the governor was grounded by fog in Boise.

Andrus was the first scheduled witness at the AEC's second public hearing on potential sites and means of storing wastes from commercial atomic power plants during the next 30 to 50 years. Sites in Idaho, Nevada and Washington are under consideration.

Andrss said he fully endorsed a state study commission's rejection of the use of Idaho for storage of commercial wastes because the state is dependent on the Snake River water which flows from an aqueduct partly beneath the AEC lab at Arco.

"The majority of Idahoans perceive the interim waste storage site at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory to be a potential threat to the vast Snake Plane aquifer flowing under the INEL, and thus, a threat to their lifeblood."

The governor asked the AEC first to "give Idaho a definitive time-table for the removal of all transuranic atomic wastes from above the aquifer."

He said such assurances have been given by the AEC in the past by the vague term "by the end of this decade." He wants a more definitive schedule.

An AEC official opened the hearing by saying the commission would consider protection from acts of war, terrorist attacks or theft before deciding where to locate the storage facility.

Dr. Frank K. Pittman, director of the AEC's Division of Waste Management and transportation, has said the Idaho site is preferred, because much of the atomic waste is there, and so are support facilities.

The AEC hopes for a quick decision on a site, and funding allocations in the 1976 federal budget.

The draft statement discusses, in addition to the three possible sites, three approach to storing wastes until final disposal methods can be perfected.

The material—some of which will be dangerous to the environment for thousands of years — will be stored temporarily in surface facilities. The state the AEC chooses is expected to have the waste for about 30 years.

The draft report considers three temporary storage methods: water basins, air cooled vaults, and sealed storage casks.

The water basin approach requires less land than the others, and the report says it would have "no significant adverse effects of any sort."

The concept would cost the least, but would require "an unfailing supply of good quality water.. (and) an unfailing supply of large amounts of electric power."

The air-cooled vault concept calls for storing waste materials in massive concrete vaults just below the surface of the ground. The report says one danger of this method is that if air vents became clogged and the cannisters holding the waste ruptured, there would be "potentially serious adverse consequences."

The sealed storage casks would require large amounts of land —about 1,100 acres within security fences—would have the highest capital and program costs, and would have "some adverse effects

This concept calls for sealing waste in two-inch-thick steel casks, and surrounding them with three-foot thick concrete neutron shields.

The major problem with the cheapest and smallest type of nuclear dump—the water basin concept—seems to be with the water itself.

The draft statement concluded that the Nevada site has a water supply which "appears marginal for the needs of the water basin concept, and a better understanding of underground flows would be needed" before setting up such a facility.

Much of the public opposition to location of the dump in Idaho concerns the fact that the Idaho Falls installation sits partially atop the Snake River aquifer, and residents fear contamination of their waterresources.

Canterbury Cathedral

Pollution doing what Luftwaffe could not

CANTERBURY, England (UPI) — Weather and polluted air threaten to accomplish what the Nazi Luftwaffe failed to do to Canterbury Cathedral in World War II.

Archbishop of Canterbury Donald Coggan warned Tuesday that the cathedral — spiritual center of the Church of England —is decaying from the ravages of time, weather and pollution.

He spoke in launching an appeal to raise $8.2 million to preserve the church. All the cash must be raised privately, he told newsmen, since the government cannot by law give money to the church.

Prince Charles is president of the campaign, whose first task is to save the cathedral's priceless 12th century glass. Experts say chemical pollution in the air could destroy the medieval east window within twenty years.

Surveys show the soft sandstone of the nave and perpendicular style tower and the gothic ornamentation of the cloisters are flaking under the ravages of damp English weather.

The church was superficially damaged by German bombers during raids against Canterbury in World War II.

Canterbury Cathedral, visited by 2 million tourists annually, marks the spot where St. Augustine brought Christianity to England in Saxon times.

It became a center of pilgrimage after Archbishop Thomas Becket was murdered by King Henry II's lieutenants while celebrating mass in the cathedral.

The king later visited the church in penance and Canterbury became a place of pilgrimage.

The present building was designed by the Flemish architect William of Sens in 1178 and built of stone imported from France.

The shrine to St. Thomas Becket was destroyed on the orders of Henry VIII but the cathedral still contains the tombs of King Henry IV and the Black Prince.

Save deer park stock

BUENA PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Lion Country Safari, an open-air animal preserve and park, said this week it will accept all the deer from Japanese Village that have negative tuberculosis tests.

Japanese Village, which closed down last week due to financial difficulties, Tuesday killed 177 of the deer that had positive TB tests and said 144 others would be destroyed unless buyers could be found.

A spokesman for Six Flags, Inc., operators of Japanese Village amusement park, said the company would be happy to transfer the 144 negative-reacting deer, but that no definite arrangements had been made.

Pat Quinn, corporate zoological director of the Lion Country chain, said the park would quarantine the deer for another 60 days even though they were negative reactors.

Deer that showed a positive TB reaction in tests would be destroyed.

Ned DeWitt, president of Six Flags, Inc., said lethal injections of a chlorine compound were given to the deer by a veterinarian.

"They were destroyed as humanely as possible," DeWitt said. "It is a shock to me but we were instructed to put the deer to sleep because some of them were showing a positive reaction to tuberculosis."

Dr. Hyman Parrell of the state Bureau of Animal Health in Los Angeles, said about 200 of the animals were ordered quarantined about a year ago because they reacted positively to the tests.

The deer were part of the amusement park's regular features, and were in a "petting zoo" where they roamed freely. The public could go in and feed and pet the animals, and Parrell said only the healthy animals were on public display.

Parrell said it was unfair to blame the owners of the park for destroying the positive reacting deer.

The peripheral canal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A top state water official says criticism over the environmental impact of the proposed Peripheral Canal will not force the $286 million project to be abandoned.

John R. Teerink, director of the Department of Water Resources, also warned this week that canal construction must begin within a year to meet increasing water demands throughout California. He said cutbacks in water deliveries to consumers would result if the canal is not built.

Teerink reiterated the conclusions of a draft Environmental Impact Report on the proposed project that the 43-mile-long canal will "improve environmental conditions" of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta.

"We do not foresee any conditions whereby the Peripheral Canal would have to be abandoned because of environmental problems," he told the Senate Committee on Natural Resources and Wildlife.

Teerink was one of 19 supporters and critics to testify before the committee on the canal, which would cut through the eastern side of the Delta transporting water to other parts of the state.

The committee is chaired by Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, a vocal critic of the proposal who indicated committee recommendations would be drawn up at the conclusion of the testimony for construction in preparing the final report.

The draft report was made public in September and concluded the proposal was the best of 10 alternatives considered for improving water quality in the Delta.

Testimony on the draft report taken at six public hearings during a 90-day review period will be considered before the final report is prepared and released sometime next Spring.

Immunity system is new cancer weapon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of the promising new weapons in the growing assault on cancer is the stimulation of a patient's own immune system to fight off tumor cells.

The field of immunotherapy is still in its infancy and the role it will have alongside surgery, radiation and chemicals in battling the nation's No. 2 killer is not known. But laboratory tests with animals and a few trials with humans show that manipulation of the immune system can affect the growth of cancer.

"The question now is can these techniques be refined and given broad applicability so that they will have a major effect on the treatment of a variety of cancers in a clinically substantial way," said Dr. Steven A. Rosenberg, chief of the surgery branch at the National Cancer Institute.

He discussed progress of for the preparation of a speimmunotherapy at a recent cancer conference in New York and compared the field with the initial airplane flight of the Wright brothers in 1903

"Their major achievement was not to get to a desired location faster or to carry mail but merely to demonstrate that it was possible in a heavier than air machine for a human to fly. And of course this is a field that took off and 60 years later we were walking on the moon.

"Well, this is exactly where I view immunotherapy right now."

The idea now is not to develop a vaccine to prevent cancer from getting a foothold in the body because cancer causing agents necessary for the preparation of a specific vaccine have not yet been identified in humans.

Instead, the attack is focused on the general stimulation of the body's defenses against invading cancer cells. There are several techniques being evaluated to do this.

Perhaps the most common way used by researchers to boost the immune system is to administer an antituberculosis vaccine known as BCG. Another method is the immunization of the patient with his own tumor cells. A third technique is obtain a substance called transfer factor from the blood of a healthy relative in an attempt to transfer immunity to a diseased person.

There have been several promising trials of various types of immunotherapy in treating malignant moles, leukemia and bone cancer in humans.

Rosenberg said it may turn out that immunotherapy will be most effective when it is used in an attempt to eliminate residual cancer after the disease is first treated by surgery, radiation or drugs, along or in combination.

He said research so far suggests that use of the body's immune system in fighting cancer is effective only when there is a minimal amount of cancer in a patient. The patient's immune system also must be healthy enough to respond to stimulation despite the weakening effects of cancer and its treatment.

Vigorous white blood cells are factor

Test tells if patient will reject heart transplant

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Stanford University researchers have developed a successful technique for determining whether a potential heart transplant recipient will reject the new organ, it was reported this week.

A medical team led by pioneer heart transplant surgeon Norman Shumway said it has predicted accurately the clinical course of the last nine patients who received new hearts at the University Hospital.

The procedure, now being used to screen potential recipients, is based on a recent finding that immune systems function differently in individuals and white blood cells are responsible for the variation.

The doctors said patients whose white blood cells "mount a vigorous attack to a test panel in the laboratory also react violently to a new heart.

The work of the medical team is described in the November issue of Transplantation, the journal of the Transplantation Society. On the team besides Dr. Shumway were Drs. Alan Coulson, Fran McMillan, Randall Griepp, Edward Stinson and Eugene Dong Jr.

Coulson said it was not surprising to find a variation in immune activity. He added many organs including the brain, thyroid gland, bone marrow and even the stomach are know to vary functionally from one person to another.

"Eventually we may use this method to help the surgeon determine whether or not to do a heart transplant operation," he said. "In theory, such screening techniques could be done before other organ transplant operations also."

The screening process works like this: white blood cells are separated from the blood of heart recipients prior to surgery before they receive any immunosuppressive therapy to prevent rejection. They are mixed in a tissue culture with several stimulants.

A standard stimulant provokes an immune response that results in a transformation of the white cells.

EGG DISPUTE — The maligned egg, which contains cholesterol, actually is one of nature's finest foods, according to Dr. Kurt Oster (pictured). The East Coast cardiologist says milk is much worse for the system than eggs. Dr. Oster's view conflict sharply with American Heart Association.

Doctors should stem tranquilizer gulping

CHICAGO (UPI) — Physicians should be wary of prescribing tranquilizers, since some patients see them as instant chemical answers to their problems, according to the American Medical Association.

In a statement prepared by its Committee on Alcholism and Drug Dependence, the AMA said Sunday the physician should determine the severity of the symptoms and the patient's ability to handle them, the parent's reliability as a drug taker and the dependence the drug may cause to the patient.

"Because of the proliferation of psychoactive substances, the physician, today more than ever before, should guard against contributing to drug abuse through injudicious prescription practices or by acquiescence to the demand of some patients for instant chemical answers to their problems," the AMA said.

Too early reading can cause nearsightedness

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — An optometry researcher says teaching Johnny to read at an early age may make him nearsighted.

Dr. William Ludlam, professor of physiological optics at Pacific University in Forest Grove, Ore., used a $1 million, 10-year grant to study causes for an increase in nearsightedness in the American population.

He said his study indicated increased emphasis on near work by small children was to blame.

"With the recent emphasis on teaching babies to read, marked by the learned response to letters from certain television programs for children, there has been a push to early reading."

Teens become alcoholic to break narcotic habit

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (UPI) — A psychiatric counselor says an "unheard of" number of young persons have tried to get off drugs by switching to liquor —only to become alcholics.

"We're finding a lot of kids who are tired of worrying about drug busts and bad trips," said Larry Metzger, of the Eden Alcoholism Clinic.

Metzger said the drinkers in their teens and 20s "turn to liquor, often to the relief of their parents."

"It's a pathetic situation where liquor is thought of as a trouble-free, acceptablle drug for people who can't handle it."

The Eden Clinic, maintained by Alameda County, cares for 250 alcholics a month. Fifty are in their teens and 20s and most of them have a previous drug problem.

"A few years ago such a total of young alcoholics was unheard of," Metzger said.

"They start out having a few drinks and their use grows and grows until they have a habit as tough as any other drug," he said.

Rosenbloom: The image of total control

'If you don't believe, you're never going to get it done'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The first thing you notice about Carroll Rosenbloom is the way he looks you straight in the eye.

In his 22nd year as a professional football team owner, Rosenbloom presents the image of a man totally in control of his environment. In his case, the environment is the Los Angeles Rams.

"I'm a firm believer that if you don't believe, you're not going to be able to do —then you're never going to be able to get it done," says the 66-year-old Ram owner.

Despite his years, Rosenbloom is a picture of strength and vitality. He says simply, "I'm working harder today than I ever did."

Rosenbloom chooses his words carefully but he speaks his mind. Pro football, he will tell you, is as much fun to him today as it was when Bert Bell, then the National Football League commissioner, persuaded him to revive the Baltimore franchise in 1953.

And winning, he says, is just as important —if not more important.

"If there was a franchise available and I wasn't in football, I'd get in it again," Rosenbloom said.

"I believe you must expect changes and younger people change. People say that the players aren't like they used to be. But I don't find a great deal of difference in the players today.

"Of course, we don't have around us players we don't believe are good people. If we get a person who we don't believe fits into our team concept, we don't keep him.

"I've been in this game going on a quarter of a century and there have been only three players —just three —that I didn't want on my football team. We let them all go.

"There are so many highs and lows in football. The only thing that matters is winning. If you don't win, it's terrible. If you make a trip and get beat, it's a long ride back. I'm not a very good loser and I'll admit it. I don't like to lose. Period."

Incredibly, Rosenbloom is in the infancy of his second life in the NFL. In a transaction that culminated on July 14, 1972, he traded his Baltimore Colts —a team he owned for 19 years — for the Rams.

Instead of becoming conservative in his later years, he is becoming almost radical in his philosophy. And, it might be pointed out, he's still a big winner.

After his first year as owner of the Rams, 1972, a season in which his club went 6-7-1, Rosenbloom fired head coach Tommy Prothro and sent quarterback Roman Gabriel off in a trade with the Philadelphia Eagles. He then hired an obscure Detroit assistant, Chuck Knox, to replace Prothro and traded for John Hadl.

"Everybody I think thought I was crazy when I made those changes, letting Prothro and Gabriel go," the Ram owner remarked. "And nobody believed me when I said we were Super Bowl contenders last season."

As it turned out, the Rams didn't win the Super Bowl but they did turn things around with a 12-2 regular season record.

Six games into 1974, Rosenbloom shipped Hadl, the 1973 NFC Player of the Year, to Green Bay one week after James Harris had been promoted to the Rams' No. 1 quarterback.

Because of the Rams' sudden turnabout last season, the club has been criticized this year although it's 9-4 and the NFC West Champion for the second season in a row.

Rams seven-point choice over Buffalo, O.J. today

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles and the Buffalo Bills, both NFL playoff bound and both coming off losses, close out the regular season Sunday with the Rams favored by seven points to bounce back from a Monday night national television loss to Washington.

The Rams' opening round playoff opponent will be determined by what Washington and St. Louis do this weekend.

If both win, Los Angeles will face the Redskins, who beat the Rams 23-17 Monday night, next weekend.

As the AFC wild card team, Buffalo is at AFC Central champion Pittsburgh next weekend.

"We've just got to regroup," said Chuck Knox, the second year coach of the NFC West titlists. "We've got to start concentrating harder and not make any mistakes."

Knox, whose Rams are 9-4, didn't think anything good came out of the defeat to Washington.

"I don't think a loss ever helps you," he said. "You can profit from your mistakes. You can look back on what you did wrong and try to improve.

"But to say that the loss was good for us. No, I can't go along with that. I don't ever like to lose."

Buffalo was upended by the New York Jets and Joe Namath 20-10 last weekend in the wind and rain at New York.

O.J. Simpson, Buffalo's premier running back, goes into the final regular season with 1,052 yards rushing, 12 less than the Rams' Lawrence McCutcheon.

For Simpson, the 1968 Heisman Trophy winner from University of Southern California, it will be his first game at the Coliseum here since 1969. In '69, Simpson's rookie season, the Bills were smashed by the Rams 50-20 in an exhibition game.

Buffalo also will take a 9-4 record into the contest.

The 'Old Man' lifts Oakland to 27-23 win

OAKLAND (UPI) — "Old man" George Blanda, putting hope in the heart of every male over 40, threw a 28-yard touchdown pass and booted a pair of field goals Saturday night in helping the playoff-bound Oakland Raiders to a regular-season ending 27-23 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

The Raiders, who meet the two-time defending Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins next Saturday in the AFC playoffs, used four quarterbacks in finishing the season at 12-2, but it was the 47-year-old Blanda who thrilled a crowd of 45,840 plus a national television audience with his play late in the third quarter.

With the Raiders in front 17-9, Blanda came in with 5:10 remaining in the third quarter and connected with a scoring pass to Cliff Branch for the touchdown that put the game out of reach for the Cowboys.

It was the first touchdown pass thrown by Blanda since the opening game of the 1972 season and it caught the Cowboys completely by surprise since it came on the first play after Phil Villapiano recovered a fumble and ran it 27 yards to the Dallas 28.

The Raiders let Blanda, who doesn't even practice with the offense during the week, lead two more series and he wound up the second with a 35-yard field goal. Blanda, completing 25 years in professional football, booted a 31-yard field goal for Oakland's first score in the opening period.

Ken Stabler, the Raider's No. 1 quarterback, played only in the first half but he completed 11 of 17 throws for 131 yards and two touchdowns as Oakland opened up a 17-9 lead.

Walnut loses in overtime to Miraleste

Tommy Morgan's three-point play with 27 seconds left in the game gave Miraleste High a 59-58 overtime victory over Walnut High in the championship game of the Temple City Basketball Tournament.

With the score 59-56 and 27 seconds left, Morgan scored on a driving layup and was fouled by Jay Wetzel. The Miraleste forward sank the free throw, for his 16th point of the night, to give the champions a 59-56 lead.

Walnut's Tommy Thompson, who was named to the all-Tournament team, stole a pass and drove for a layin to pull the Mustangs to within a point, 59-58, with 20 seconds left. Miraleste committed a turnover with 14 seconds on the clock.

Walnut coach Bill Murray called time-out. When play resumed, the Mustangs brought the ball down court. Kelly Bowlin passed to Thompson who passed to Westzel. The Mustang center missed a last second shot attempt and Miraleste claimed the title.

Miraleste led 38-29 at intermission but Walnut cut the deficit to 49-47 after three periods. Bowlin scored on a jumper late in the fourth quarter to send the game into over time.

Miraleste's Brian McGee tallied 16 points and was voted the tourney's Most Valuable Player.

Four Mustangs scored in double figures with Ken Czarnecki (17), Bowlin (14), Wetzel (13 and Manning (10) pacing the team. Czarnecki and Thompson were named to the all-tourney team.

Gary wins easily but plays poorly

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

Garey High continued to play unimpressive basketball Saturday night despite a lopsided, 72-47, victory over Burroughs High of Ridgecrest in the Vikings' gym.

"Maybe we're trying to play too much as a team," said Garey coach Mike Wells, after his team notched its sixth straight win without a loss. "We're going down the floor and we're thinking team rather than having guys like Sonny (Baldez), Mac (Delbert McDonald), and Billy (Evans take advantage of their individual talents."

The Vikings play best when their tempo is fast and loose. But in their past four games conservatism has made them look sloppy and anything but the CIF champion contender they're capable of being.

Gary Carpenter (12), McDonald (12), Larry (14), and Evans (16) all finished the evening in double figures for Garey, consistently scoring 18, 18 19 and 17 point quarters. But the Vikings only played well in brief spurts against a team made up of junior varsity performers.

Burroughs (2-2) was minus four players from the football team (that outslugged Royal Oak, 48-41, Friday night in the CIF semifinals) while seven other players were suspended for an indefinite length of time, leaving one varsity player (center Terry Proffer) and seven JV players to play under the Burros' colors.

McDonald, playing less than three-quarters of the game, hauled down 14 rebounds, Carpenter, who's been out all week with teeth problems, had just nine boards and Larry had streaks of greatness while pulling down 13 caroms.

Evans was the most consistent performer on the court. Besides hitting eight-of-nine attempts for his 16 points, he contributed six steals and four assists.

Burroughs' top player was Mitch Stromen, who came off the bench to hit 12 points, while Bob Campbell had nine points and 10 rebounds.

"We didn't play well" continued Wells, "but I didn't want to run anything up on them . . . overall, I'm not down on the kids but I know we've go to do better. We'll find out how good we are Tuesday."

Wells referred to the San Dimas Tournament of Champions which opens Tuesday night. Garey tips the third annual tourney off with a 7 p.m. game against Palos Verdes High in La Verne College's Supertent.

Kings shut out

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Goalie Glenn Resch registered his first National Hockey League shutout as the New York Islanders defeated the Los Angeles Kings, 3-0, in an NHL game Saturday night.

It was the second straight road loss for the Kings, who had gone 11 previous games on the road without a loss. For Resch, it was his fourth consecutive start.

Robert Herwig, Hall of Famer dies of apparent heart attack

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Robert J. Herwig, member of the Football Hall of Fame and two-time All-America at the University of California, died Saturday of an apparent heart attack. He was 60 years old.

Herwig had been a football and baseball coach at the American River College and served as a counselor. He died after a brief illness.

Elected to the National Football Hall of Fame in 1964, Herwig played center for the University of California when he was picked as an All-America in 1935 and 1936. He also played guard in basketball.

Herwig finished out his college football career at the Berkeley campus by playing in the 1938 Rose Bowl when the University of California handed Alabama a 13-0 defeat.

He went on to serve in the Marine Corps during World War II and won the Navy Cross, Silver Star and Purple Heart with oak leaf cluster.

Later he coached football at Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo and the University of Arizona. He served as an adult parole officer with the California state Parole Authority before joining American River College.

He is survived by his wife Analee, and a daughter.

Traynor not late enough, paces Tritons over Poly

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO — Cal Poly just wishes Paul Traynor had missed practice completely this week instead of just being late.

Traynor, a 6-7 senior, is in his fourth season as the starting center for UC San Diego but he didn't start this weekend because he was late for a practice earlier in the week.

After sitting out the first 10 minutes here Saturday, Traynor came off the bench to score 22 points and grab 11 rebounds to pace UCSD to a 77-70 win over Poly for third place honors in the University of San Diego Invitational Basketball Tournament.

It was Poly's third consecutive loss without a victory and the prospects look dim for the future unless the three players who gain their eligibility in January can turn it around.

"I can't explain it," Poly coach Don Hogan said. "This team is as prepared as any team I have seen to play the games. It's just a matter of executing. I just hope these looses don't affect the players emotionally."

UCSD enjoyed a 45-40 lead at halftime but Poly went ahead early in the second half by outscoring the Tritons, 10-2, in the first five minutes of the second half.

The Broncos still enjoyed a three-point lead with 9:23 left when UCSD went ahead for good by scoring nine unanswered points.

George Calhoun's basket with 7:23 left put the Tritons ahead for good in the first part of a five-point play.

On the basket, Poly's Paul Newton was charged with a technical foul for vibrating the backboard. Steve Kircher missed the foul shot on the technical but the Tritons took advantage of getting the ball back when Lyle Smith converted a three-point play.

Traynor scored six points in the final two minutes to make sure UCSD, now 3-2, kept its lead.

The Tritons shot 52 per cent for the game in making 30 of 58 shots with Traynor connecting on nine-of-13. Poly hit on 30-of-71 for 42 per cent.

Newton paced Poly by scoring a season-high of 23 points and grabbing 15 rebounds. Bill Cantwell and Denny Weisse were also in double figures with 13 and 10 points apiece.

Poly again had turnover problems with 25 but UCSD had even more with 28.

The Broncs return to action Wednesday night at Cal State Fullerton in the final game of a brief December schedule.

Stags bow after making it look close

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Correspondent

Dave Wells' developing young Claremont-Mudd Stags made one look close Saturday night.

For a while, anyway.

The Stag basketball team entertained a Southern Utah State squad in the midst of a meandering road trip that will stop next in Montana. But the Thunderbirds figure to remember their stop in California for quite some time.

Southern Utah boosted its overall record to 3-2 with an 87-74 victory over Claremont, but things weren't all that sure well into the waning moments of the second half.

The Thunderbirds built a commanding 45-31 lead at halftime, thanks largely to a long run of Stag turnovers. Claremont couldn't put a dent into the lead until midway through the period when a flurry of Stag scores moved C-M to within six at 72-66.

But the drive sputtered when leading scorer Ray Rotolo retired from the game with his fifth personal foul near the end. Rotolo's 16 points paced Claremont scoring.

The Thunderbirds boasted a pair of top scorers in guard Gary Crosby and forward Steve Laing with 19 points apiece. Jim Wilding came off the bench to contribute 14 points, while forward Robert Lee chipped in with 11.

The Stags, meanwhile, took some solace in another impressive performance by sophomore guard Bob Smith, whose 12 points put him in second place in the Claremont scoring.

Wells also chose to give a pair of promising freshmen experience late in the contest and forward Stu DuVall responded with four points while center Frank Tyler scored five points and played impressive defense.

The Stag attack was hampered by 20 turnovers, the majority of which were committed during a first half Southern Utah blitz which saw the Thunderbirds fly out to a quick 29-10 lead before the Stags were overcome by steady ball-handling.

The loss dropped Claremont's early season record to 1-6.

The Stags will host Point Loma College Tuesday at Ducey Gym, and California Baptist on Thursday before the Christmas vacation layoff.

Leopards score 'biggest victory'

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

La Verne College scored what basketball coach Art Bias called, "our biggest win in two years," Saturday night.

The Leopards scored the last 10 points of the game to defeat Westmont, 72-62 in the Supertent.

"This is the first time this team has beaten a contender for the District 111 title," the happy Bias said. "We had some good wins last year. But, although we came close, we never beat a contender."

Westmont's front line averaged 6-6 and the guards were each 6-3.

The Leos led most of the game although the score was tied nine times in the second half. La Verne had led by as many as 10 points in the first half thanks to the deadeye shooting of Don Carter and Dave Castenada.

Carter was five-for-five from the floor in the first half for all of his 10 points. Castenada, who led both teams with 24 points, had 12 in each half and missed only four shots all night. The 5-10 guard hit on 11 of 15 field goal attempts.

After leading, 30-20 with 3:17 left in the half, the Leopards sagged a little and saw their lead cut to six points, 34-28, at the half.

Carter, who had suffered a whack on the head in the first half began having vision problems at halftime. A doctor was summoned and he did not play the second half although his vision was okay by the end of the game.

The Leos stood around too much early in the second half and Westmont caught them at 36. The tall Warriors took their only lead, 40-38 on Mike Macy's bucket with 14:09 left in the game.

Castenada tied the game and put the Leos ahead again on two successive baskets. Macy and Mark Miller, the two leading Westmong scorers were picking up fouls.

La Verne moved out in front, 60-52, but the Warriors caught them and tied the game, 62-62 on Miller's free throw with 2:23 remaining in the game.

Bill Rockwood was fouled and sank two free throws to put the Leopards in front to stay. Macy picked up his fifth foul but Mark Gibson missed the free throw. Tim Gillette made his ninth and biggest rebound and put the ball through the hoop to make it 66-62 with 30 seconds left and the Leos were home free.

Rockwood had 15 rebounds and four clutch free throws.

The Leos, now 4-3, do not play until Saturday when they take on Toluca University of Mexico in an exhibition game. Westmont, 2-3, flies out of Los Angeles today for Seattle and five more games on the road.

Ed Sytsma scored 24 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and was named to the all-tournament team as Ontario Christian routed tourney-host Western Christian High, 65-34, to capture its first tournament championship ever.

Webb High scored an easy 49-35 win over Maranatha to take the consolation title in the Western Christian tourney while Pacific Christian finished in third place.

OCHS led 49-18 after three quarters as WCHS was held to just eight points in the second and third periods. Sytsma led the Knights in the final stanza as the 6-5 center tallied 13 of his 24 markers. Forward Jon VanderSchaaf added 10 points and was named Most Valuable Player of the tourney. He averaged 18 points a game for the three days.

Webb stalled the final four minutes in the game to beat Maranatha for the consolation title, 49-35.

Craig Young had 17 points for the Gauls while Wally Pitts tallied nine points and had 13 rebounds.

Damien High, led by all-tournament performer Cornell Kasbergen, downed Bishop Amat, 50-43, to capture the consolation championship of the Bassett-Bishop Amat Basketball Tournament Saturday night.

Kasbergen scored 10 points and played his best defensive game of the year for the Spartans. The win was a team effort as Damien trailed by a point with 47 seconds to play. Suddenly the Spartans came to life and scored eight straight points to record the win.

John Pignotti had 16 and Bill Duffy added 10 points.

Citrus wins; Chaffey falls again

Citrus College boosted its record to 4-3 with a 77-54 win over Antelope Valley Saturday night, while cross-valley rival Chaffey dropped its sixth in a row in a rout to Fullerton, 106-63.

Ordale Newkirk and Paul Walls paced Citrus with 14 points apiece. Both came off the bench to do it. Newkirk also had 11 rebounds and starting center Mike Jantz pulled down nine.

Gary Tomlinson and Vince Elizondo scored 13 points each for the losers.

Chaffey's Russ Williams led all scorers with 23 points but Fullerton, which upped its record to 5-3 was in command all the way. Bob Holgate's 20 points pepped the winners.

Williams, the only starter back from last year, hit 10 of 16 from the field. He's averaging 23 a game for the season.

Fullerton had a big bulge in rebounding, 49-28 and shot at a 60 per cent clip from the field by making 50 of 82 of their shots.

Chaffey, Citrus and Fullerton return to action Wednesday in Chaffey's annual invitational basketball tournament.

FINALLY STOPPED — Lynn Swann of the Pittsburgh Steelers carries a punt back 69 yards to the Cincinnati 18-yard line in Saturday's NFL game in Pittsburgh. Steelers beat Bengals, 27-3.

Steelers whip Cincy in a playoff warmup

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Terry Bradshaw, with spectacular support from a pair of rookie wide receivers and running back Franco Harris, hurled two touchdown passes to lead the AFC Central Division champion Pittsburgh Steelers to a 27-3 victory Saturday over the Cincinnati Bengals in their final regular season game.

In the first period, Lynn Swann, the Steelers' 1974 first round draft choice, ran back Dave Green's pudnt 69 yards to the Bengals' 18 and four plays later Bradshaw tossed five yards to John Stallworth in the end zone, marking the rookie wide receiver's first pro touchdown.

With 3:40 gone in the second period, Bradshaw passed into the flat to Stallworth, who twisted and ran for 56 yards to the Cincinnati 21. On the third play after the run, Bradshaw lobbed an easy seven-yard scoring pass to Jerry Mullins, a tackle eligible on the play.

Two seconds remained in the first half when Roy Gerela, the Steelers' leading scorer, kicked a 27-yard field goal to raise his team's advantage to 17-0. L.C. Greenwood had initiated the drive with a fumble recovery at the Bengal 40.

Cincinnati's only score came with 4:28 gone in the third period on a 32-yard field goal by Horst Muhlmann.

The score came after Harris, who rushed for 79 yards to post his second 1,000 yard season in his three years with the Steelers, fumbled and the Bengals' Ken Johnson recovered at the Pittsburgh 22.

Harris crossed the 1,000-yard barrier later in the quarter with a 14-yard run that was a highlight of an 82-yard drive to the Steelers' final touchdown.

Reggie Harrison capped the march with his first pro touchdown on a one-yard run.

During the drive, Bradshaw was badly winded on a keeper play and although uninjured, Joe Gilliam replaced him.

A 34-yard Swann punt return and the passing of Gilliam moved the Steelers within range for Gerela's 42-yard field goal with about four minutes left to play. Swann's punt return yardage for the season was pushed to 577, second best ever in the NFL. It was 35 yards short of the all-time record held by Oakland's Roger Bird.

The Steelers wound up the regular season 10-3-1 and meet the Buffalo Bills here next Sunday in a first round AFC playoff game. The Bengals finished their season with a 7-7 record.

Central Michigan clobbers Delaware in Camillia Bowl

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Running back Dick Dunham scored a 68-yard touchdown on the first play of the game and bolted for three more scores Saturday, giving Central Michigan University the NCAA College Division II title with a 54-14 triumph over the University of Delaware in the Camellia Bowl.

Versatile Chippewa quarterback Mike Franckowiak had an excellent day of passing to split end Matt Means, including a 42-yard toss on a fake punt attempt that set up a touchdown by Dunham from the four-yard line on the next play.

Dunham rushed for 105 yards in the first half and left the Chippewas with a 40-8 halftime bulge in the nationally televised contest.

Central Michigan tailback Walter Hodges scored twice on runs of one and two yards. For Hodges it was the 11th straight game in which he rushed for more than 100 yards as he carried 27 times for 112 yards.

Big crowd stays away as Vikes win

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Fran Tarkenton threw two touchdown passes and Bob Berry added two more in the second half Saturday, leading the NFC Central champion Minnesota Vikings to a 35-15 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

The victory sent the Vikings into the playoffs with a 10-4 record, while the Chiefs finished their most miserable season ever at 5-9.

A paltry crowd of 35,480 watched in 42-degree temperatures. A total of 36,934 ticket-holders stayed away, which narrowly missed the noshow record of 40,202 set at Atlanta Dec. 1.

Tarkenton played only in the first half, and, although he wasn't able to manage a first down until 7:42 left in the second quarter, flipped a pair of scoring tosses to rookie Sam McCullum in the last three minutes of the half.

Berry, taking over in the second half and hitting his first nine passes, engineered a 65-yard drive that took 12 plays and ate up the first 7:14 of the third quarter. Berry capped the march with a seven-yard pitch to Ed Marinaro, which opened the Viking lead to 21-12.

After Jan Stenerud pulled the Chiefs within 21-15 with a 29-yard field goal on the first play of the fourth quarter, Berry took the Vikings 58 yards in 10 plays for their fourth touchdown. He completed four of five passes and closed out the drive with a three-yard scoring toss to Oscar Reed.

Brent McClanahan capped the scoring for Minnesota with a six-yard run with 59 seconds left in the game.

Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson sat out the second half with a bruised knee, allowing third-year pro Dean Carlson to see his first regular-season action ever.

Tarkenton twice lofted touchdown passes in the waning minutes of the first half. But in his haste to get a third, Emmitt Thomas sprinted 73 yards with an interception to cut the Vikings' margin to 14-12 at intermission.

Tarkenton flipped a 34-yarder to McCullum with 3:01 left in the half for a 7-6 Minnesota lead. The Vikings retrieved the ball with two minutes left and Tarkenton marched them 52 yards to their second touchdown. His 10-yard pass to McCullum came with 33 seconds remaining.

Wally Hilgenberg immediately picked off a Dawson pass at the Minnesota 40 with 19 seconds to go. Tarketon, trying for the kill, tried to hit McCullum on a sideline pattern, but Thomas intercepted and weaved 73 yards for a touchdown after time had run out.

Stenerud, who earlier had kicked 37 and 32-yard field goals, missed the extra-point attempt.

Napoles wins with easy KO over Saldano

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Jose "Mantequilla" Napoles of Mexico, an "old" man by some ring standards, demolished his young Argentine challenger, 21-year-old Horacion Saldano, with a surprisingly fast and easy third round knockout Saturday to retain his world welterweight (WBC) crown at the Mexico City Sports Palace.

The 34-year old Cuban-Mexican champion swirled all over the Argentine with a combination of more than 20 punches to the head and body for the third round kayo in a fight scheduled for 15 rounds.

It was Napoles 13th successful defense of his title.

After he regained his senses, Saldano —his eyes blackened by the heavy punishment meted out by Napoles' fists from the opening round confessed:

"Napoles belies his age. He's so fast—I've never seen anything like it."

The wily champion, making the second defense this year of his crown, dominated the chunky Argentine from the opening bell.

In the third round he chased the Tucuman-born Saldano across the ring, landing punch after punch as the Argentine back-pedalled desperately, trying to dodge the champion's sure-short blows.

With about 20 seconds remaining in the round, Napoles caught Saldano with a fierce punch to the head.

The Argentine fell back under a rain of blows that carried from Napoles' corner to the other side of the ring.

Then he fell on his back.

NFL report

Cardinals, Vikings go after title

By United Press International

The 1974 National Football League season winds up today with only one playoff pairing unsettled but a lot of coaching jobs hanging in the balance.

All eight playoff berths have been filled and all that remains is determining the National Conference Eastern champion and wild card club for pairings.

The St. Louis Cardinals are tied with the Washington Redskins at 9-4 entering today's finale and a Cardinal victory over the New York Giants would send them against the Central Division champion Vikings in Minnesota at 10 a.m. PST on Saturday. Washington would then be at Los Angeles, the Western winner, at 1 p.m. PST on Sunday.

Should the Cardinals lose and Washington defeat Chicago, they would face Los Angeles and the Redskins would take on Minnesota. If they end in a tie, St. Louis is the division champion because the Cardinals beat Washington twice in regular season play.

In the American Conference, Miami, the Eastern champion, will be at Western winner Oakland on Saturday at 1 p.m. PST and Central champion Pittsburgh plays host to wild card entry Buffalo at 10 a.m. PST Sunday.

While the last pairing is being set, several coaches could be making their last appearances.

Baltimore's Joe Thomas, who took over for Howard Schnellenberger early in the season, could be stepping down to concentrate on his general manager duties. The Colts, 2-9, play host to the New York Jets today.

Nick Skorich, who saw Cleveland post its worst record in the club's history, 4-9, could be out with the Browns and Dan Devine will learn his fate with the Green Bay Packers Monday. Cleveland closes out against Houston, which did a complete turnaround under Sid Gillman this season, while the Packers, 6-7, face Atlanta.

The Falcons fired Coach Norm Van Brocklin in midseason and his replacement, Marion Campbell, has been unable to stop the slide. Atlanta is 2-11 and has lost six in a row.

Abe Gibron, whose Bears face Washington, also could be through, as Chicago again is last in the NFC Central Division with a 4-9 mark and Dick Nolan, whose San Francisco 49ers were expected to battle Los Angeles in the NFC West, also may be on his way out after a 5-8 season. The 49ers close out against New Orleans.

Also to be determined today is the top spot in January's college player draft. Three clubs—the Giants, Baltimore and Atlanta—are in line for it, with the worst records in the league. The Giants' top pick, however, belongs to the Dallas Cowboys, who also made the first choice in the last draft after a trade with Houston.

In other games today, Denver is at San Diego, New England at Miami, Detroit at Philadelphia, and Buffalo at Los Angeles.

Ex-Claremont High stars to face Japan collegiates

By PHIL ROCHE
P-B Staff Writer

A PAIR OF FORMER Claremont High golf stars will be on hand when the second U.S.—Japan Students Goodwill Golf Matches will be played Wednesday and Thursday at Corona National Golf Club.

Jim Porter and Jon Fiedler, who played their prep golf under Coach Ron Skaggs at Claremont, are among the featured players from Southern California selected to play against Japan's outstanding collegiates.

Porter is the Southern Cal Amateur champ and plays his golf now at UCLA. Fiedler is one of the USC mainstays. Both are superb players and demonstrated their talent for golf during their high school days in the Pomona Valley.

Fiedler incidentally attended school in Japan before arriving at Claremont High for his junior year. There he teamed up with Porter to form a great one-two combination.

Eighteen players will compete for each side in the 36-hole competition, and 15 low scores will count each day to determine the team champion.

The U.S. team won last year's competition, 85½ to 14½, using 40 players on each side and a different scoring system. The Japanese golfers were at a disadvantage because of limited play and cold weather (35 degrees) when they left Tokyo for the United States.

The Southland team will include former National Amateur champ Craig Stadler, Jim Ruziecki, Paul Rekers, Scott Simpson and Doug Ruland of USC; Jerry Wisz, So-Cal Intercollegiate champ from UC Irvine; John Bendickson and Jimmy Jones, San Diego State; Chris Voges, USIU; Gary Ramsden, Cal State L.A.; Tony Campregher; Cal State Long Beach, Dan Pouliot, Cal State Northridge, Ken Riley, UC Riverside; Fiedler and Porter.

DIAMOND BAR'S Bob Risch proved at the recent 1974 Qualifying School for Approved Tournament Players that he's one of the finest players in the Southland. Risch finished second in the eight-round tournament, which is the testing ground for future touring pros.

Only 16 players qualified. Risch earned $3,000 in the eight rounds, four of which were played at Silverado Country Club in Napa, Calif. and four at the Canyon C.C. in Palm Springs.

Risch shot rounds of 71, 74, 71, 74, 68, 70, 76, and 69-573 — to finish one stroke behind the leader Fuzzy Zoeller of New Albany, Ind.

Risch is 27, stands 6-1, weights 195. He attended El Camino Junior College and USC, where he was an All America selection in his senior year. He was U.S. National Public Links champ in 1970 and won the state amateur in 1970.

HALL OF FAMERS Joe DiMaggio and Otto Graham agreed today to play in their Seventh American Airlines Golf Classic, Jan. 31-Feb. 2 at Canyon Hotel.

As golf partners, in the tournament which pairs a baseball and a pro football star, the tandem has never finished worse than 10th in the 54-hole tournament. Their best effort was second place last year and in 1971 the Dimaggio-Graham duo came in third after a five-team playoff for first place.

Tournament Chairman Thomas J. Ross Jr. said the two sports idols have won about $20,000 and a number of trophies. They donated the money to charity.

"Otto and I are about due to win this tournament," said the former Yankee Clipper. "This year, we're coming out swinging for the fences."

THE DEADLINE FOR entering amateur qualifying for the Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament is Dec. 20 for the Dec. 30 qualifying event.

Amateurs with a 2-or-less handicap will complete for five sponsor's exemptions at Hillcrest Country Club. Entry fee is $40 and includes the qualifying round, plus two tickets for the Open.

Applications are available from the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce, 404 S. Bixel St., L.A., 90017. The top five finishers will join a field of professional golf's finest players at Riviera Country Club, Feb. 20-23.

TWO OF THE GREATEST quarterbacks ever to play football Johnny Unitas and Otto Graham, will lead seven other outstanding QBs into action in the $30,000 American Airlines Golf Classic, announced tournament chairman Thomas Ross Jr.

Jim Hart, St. Louis Cardinals; Craig Morton, New York Giants; Jim Plunkett, New England Patriots; Dan Pastorini, Houston Oilers; Archie Manning, New Orleans Saints; Bob Lee, Atlanta Falcons, and Ken Anderson, Cincinnati Bengals, will join their baseball partners Jan. 31-Feb. 2 at the Canyon Hotel Racquet & Golf Club.

First prize in the 54-hole best ball competition is $10,000.

JOANNE CARNER, the strawberry blonde from Lake Worth, Fla., swept the Ladies Professional Golf Association's three top honors in 1975—Player of the Year, Vare Trophy winner and leading money winner.

Mrs. Carner, a five-time U.S. Women's Amateur Champion was picked the LPGA's top player after winning five events en route to setting an all-time money record of $87,094 for lady pros.

She is only the third LPGAer to be picked as Player of the Year since its inception in 1966. Kathy Whitworth, of Richardson, Tex., won it six times and Sandra Haynie, of Dallas, earned the award in 1970.

Mrs. Carner was trying to become the first woman golfer to earn $100,000 in a single season, but ran out of tournaments. In addition to the tour earnings, she picked up another $4,342 in foreign events and pro-ams to bring her total 1974 earnings to $91,436.

This does not include any money she may have won in Australia last week in the Colgate Far East Open, where she finished out of the top 20 or in a two-day pro-am in Hawaii this weekend.

Howard Cosell is going from Monday night football to Tuesday morning golf? That's right.

Coswell will be the honorary tournament chairman, along with Arnold Palmer, of the fourth annual Day With The All-Americans Golf Tournament, announced general chairmen William Denis Fugazy and Lee Iacocca, president, Ford Motor Co.

The 18-hole charity event, featuring current and former All-American collegiate golfers, will be played Tuesday, Feb. 4, at the Canyon Hotel Racquet & Golf Club in Palm Springs.

Tournament chairman Alfred di Scipio, senior vice president of Magnavox Co., said the entry fee for amateur contestants is $1,000, which is tax deductible. Three amateur partners will play with an All American in the two best balls of foursome competition.

"If you're a golfer, this is a cause that your conscience and your heart can live with," said Coswell. "Proceeds from the tournament go to the All-American Collegiate Golf Foundation Scholarship Fund. It will help some deserving young men to get a full, four-year education while giving them a chance to develop their golfing ability.

"Thus far, $140,000 has been channeled in that direction, including the newly formed Jackie Robinson Scholarship for a black student golfer.

"And maybe, just maybe, one of them will turn out to be the Arnold Palmer of the 1980s."

Santa Anita meeting begins Dec. 26

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Chris Evert, Agitate and Lightning Mandate are among the 78 nominations for Santa Anita's 1975 $100,000 added Charles H. Strub Stakes, the first hundred grander of the thoroughbred racing season.

Santa Anita's 40th annual 76day meeting gets under way Dec. 26 and runs through April 8.

The Charles H. Strub Feb. 9 concludes the Strub series for 4 year-olds, following the $50,000-added Malibu Stakes and the $75,000-added San Fernando Stakes.

In the 22-year history of the series, only Round Table, Hillsdale and Ancient Title have won all three crowns.

Chris Evert swept the Triple Crown for fillies in New York and overwhelmed Miss Musket in their $350,000 match race last season, becoming the biggest distaffer money earner in a season ever with more than $500,000 in winnings.

Agitate won three hundred-granders in 1974 and Lightning Mandate is unbeaten in seven lifetime starts.

Others entered in the Strub Stakes are trainer Charlie Whittingham's entries of Stardust Mel, Snow Knight and Trojan Bronze; Holding Pattern, Money Lender, Destroyer and On To Glory.

Also part of the 1975 Santa Anita racing program will be the renewal of the Hillside Distance Series, 14 marathon events to be run over the track's hillside-infield turf course. Eight are to be run at 1¼ miles with the others set for 1½ miles.

The series is for horses which have run for $20,000, $16,000, $12,500 and $10,000 claming tags in 1974 and have not won a race in a higher division.

Offered will be $172,000 in purse money and possible invitations for the top performers to the $125,000 San Juan Capistrano

Vols, Terps battle in Liberty Bowl

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The Liberty Bowl opens Monday night with an ecumenical prayer and, if past performances hold true, closes with Tennessee and Maryland fighting to the final gun on the football field.

The Tennessee Volunteers, specialists this year in comebacks, may have perfected their technique at their last Liberty Bowl visit. In 1971, it took a controversial fumble recovery and a last-minute touchdown for the Vols to whip Arkansas 14-13.

To defeat powerful Maryland the Vols may need help this year from the four clergymen who will lead an expected capacity crowd of 50,100 at Memphis Memorial Stadium in prayer at the start of the nationally televised game.

"Maryland is one of the best teams Tennessee has met in a long time," Vol coach Bill Battle said. "I hope our players are ready for one of their better games because that is what will be needed."

Maryland coach Jerry Claiborne agrees that his Terrapins, led by defensive tackle and Outland Trophy winner Randy White, are "really good."

"Randy is the best I've ever seen," Claiborne said. "You don't find many 250 pounders who can run the 40 in 4.6."

White, expected to go near the top in the National Football League draft, isn't the only star on the Atlantic Coast Conference championship team which finished 8-3. Other standouts include quarterback Bob Avellini, receivers Frank Russell and Walter White and tailback Louis Carter.

Avellini completed 112 of 189 passes for 1,658 yards and seven touchdowns. Russell caught 32 passes for 404 yards and White 27 for 440 yards and three touchdowns. Carter gained 991 yards on 224 carries for a 4.4 yard average.

But Claiborne says observers shouldn't be fooled by Tennessee's 6-3-2 record and 2-3-1 finish in the Southeastern Conference. He says the Vols won't be a pushover.

"Tennessee is a strong team from an exceptionally tough conference," the Maryland coach said. "We know what we face, of course, in Condredge Holloway and Stanley Morgan."

Holloway is the senior miracle worker who quarterbacks the Vols. Morgan is an elusive sophomore tailback.

In the first game of the season, Holloway went out with an injury and the Vols fell behind UCLA 17-10. In the fourth quarter, the Tennessee quarterback returned to lead an 80-yard touchdown drive that resulted in a 17-all tie.

Against underdog Tulsa, the score was tied 10-all with time running out. Morgan returned a punt 48 yards for a touchdown and a win.

With the Liberty Bowl berth at stake, Morgan ran for two touchdowns to give the Vols a 24-7 win over Kentucky and, in the final game of the season, Holloway again completed a two-point conversion pass to tie Peach Bowl-bound Vanderbilt 21-all.

Worst disaster

The September, 1900, hurricane that hit the port city of Galveston, Tex., killed between 6,000 and 8,000 persons, the worst natural disaster in United States history.

'The Towering Inferno'

Disaster film a real scorcher

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There are enough thrills in "The Towering Inferno" to last movie-goers a lifetime.

There are enough stars in the cast to illuminate show business.

The real star, however, is a holocaust in the world's tallest building.

Producer Irwin Allen, past master of epic disaster pictures ("The Poseidon Adventure") spent $14 million on "The Towering Inferno" and came away with the most brilliant film of its kind.

Fire and water rage through the film unabated against the heroics of Steve McQueen and Paul Newman, both of whom are at their best in the starring roles. Curiously, they are most effective in the scenes they play together; McQueen as a fire chief and Newman as the building's architect.

The human dramas played out against the terror of fire are quickly, deftly established.

The audience becomes involved with William Holden, Susan Blakely and Richard Chamberlain. One cares about the fragile relationship between Fred Astaire and Jennifer Jones.

Outstanding performances by Faye Dunaway and Robert Wagner add further dimension.

But the omnipresence of the monstrous fire overshadows all.

It appears to have a life of its own, beginning with a small electrical spark. Thereafter, as the various human plots unfold, director John Guillermin allows us flashes of the flames as they grow and boil and roar their way through the tower.

Each step is precise, logical and horrifying.

Allen, who directed the action sequences, has taken meticulous care to detail. Only in long shots of the tower are special effects miniatures used, and they are difficult even for the knowing to detect.

A variety of individuals and organizations have sought to have certain elements in the picture expunged, and a good many never wanted "Towering Inferno" to be made at all.

Unlike some disaster pictures, this one deals with the very real and present dangers of the inadequacies of skyscrapers to protect tenants from the savage consequences of fire. Example: Sao Paulo, 1974.

When the excitement dies down and audiences leave the theater it is almost certain high-rise dwellers will have second thoughts about living above the seventh floor. Office workers in skyscrapers, too, will never quite feel the same about riding elevators so high.

L.V. composer issues record of two songs

La Verne composer-guitarist Thom Hopkins recently recorded two of his compositions, the jazz-rock work, "Do You Own Your Own Soul?" and "Time of the Harvest," a country-rock tune.

The 23-year-old musician recorded all the music on two guitars, electronic drums and bass, and did the vocals. He plans to distribute the record through his own company, T.A.H. Records.

Hopkins composed his first rock tune, "Oil Can," at the age of 12. He began his career as guitarist with the Bach Five, and later was lead guitar for Kingdom. He has performed in Las Vegas, Nev., and throughout Southern California, including appearances at Chaffey College, Mt. San Antonio College, the Icehouse in Pasadena, the Difference in West Covina, and Intercity in Covina.

Two exhibits slated at Wight Art Gallery

The works of two French-born artists will go on exhibition Jan. 14 in the Wight Art Gallery at UCLA.

The two exhibits are a retrospective of prints and drawings by Andre Dunoyer de Segonzac, and sculptures and drawings by Gaston Lachaise. Both shows continue to Feb. 23.

More than 75 sculptures and drawings from 32 American museums and private collectors make up the most comprehensive exhibition yet afforded Lachaise. The exhibition includes most of the works selected by the artist himself for the Museum of Modern Art Exhibition of 1935 and adds the subsequently finished pieces as well as a number of works considered too controversial at that time to be included.

In addition, one piece, "Nude with Sun Hat," which was found in an unopened mold after the artist's death, has been cast for exhibition now. This exhibition is the selection of works through which the artist would have expected to have been remembered, according to Gerald Nordland, director of the Frederick S. Wight Art Gallery, UCLA, who organized the show. First shown at the Herbert F. Johnson Art Museum, Cornell University, the exhibition will be seen at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago, Ill., and the Walker Art Center, Minneapolis, Minn., following its showing in Los Angeles. A lavishly illustrated 200-page book, "Gaston Lachaise: The Man and His Work," by Nordland, has been published by George Braziller, N.Y., to function as the exhibition catalogue.

Born in 1882, the son of Paris-born Marie Barre and Jean Lachaise, woodcarver and cabinetmaker, Lachaise learned to handle his father's heavy wood chisels in the Paris studio before he was old enough to enter school.

At 13 he began his training under Aube and Moncel at the Ecoloe Bernard Palissy, one of Europe's great training grounds. He completed the four-year program in three years and was accepted, at 16, into the Academie Nationale des Beaux-Arts.

Lachaise distinguished himself during his years at the Beaux-Arts by qualifying for exhibition in the Paris Salon on four occasions and by placing repeatedly among the top 20 candidates of 300 for the coveted Prix de Rome.

The Segonzac exhibition has been organized by the Grunwald Center for the Graphic Arts as a tribute to the artist who died only recently at the age of 90.

A letter from President Gerald R. Ford was received recently by the students of Geraldine Boyk's class at Roynon School in La Verne.

The combination fourth through 6th grade class has been studying nutrition and is making its own cookbook. In the process they realized how much more expensive the ingredients have become lately.

A student in the class suggested that it would be a good idea to ask President Ford for help. Agreeing, each student wrote a letter telling how the students felt about inflation in general and the high price of food in particular. The students each asked him to do his best ot help people so there wouldn't be so many Americans hungry. They also made suggestions on how the government could save money and lower prices.

The class received a letter, on White House stationery from the President which said in part, "You are never too young to take part in working for a better America. I have great faith in our nation's young people and I hope you never lose the willingness to act when you believe you can help. With your spirit and energy the future is bright indeed!"

Mail carrier cited for home fire heroic deed

Montclair postal clerk Dave Christy Jr. will have a little merrier Christmas this year with a $100 U.S. Government bonus check and a certificate of achievement for saving a Montclair family's home from being destroyed by fire on Oct. 3.

Thanks to Christy, the W.D. Smith family of 4362 Alamitos St. will have a joyous holiday as well, for on Oct. 3, Christy, then a postman, spotted gray smoke coming out of a kitchen window of the Smith home as he was making his deliveries. Christy looked through the window of the home and saw flames leaping out of the smoke.

He quickly ran to the door and began pounding on it to warn any of the family that might be inside. Christy after running around the house and finding no one home ran to neighbors and had them call the fire department. The fire department arrived minutes later as Christy walked down the street routinely delivering the rest of the mail.

Firemen were able to contain the blaze before the fire spread into other rooms of the home and caused greater damage.

Tony Zangri, Montclair postmaster, when notified of the incident, informed the Post Office Department which in turn presented Christy with a special achievement award "in recognition of notable performance" and a $100 Christmas bonus check.

Toronto's $25 million transit plan — Ffft

TORONTO (UPI) — It's a story with a warning for all big cities searching for radical eyepopping solutions to urban transportation problems.

It is the story of how the Ontario government was going to thrust Toronto, Canada's second largest city after Montreal, into the 21st century with the world's most advanced rapid transit system —trains whooshing along on a ribbon of air, without noise, without drivers.

For two years the government, led by Premier William Davis, kept up a propaganda blitz.

Davis hailed the system as "one of the most exciting advances" in the history of transportation and indicated it would form the cornerstone of a blueprint to beat a growing commuter crisis.

The cost: about $1.3 billion, including smaller systems for Ottawa, Canada's national capital, and another Ontario city.

Davis, an avowed opponent of auto expressways, triumphantly was named transit man of the year by the American Transit Association. Everything looked rosy.

Suddenly, shatteringly, the entire project derailed.

As political opponents jeered, Transportation Minister John Rhodes announced cancellation of a $25 million test program in Toronto after the West German government and a Munich engineering firm, Krauss Maffei, abruptly abandoned development plans.

The plan centered on manufacture of "magnetic levitation" trains carrying 20,000 commuters an hour on a cushion of air above a network of elevated guideways. Trains and stations would be fully automated, the trains controlled by a central computer and the stations monitored by closed-circuit television cameras.

The idea was not new. Sixty years ago Winston Churchill saw a demonstration of a model system and reportedly marveled: "It's the most wonderful thing I have ever seen."

In 1924, a vehicle powered with a levitation device built in Jersey City, N. J., reached a speed of nine miles an hour. But interest waned until experiments began again during World War II.

Then in 1972 the Ontario government leaped into the act, announcing the visionary plans for the system at a jazzy public relations-style presentation at the Ontario Science Center. But from the beginning, observers were skeptical and objections grew steadily.

Even before the West Germans dropped the project, Ontario authorities were reportedly losing patience with their Munich partners because an experimental vehicle could not climb a hill or go around a corner on a test track without malfunctioning.

Professor Stuart Robinson of the University of Toronto, a specialist on magnetic levitation and a former member of a government advisory committee, said: "I always felt it was a highly suspect system in terms of operating costs.

"It would be very expensive in terms of electrical energy, using anywhere from four to 10 times the amount of energy used by a subway, streetcar or other rail vehicle."

Robertson cited two questions as paramount: At what cost can a workable system be developed, if at all? And would it be economical enough to operate anywhere?

"If you took long enough and spent enough money, it would go around a track somehow," Robertson said. "But what would that alone prove?"

Meanwhile, Transportation Minister Rhodes says many North American cities need something like it to meet their transit problems. For the moment, however, they can look to no lead from Ontario.

Government officials are critically examining all aspects of the system to see whether there is anything to be salvaged. Most observers believe there isn't.

Already the government has been forced to scrap a 2.5-mile pilot system planned to dazzle and delight visitors to the Canadian National Exhibition, the nation's largest fair, in 1975.

Mining interests benefiting by economic recession

NEW YORK (UPI) — The dwindling supplies and skyrocketing costs of raw materials are creating a curious economic reversal in the world. They also are stimulating interest in the economics and technology of mining.

Chairman Gabriel Hauge of Manufacturers Hanover Corp., the New York bank holding company, noted the economic reversal recently. He said competition for sources of materials is starting to replace competition for markets in the world.

"The frozen wealth of Siberia may be developed by resource hungry Japanese and American capital," Hauge said. "Importers of raw materials are exporting processing plants and factories to sources of cheaper materials, cheaper energy and less rigorous ideas about environmental problems."

Emory Ayers, a management consultant who works in the mining field, said there is a tremendous interest now in reopening mines closed years ago because "seat of the pants" operators could no longer run them profitably. Ayers was talking specifically about metal mines but the same thing is true in coal mining —even though the cost of opening or reopening a coal mine has increased dramatically in recent years.

Jarvis Cecil, a vice president of Consolidation Coal Co. of Pittsburgh said it would cost $55 million today to open a new coal mine in West Virginia that might have cost $15 million to open in the mid-1960s.

But Ayers' principal point was that, with the exception of a few big companies, metal mining is economically a backward industry even though its scientific technology generally is good. He insisted there are shutdown metal mines all over North America that could be operated profitably if their owners had the economic information and sound management techniques to match the available mining technology.

"The metal mining industry," he said, "has been extremely slow to apply modern managerial tools. One reason for this is that most management consultants and most highly trained business executives have a distaste for mining.

"You cannot run a mine thousands of miles away successfully sitting behind a desk in New York," he said. "You have to visit the mine frequently and may have to take your family to live there for considerable periods, cut off from all the usual comforts and pleasures of civilization."

As a result of this remote control operation, mining companies tend to be resistant to new business ideas, he said, although not to new technology for extracting and processing ore.

A simple example of this, Ayers said, is that the minicomputer which now does so many things in so many industries, is hardly known in the mining world.

He said the mini-computer could be put to work easily at the mine site since its use doesn't involve expensive and often unreliable transmission of data over a long distance to a central computer. It would give the mine management people data on which to base truly intelligent business decisions. The blunt fact, Ayers said, is that mining companies, especially smaller companies, usually don't have any information their business to enable them to make intelligent business decisions.

"The executives don't even look on themselves as businessmen—only as mining men," Ayers said.

The Inflation Fighter

Pick a temperature and stick to it in your home. Generally about 70 degrees is comfortable during the day, although individual factors such as body differences, house structure and the sunlight a room gets will cause variations.

If you lower the thermostat at night and load on the blankets you'll see a difference in your heating bill. Setting the thermostat down 10 degrees for eight hours can reduce your heating costs by 10 per cent.

Since ceramic, glass and stainless steel dishes retain heat better than other materials, you can lower your oven setting 25 degrees when baking with these dishes.

When using your surface units, carefully choose the right-sized pan for the unit. The bottom should cover the heating element, but not extend more than an inch over the edge. This will minimize the amount of energy which escapes into the air.

If the pot is too large for the surface unit, it will heat unevenly. The heat will reflect down to the porcelain top of the stove and eventually craze it.

Run the air conditioner in your car for a fe wminutes every three weeks or so during the winter months.

This lubricates the unit's seals and prevents it from drying out and cracking. You may save yourself an expensive repair bill the next summer.

Don't let a faucet leak—especially the hot one. A leak that will fill an ordinary cup in 10 minutes will waste 3,280 gallons a year.

The dripping faucet will also overwork the water heater, can erode valve seats and often causes unsightly sink stains around the drain which may last the life of the sink.

Most important, it's so easy to prevent or fix. Usually the problem can be corrected by simply replacing a washer.

If you're doing a large quantity of laundry it makes a lot of sense to sort it wisely—not only by color, but by soil levels. Then select your wash time to match the problem—washing longer than necessary wastes energy.

The same holds true with the dryer. It's a good idea to sort the wash by thickness so you won't have to run an additional cycle for only one or two slow drying items.

Eva Peron en Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Una escuadra de soldados marcho hacia un edificio de ladrillos gris en la capital Argentina hace 19 anos, se apodero del ataud abierto de Eva Peron, y comenzo casi dos decadas de intriga de tipo capa y espada.

El cuerpo especialmente embalsamado, de vuelta en la Argentina despues de viajar a travez del Atlantico, sera puesto en exposicion hoy en la residencia presidencial en el suburbio de Olivos.

El gobierno declaro que el cofre abierto del idolo de la clase trabajadora argentina, seria colocado a la par del ataud cerrado de su esposo, el difunto presidente Juan Domingo Peron.

Una fotografia oficial del cofre abierto, la muestra descalza, vestida de blanco, y con los manos entrelazados sobre la cintura, conteniendo un rosario.

La inflamable oratoria de la ex actriz, su apoyo al movimiento laboral, y su generosidad como miembro directivo de una fundacion caritativa nacional, la hicieron ser querida por los humildes.

La muestra culmina casi dos decadas de manejos politicos para traer el cuerpo de Eva de vuelta a la Argentina desde su desaparicion del pais en 1955.

Eva, segunda esposo de Peron, murio de cancer en 1952, a la edad de 33 anos. Su cuerpo fue puesto en exposicion en la central de la Confederacion General del Trabajo, en Buenos Aires.

Cuando Peron fue depuesto en 1955 por la armada, soldados se apoderaron de cuerpo, que fue secretamente enviado a Italia, para ser enterrado bajo un nombre falso.

El ex presidente, Alejandro Lanusse, en una ofrenda conciliatoria a los peronistas, ordeno que el cadaver sea enviado a Madrid, pais de exilio de Peron, en 1972.

Peron fue autorizado a volver a la Argentina el ano pasado, y fue electo presidente por tercera vez. Peron murio de un ataque al corazon en julio, y fue reemplazado por su tercera esposa, Maria Estela.

La Sra. Peron ordeno que los restos de Eva sean traidos nuevamente a la Argentina, y ordeno la construccion de un monumento nacional que cobijaria los resto de Peron, Evita, y otras figuras prominentes de la historia argentina.

La muerte de Peron dejo un vacio politico que aun no ha sido llenado. Mas de 200 personas han muerto este ano en luchas entre izquierdistas y derechistas que batallan por el control del movimiento peronista.

La policia informa que tres victimas que aun no han sido identificadas fueron muertas a balazos el lunes por asaltantes desconocidos, y despues destrozados por una carga de dinamita cerca de una base de la armada en las afueras de Buenos Aires.

Suprema Corte otorga derechos a trabajadores

La suprema corte dicto que los trabajadores rurales mejicanos pueden ser admitidos a los Estados Unidos diaria o temporariamente, sin violar las leyes de inmigracion.

La decision, de 5 a 4, con el juez William O. Douglas por la mayori ria, fue un severo golpe para la Union de Trabajadores Rurales Unidos, quien ha entablado juicios para prevenir la admision de trabajadores mejicanos, quienes compiten con los miembros de la Union. Cesar Chavez, lider del movimiento, expresa que los mejicanos estan dispuestos a trabajar por monos, haciendo de esta manera, que los salarios se mantengan bajos.

El gobierno federal informa que unos 8,000 mejicanos son admitidos al pais con entradas temporarias por ano, y mas de 45,000 entran a los Estados Unidos diariamente, bajo un sistema especial que requiere muy pocos papeles.

El Juez Aubrey E. Robinson despidio el caso de Chavez pero la 9a. Corte de Apelaciones establecio que las entradas diarias son apropiadas, pero no aquellas para la inmigracino temporarios."

La corte noto que el plan temporario nacio del programa de Braceros, que el Congreso dejo vencer en 1964. Douglas dijo que la inmigracion en temporadas era una aplicacion mas estricta a los limites impuestos en la importacion de trabjadores rurales mejicanos, y estas dependen del Congreso y no de las Cortes.

El juez Byron R. White, que no estaba de acuerdo, dijo que el lengua je da las leyes de inmigracion son bien claras, y prohibe el viajar de un pais al otro, haciendose temporariamente immigrantes. White dijo que la historia administativa de la ley no podria vencer el claro comando de los estatutos de inmigracion.

Ayuda para los desempleados

WASHINGTON (UPI) — El Congreso esta preparado para autorizar $7 billones para ayudar a los trabajadores que pierden su empleo debido al retreceso economico.

Es muy possible que accion al respecto sea tomada la semana proxima en medidas separadas para crear 300,000 empleos publicos para proveer $1.1 billones en compensaciones para desempleados, y beneficios de emergencia para 12 millones de trabajadores que no estan cubiertos ahora.

Los republicanos esperan que el Presidente Ford este de acuerdo, aun cuando causaria un deficit in los gastos.

Realmente, el Presidente podria actuar primero. En una oratoria este noche ante el prestigioso Concilio Negociante, Ford podria anunciar cambios en su campana "Combata Inflacion Ahora" del 8 de octubre.

Los cambios se centralizarian en la urgencia del receso, y el desempleo, que ya alcanza al 6.5 por ciento.

Republicanos del Senado se reunen hoy para aprobar un programa economico de emergencia compilado en una semana por un comite que representa todos los aspectos del sentimiento republicano.

"No hay antagonismo en el programa," dice el senador Jacob K. Javits, republicano de Nueva York," pero es su intencion de demostrar que los republicanos en el Senado son un factor que tiene que ser reconocido cuando hay que hacer decisiones."

En otor frente, el Senado restauro el martes el 72 por ciento de un corte de $657.6 milliones que habia hecho en la propuesta de gastos de Ford.

Velas Peligrosas

Investigadores de Ralph Nader expresaron por segunda vez esta Navidad, que si las mechas de las velas contienen plomo, podrian acarrear envenenamiento de plomo.

El grupo trato de hacer que la Comision de Seguridad en los Productos al Consumidor prohibiera la venta de dichas velas la Navidad pasada, pero la agencia declaro que no pudo comprobar que existiera un peligro inminente.

Negociaciones con la industria fabricante de velas durante el ano, resultaron en un compromiso voluntario, de cesar la fabricacion de velas con mecha de plomo en octubre.

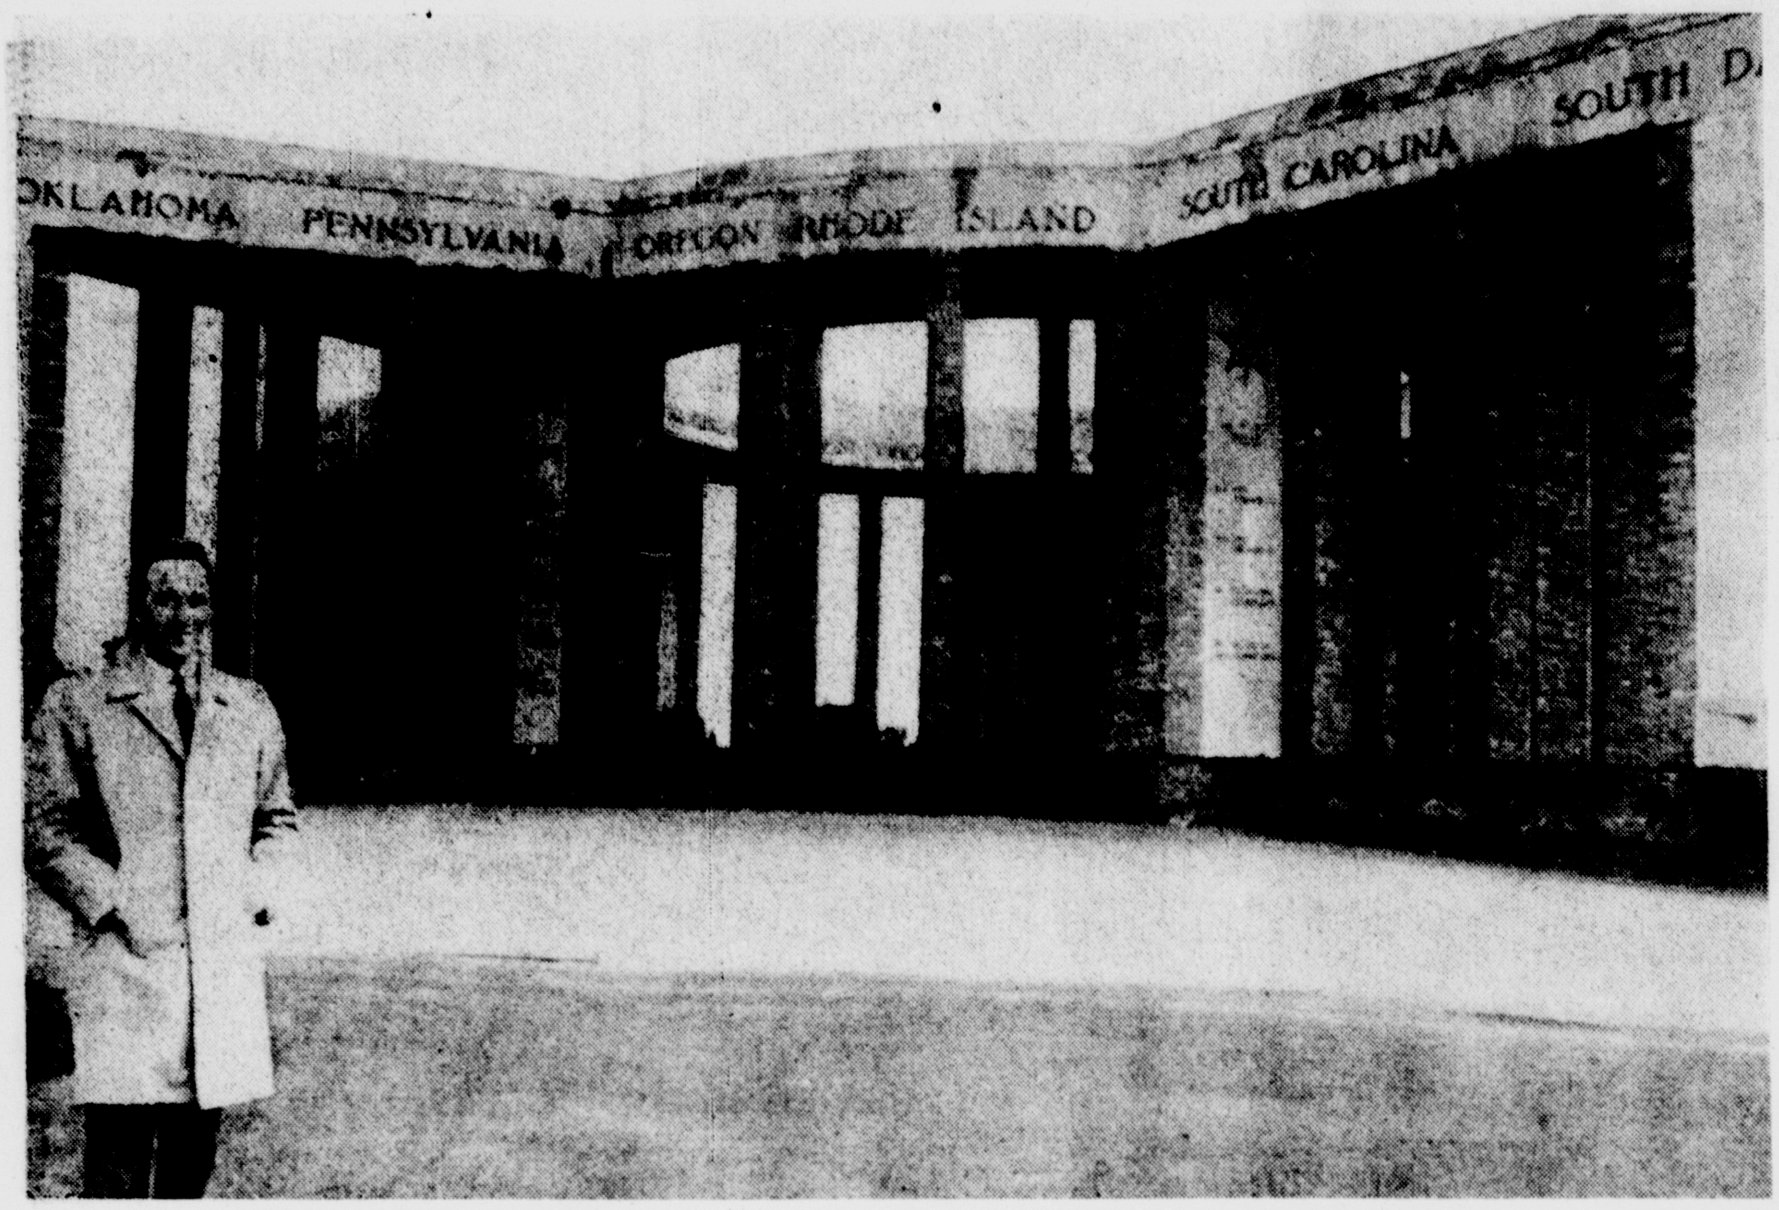
Herr Hitler's final gasp 'Battle of the Bulge'



Newspaperman Joss Heintz stands beside stone monument erected for American defenders of Bastogne as gift from Belgians. Heintz, a Belgian, is leading Battle of Bulge historian.

BASTOGNE, Belgium (UPI) — Even today in the Ardennes Forest, rusted tank turrets and gun emplacements lie only half hidden in the thin underbrush.

These corroded souvenirs, plus the still-vivid memories of the soldiers and civilians who went through it, are all that is left on this 30th anniversary of the Battle of the Bulge.

The Bulge pitted more than a million American and German soldiers in a battle that began at 5:30 a.m. on Dec. 16, 1944, with a thunderous German attack across the 85-mile "Ghost Front" dividing Luxembourg and Belgium from Germany. It ended Jan. 28, 1945, when the Germans finally fell back behind this line again.

Hitler code named the attack "Watch on the Rhine" and planned it as the counterattack that would reverse the six-month Allied push from Normandy, drive a German wedge all the way to the North Sea and split the British-American alliance.

At its worst, the German attack pushed a huge bulge into American lines, advancing as far as 55 miles to Celles, Belgium—more than halfway to the sea. But its failure meant the failure of Germany. V-E Day came four months later.

The Battle of the Bulge left nearly 50,000 dead—35,000 Germans, 12,000 Americans and 2,000 Luxembourgers and Belgians caught in its path. Great commanders — Bradley, Eisenhower, Montgomery, Patton, von Rundstedt and von Manteuffel—led it. Famous soldiers —Creighton Abrams, Maxwell Taylor, Matthew Ridgway, James Gavin—fought in it. Obscure towns—St. Vith and Vielsalm, Wiltz and Clervaux— are forever linked with it.

For many, the Bulge is memorable for Bastogne, capital of the Belgian Ardennes, and the courage of its defenders, who withstood a six-day seige and two weeks of German artillery battering. At the depth of the siege, the Germans demanded surrender and the U.S. commander in Bastogne, Brig. Gen. Anthony McAuliffe, issued his famous one-word reply:

"Nuts!"

"But what does it mean?" the Germans asked Col. Joseph Harper, who delivered it.

"Go to hell," Harper explained.

There are few scars now—just mementoes and memories.

siege a tourist industry. The former main square, leveled in the bombardment, is Place General McAuliffe. Most of it is a parking lot, with a Sherman tank and a bust of McAuliffe in the corner and a "Nuts Museum" on its fringe.

"When the Americans first liberated Bastogne in September, my sisters painted welcome signs in black paint on the walls," recalled Jess Heintz, son of a Bastogne druggist. "When the Bulge began, they began scraping them off, because the neighbors said we would all be shot if the Germans ever saw it."

Heintz, 48, is a Bastogne newspaperman and the town's leading historian of the battle. One of his sisters is his devoted assistant.

Nicolas Engel, whose Cafe Schumann stood at a strategic crossroads near Bastogne, remembers Christmas Day, 1944.

"Christmas was a night full of shells," he recalled sourly. "We left and hid at another house for two nights and a day. When we came back, there were as many dead as trees. For three months we slept without a roof, windows or doors."

Engel, 78, is slow of speech and reluctant to reminisce. His son was killed in Russia, fighting for the Germans. The cafe was rebuilt and Engel has a special table in the corner, beside the bar, where no one bothers him.

At Neffe, a hamlet on the edge of Bastogne, Gilbert Stilmant, 39, and his father, Joseph, still farm the land that was a battleground 30 winters ago.

"I was nine," Gilbert remembered. "We were living in the cellar and there were Americans in the house. It was Dec. 19. My father asked the Americans if there was still time to leave and they said, plenty of time. One hour later the Germans attacked

"The Americans left and we ran into the field, bullets flying all around. We flung ourselves on the ground and tried to creep as deeply into it as we could. We stayed there for five hours in freezing cold. I remember all the bodies lying around..."

Stilmant's four children listen as he tells the story and shows a Christmas card from Bob Hogg of Munhall, Pa., one of the GIs in the house.

Bastogne is building a new museum and hopes McAuliffe, now in delicate health, will return next year to help dedicate it. Outside the town stands the Mardasson, a beautiful pentagonal monument dedicated to "the memory of the American liberators."

Fresh flowers and wreaths arrive regularly at the Mardasson. One recently was a gift of the "Paratroopers Fraternity" of Aachen, Germany.

The German attack stretched from Monschau, Germany, on the Belgian border, in the north, to Echternach, Luxembourg, in the south. One reason it eventually failed was the five-day initial stand by defenders at St. Vith, Belgium.

The battle destroyed St. Vith utterly. It is a bustling, clean, prosperous market town now, but in a region of 200-year-old villages, St. Vith is all new. Nothing older than 30 years stands there.

Luxembourg has recovered more gracefully. There is a Bulge memorial in Ettlebruck, Bulge museums in Wiltz and Clervaux, an active Bulge society.

Josephine Thein recalls how she and her two children left a post office in Wiltz, where they had been hiding from the Germans, after it was bombed.

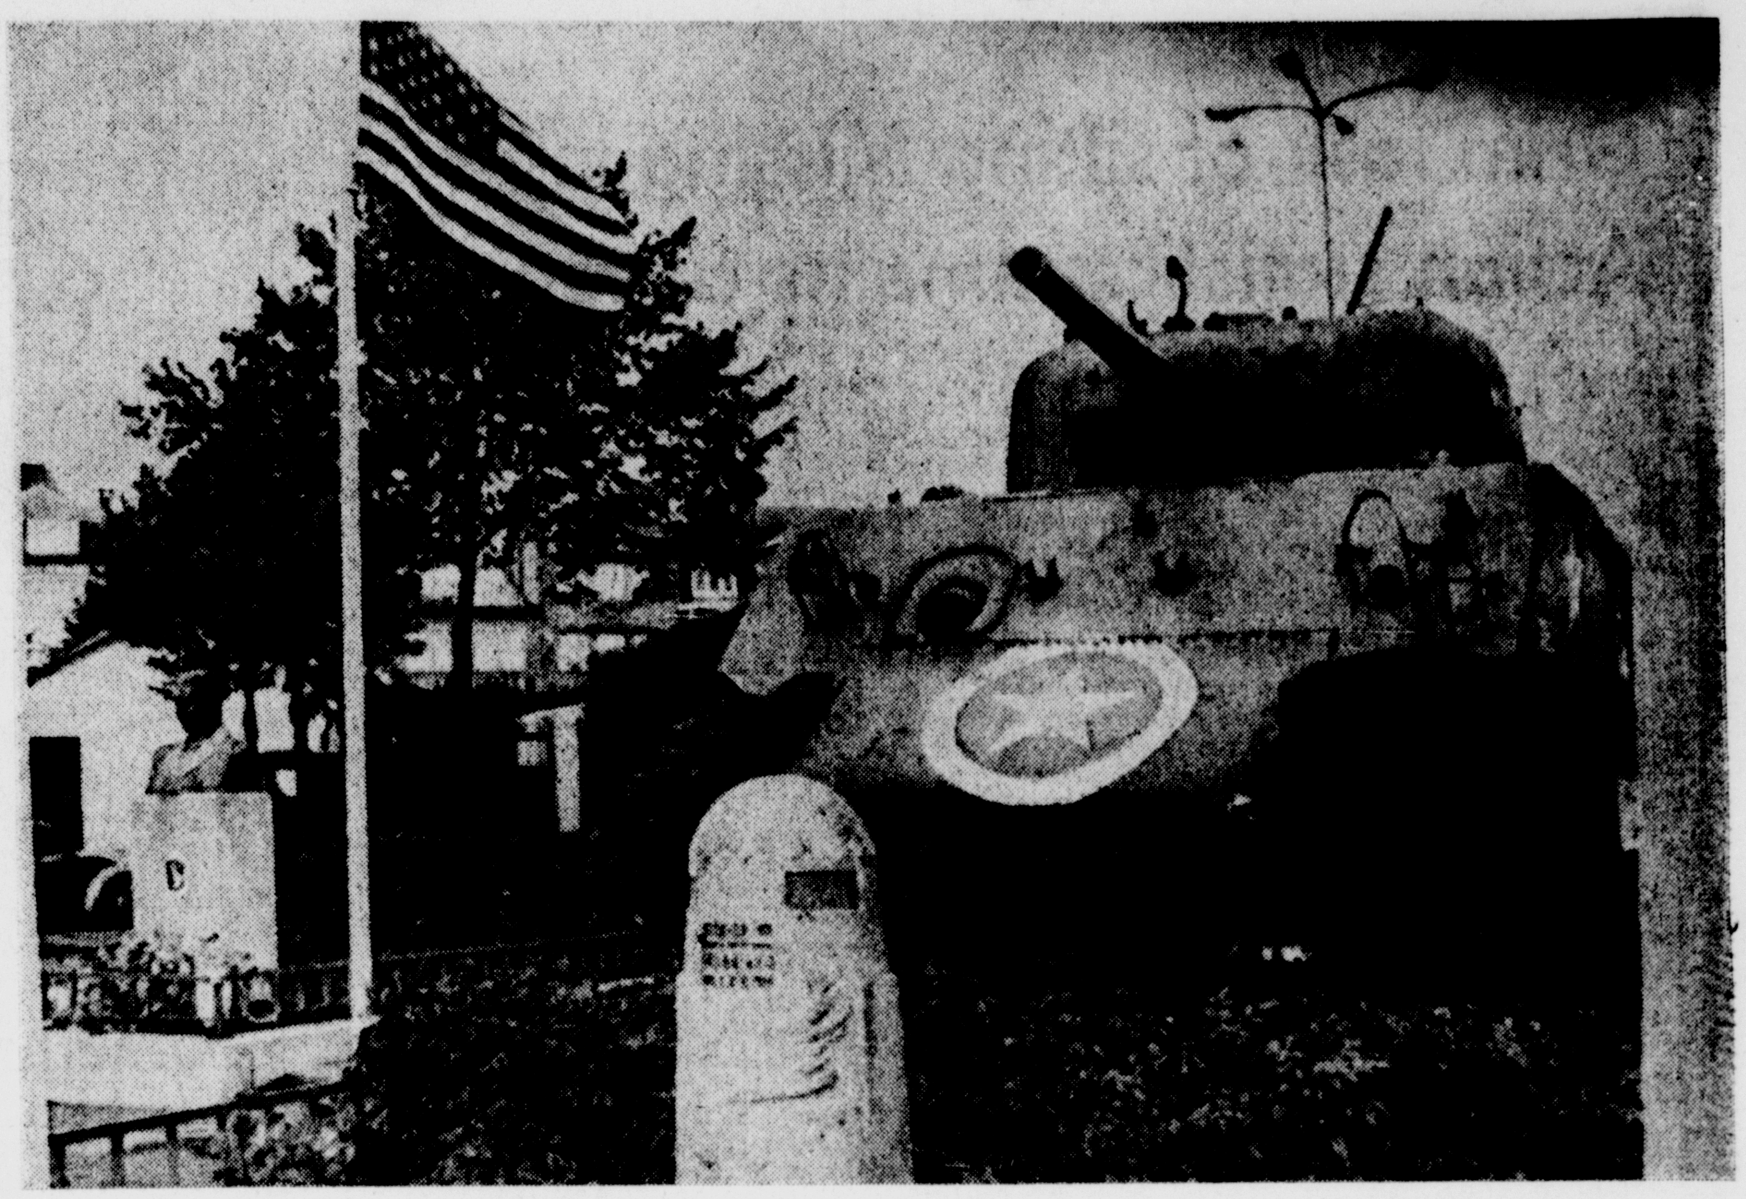
"Suddenly an American fighter swoopes down Schlosstrasse (Castle Road). We pressed ourselves against the wall. We thought we would be shot. But maybe the pilot saw my children's baby carriage in time. He passed over us and then came down at some Germans in the street who were running for cover. Two of them were killed. As we ran on to a cellar we passed their bodies."

Meisy Steiner's son was fighting with the German army. But when she found Ralph Ellis caught in Wiltz behind the lines, she took the GI in, "washed him and gave him the clothes of my own boy. He had suffered much and had frozen feet, so we had to wash his feet with soapy water every day."

Mrs. Steiner is 70 now. Her son is a prosperous grocer with five children. Ellis also survived the war but Mrs. Steiner, with hurt in her voice, says she has not heard from him in years.

"I considered him like a son. If only we had heard something from him since, even a postcard for the new year."

Other GIs have come back on pilgrimages with their families.



Sherman tank, an American flag and bust of Gen. Anthony McAuliffe stand in spot where Bastogne town square was leveled during Battle of Bulge. McAuliffe said now famous "Nuts" to German surrender demand.

358 MIAs now KIAs

Grim task of sifting Missing-in-Action statistics remains current

BANGKOK (UPI) — Despite lack of cooperation from the Communists, U.S. military investigators have been able to gather enough evidence to resolve the cases of about one-fourth of the more than 1,300 Americans listed as missing in action when the Vietnam war ended 22 months ago.

According to U. S. spokesmen, as of the end of last month the Pentagon had changed the status of 358 men from missing to killed in action on the recommendations of investigators. In all, there were 1,356 Americans missing in action at the time of the Jan. 27, 1973, cease-fire in South Vietnam.

The recommendations were made on the basis of identification of 76 actual remains of missing Americans recovered since the cease-fire as well as eyewitness accounts, many from former prisoners of war in North Vietnam.

A number of other recommendations from invstigators to declare missing men legally dead have not yet been acted upon by the Defense Department, largely because of a U. S. Supreme Court decision Nov. 11 which ruled that families of missing men could argue against the change.

Relatives of some missing men have fought the change, saying there is a chance that MIAs are still alive. Next-of-kin of MIAs continue to receive their full pay and benefits until they are declared dead.

Investigators say they have been unable to find evidence that any MIAs are still alive in Communist hands or elsewhere.

The probe is run by the Joint Casualty Resolution Center at Thailand's isolated Nakhon Phanom air base, U.S. military headquarters for Southeast Asia.

A year ago, the unit had located the remains of only about 30 MIAs and the outlook for further progress looked bleak. Most accessible places in South Vietnam where remains might be found had been exhausted and there was no hope of conducting searches in areas under Communist control.

On Dec. 8, 1973, an unarmed American officer on a search mission in South Vietnam stepped from a helicopter into a Communist ambush and was killed. Since then, all searches were suspended and the outlook was bleaker than ever.

But the investigators worked out a system with South Vietnamese troops doing the actual searching in areas where security is poor, while U.S. technicians direct activities from nearby safe areas.

A rural information campaign has resulted in leads from Vietnamese villagers who came forward and said they might know of MIA bodies.

In one case in Quang Tri province in northernmost South Vietnam, the spokesman said searchers investigated a site close to Communist troop positions despite their refusal to honor the cease-fire.

"We have gotten absolutely no cooperation from the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese," the spokesman said, "but with the South Vietnamese we have been able to go into unsafe areas and then get out as fast as we can and get results."

So far this year, search teams have brought the remains of 65 persons to a medical laboratory in Thailand. Five have been positively identified and medical experts are still working to identify the rest.

The military now lists about 335 Americans as MIA in South Vietnam compared with about 360 at the time of the ceasefire, 290 missing in Laos compared with well over 300 a year ago and about 30 in Cambodia.

In North Vietnam, where 430 Americans were listed as missing at one time, the total has been reduced to 290, mostly through interviews with former POWs.

In addition to resolving MIA cases, the searchers also try to recover the bodies of about 1,100 Americans listed as legally dead, but whose remains have not been found.

Army tries to insure no repeat of My Lai

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the movie screen in an Army base theater, the figure of an officer trods slowly among the enemy wounded, their moans breaking the silence of a scarred battlefield.

"War brings out the best in men," a narrator tells the audience of Army recruits. "Charity, compassion, self-sacrifice.

The officer halts, lifts his pistol and methodically shoots the wounded men one by one.

"Too often it brings out the worst," the narrator says. "Cruelty, brutality, sadism."

The pistol barks again, and the head of one wounded youth explodes.

What the recruits are seeing is Training Film 21-4228, "The Geneva Conventions and the Soldier," produced as a direct result of the My Lai massacre to explain in graphic terms a soldier's legal responsibilities in warfare.

The half-hour film is shown throughout the Army, primarily for new enlisted men and officer candidates, as part of expanded indoctrination on the international rules of warfare regarding treatment of civilians, prisoners and the wounded.

Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway said recently he did not believe any one thing could prevent a recurrence of My Lai, the 1968 massacre of Vietnamese civilians by American troops.

"I do not guess any one thing is going to prevent it, but I do feel sure that it won't really happen again," Callaway said. "Our training takes into account what happened (at My Lai) and takes into account the seriousness of it."

In the past, the Geneva Conventions were outlined for recruits in brief, dull, easily forgotten lectures. Former Lt. William L. Calley Jr., free on bail after serving three years and four months' imprisonment for killing at least 22 villagers at My Lai, apparently never remembered the lecture.

At his court martial, Calley testified he did not realize his captain's order to kill civilians was illegal and, under military law, must be disobeyed.

The training film carries this stiff warning:

"The American government and most other nations take the law of war very seriously," the narrator says. "After World War II many members of the German and Japanese forces were brought to trial on charges of having committed war crimes. The accused often claimed that he was 'just following orders.' But this was ruled no defense.

"Those who had committed acts they knew, or should have known, were wrong were held responsible for their acts. Convicted, they were jailed and, in some cases, executed."

The same fate awaits American military men who violate international law, the audience is reminded.

The film depicts an enlisted man refusing to obey an illegal order to use prisoners to clear a path through a mine field, and the officer refusing to retract his order under questioning.

"No sir, I refuse," the sergeant finally tells his lieutenant. "We'll take it up with the CO (commanding officer) when we get back."

Says the narrator: "It takes guts to stand up in this kind of situation."

The film also makes clear that sergeants do not always have the final word over the infantrymen.

"Out here in the field, the sergeant is the guy who decides what's right and wrong," says the sergeant on the screen.

But the narrator breaks in: "If you buy this, you're in deep trouble."

The Army says it is stressing repeatedly the General Order 100, issued in 1863 by President Lincoln, which said: "Men who take up arms against one another in public war...do not cease to be moral beings reponsible to one another and to God."

O.K., girls, here's your marital chance

By RICHARD P. JONES

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — A 31-year-old bachelor has tired of the singles clubs, bars and dance halls and has decided to take a more direct approach to findng a wife. He spent $175.07 for newspaper ads and is accepting applications from prospective brides.

"It's not a joke at all," said wife seeking bachelor, who wished to remain anonymous.

"There should be some more convenient way, more efficient way of seeing people that you like than just taking potlock at bars, dance halls and things like that," he said.

So he placed 11-by-4-inch ads this week in Madison's two newspapers. But from the looks of the advertisement, it appears he is seeking the perfect wife.

"Are you tired of hanging around bars looking for a mate?" he asks in the ad.

"I am.

"Do you refuse to settle for someone who isn't what you want even though he appears to be the only available one around? Good for you!

"If you have the attributes listed below and you like what you read about me, I want to meet you."

Then he set forth the qualifications. The propective bride, he said, must be between the ages of 23 and 28 and should not have been married before.

She should have at least a four-year degree from a national university in either accounting, physical or medical sciences, law, history or library sciences. It says he would prefer career girl earning at least $9,000 annually.

She shouldn't be taller than 5-feet-5 and should not weigh more than 115 pounds. She must be a nonsmoker, infrequent drinker, frugal, aggressive, studious, a late sleeper who prefers a house temperature of not more than 65 degrees.

Concerning religion, he calls for an agnostic or member of any major denomination. Politically, the prospective bride should be a moderate Democrat or independent. And her national origin should be northern European, British or Irish.

Those interested were instructed to send resumes to Route 2, Box 46A, Jefferson, Wis., 53549.

The ad appears unemotional and businesslike. And perhaps that businesslike attitude is the basis for the story of love lost that lies behind the ad.

He said in an interview that he had never been engaged but had fallen deeply in love with his childhood sweetheart.

"She liked me, she really liked me," he said. "But I finally decided it would be best for her not to marry me because of her particular personality.

"She had a peculiar preference," he said. "She was a nut on France and French things. So I advised her to go to France, marry a Frenchman.

"So. She did."

Crucifixion argument wins lawyer tiny libel damages

TROYES, France (UPI) — A libel case that hinged on the question of who killed Jesus Christ has come to an end, but the 2,000-year-old debate remained unresolved.

A civil court in this central French town this week awarded symbolic damages of one franc (20 cents) to Jacques Isori, a prominent Paris lawyer who argued that the Romans were responsible for Christ's crucifixion.

The three-judge tribunal ordered Father Goerges de Nantes, the outspoken Roman dered Father Goerges de Catholic priest who called Isorni a "renegade Christian," to publish the verdict in the religious magazine he edits.

But the court refused to rule on the larger theological question which dominated the dispute and attracted international attention to the trial.

The judges said they were not competent to rule on theology and confined their ruling to the defamation issue.

Isorni said the priest libeled him after the 1967 appearance of Isorni's book, "The True Trial of Jesus," in which he argued: "the crucifixion was a Roman punishment carried out following a Roman procedure."

Isorni said the Jews convicted Jesus because they thought he was an impostor for the Messiah but could not carry out the sentence. He contended Christ was crucified for leading a guerrilla struggle against the Roman occupation, not for saying he was the Son of God.

In 1973 de Nantes replied in the magazine, "Catholic Counter-Reform in the 20th Century." He accused Isorni of falsifying the New Testament and called Judaihm "a false religion whicn, for being anti-Christ, is necessarily Satanic."

The 50-year-old priest wrote of Isorni: "He unceasingly disputes the New Testament to prop up his thesis. The New Testament being the only base permitting an analysis of the trial of Jesus, Mr. Isorni has behaved as a renegade Christian and denied all the teachings and foundations of the Roman Catholic Church."

De Nantes argued in his libel defense that Christ's Israelite judges must have known he was the Son of God when they sentenced him to death and were thus guilty of killing of a god.

The Troyes judges said in their ruling they recognized Father De Nantes' sincerity, but considered the words "renegade Christian" libelous.

Led away from traditional concerns

Many families unable to meet problems of the uneven economy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Inflation and scarcity have become part of the American scene, yet many families are unequipped to meet the problems the uneven economy creates.

A new study of the consumer puts matters this way: "This country has become so accustomed to times of affluence and economic growth that many families are apparently unprepared and sometimes unwilling to face up to the threat of austerity and sacrifice presented by today's uncertain economy.

"This is seen as especially true for the postwar generation, for whom the Great Depression stands as but a remote and unfamiliar piece of history.

"Moreover, this confidence in a perpetually prosperous economy is thought to have led many American families away from traditional concerns about saving and planning for the future —thus leaving them exposed and vulnerable during this difficult period."

The state of the family and finance these days is outlined in what its backers plan as a semiannual look at the consumer. It's the first of these backed by General Mills and conducted by Daniel Yankelovich, Inc., the opinion research organization.

Preliminary findings resulted from more than 150 interviews with experts who ranged through social workers, home economists, bankers, credit managers, marriage counselors, doctors, public health nurses, community leaders and the news media. The final stage of the present research will be completed this month and query more than 1,100 families.

The sponsoring company already has established a consumer center —in answer to what James P. McFarland, board chairman and chief executive officer, calls the "more articulate" voice of today's buyer.

The 150 experts interviewed in the preliminary study reported many signs of trouble on the home front.

The impact and stress created by economic problems include increased levels of borrowing, greater reliance on credit buying, late payments on bills of all kinds, and a sharp rise in personal bankruptcies.

The experts were divided on how seriously inflation and related problems have hit American families up to now. Some indicated that they saw the impact as extremely grave, with certain segments of the public already immersed in a depression-like situation and the rest soon headed there.

Others felt the situation had not yet become that serious, with most families still able to make ends meet.

One of the more painful aspects of today's economic situation is that many less affluent families may be "losing faith in the American dream of an abundant future. Just meeting the needs of today has undercut the upward mobility of many who had been looking forward to college for their children, a financially secure retirement and the chance to own a home," the report stated.

They found a lack of knowledge on economizing — "For example, there were reports of some families deciding to postpone medical and dental checkups ... other families were ... using up their savings to maintain their present standard of living."

The study cited the need for money management training

And there was little doubt that money can be a major source of stress and breakdown in families. Most thought, however, that "a basically sound family can be expected to pull together under stress, whereas the troubled family is more likely to pull apart."

STOCKING TREE

Mrs. John Molina and Mrs. Richard Kellerman place miniature stockings on the Christmas tree at the Pomona Public Library. Visitors may select a stocking and provide clothes for a child in the valley.

Casa Colina Hospital

Valley residents play Santa Claus

Talents and gifts are being contributed at this time of year by many organizations and individuals in the valley in order that disabled children and adults undergoing rehabilitation at Casa Colina Hospital will have a joyous holiday.

The Assisteens of the Assistance League of Upland, a philanthropic group of 30 teen-age girls, will spend many hours wrapping gifts donated by individuals, groups and business firms in the area. The gifts are being stuffed into large, gaily decorated Christmas stockings designed and made by the group, according to Mrs. Lenore Hersh, recreation therapist at the hospital.

A Christmas party is planned for the afternoon of Dec. 23 for distribution of presents. Jess Noriega of Pomona will be in the role of Santa Claus and he will be aided by the Assisteens. During the party Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Dan Dare, San Dimas, will lead the patients in singing carols and Mrs. Gloria Burton, Valinda, will be soloist.

The Rev. Joseph Brown, chaplain, will hold a candlelight Christmas church service.

Choirs and entertainment groups already scheduled to bring holiday festivities to Casa Colina include a tree-decorating and caroling party by therapeutic recreation students from Cal Poly and Casa Colina Candystripers; photo exhibit by William Carpena of Claremont; programs given by the Pioneer Freewheel Baptist Group of Pomona; Brownie Troop 245, Harrison School, Pomona; Upendo Dancers of West Covina High School; Bonita High School Chamber Singers; Yorba Elementary School Choir, Pomona; Claremont High School Chamber Singers; and the King Circle Bible Study Group, Pomona.

Organizations interested in providing entertainment for patients are encouraged to contact Mrs. Hersh at Casa Colina.

Legislation is not only preventive

NEW YORK (UPI) — No one would dare call Hana Umlauf a dizzy blonde.

Blonde, yes. But that pretty head is packed with facts beyond the capacity you would expect from most 28-year-old women.

She can discourse on energy and economics with equanimity. She can talk about the arts and archaeology with acumen. And she can also talk of the future for total equality of the sexes.

"I don't think we'll see it in our lifetime," she said.

Miss Umlauf is an assistant editor of the The World Almanac, the annual book of facts which has just made its 1975 debut.

She wrote and edited a variety of the sections including the one on energy, summed up world and domestic economic developments, archaeology highlights, world disasters, volcanic lore, and the world of women in '74 with a look to the future.

I asked her in an interview how one head packs in so much knowledge on a variety of subjects. "You learn by doing," she said, understating the work she and others put into condensing volumes of material.

"Actually on oil alone, I had a folder this thick," she said, stretching her arms in a wide swing to indicate material she assembled for the section called energy.

Ultimately, with tables included, she condensed it to 11 pages, examining the future power sources from coal to geothermal power.

"I'm convinced that among all the alternatives," she said, "conservation is the answer."

The section on women (two pages) focused less on the "first woman who" angles and more on women's advances in equal rights, politics and the job world.

Women still have a long way to go in all areas, although Miss Umlauf said that in the fight for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment alone, she was interested to see that a lot of opponents of the amendment lost in the November elections.

But legislation alone cannot prevent job and pay discrimination against women, she said. Both management and employe must work toward that equal opportunity.

"You find many women who get to middle management and stop there, waiting to be promoted instead of pushing forward," she said "I'm amazed at the number of women who aim no higher than a secretary.

"There must be a lot of training, though, for management positions... more job and career counseling.

"Many men have changed their attitudes (toward women workers) but you can still sense a subtle feeling among them that they're being threatened."

Miss Umlauf came into publishing from a cosmopolitan background. She was born in Sweden, the daughter of a Czechoslovakian diplomat. Her mother was Latvian.

The family moved to the United States in 1948 after the Czech government fell to the Communists, she said. She attended public schools in Shaker Heights, Ohio, a Cleveland suburb. She holds a bachelor's degree from Vassar College and a master's from Yale with majors in Russian and European languages and literature.

With all the things on which she must be authoritative, I said, "There must never be a lull in the conversation if you're around."

Stockings are hung

A Stocking Tree has been placed by the Pomona Junior Women's Club in the Pomona Public Library as a service project for Christmas.

The stockings on the tree contain random ages and sizes of clothing for needy children in the Pomona area. Persons wishing to provide clothing for these youngsters are invited to select a stocking from the tree, purchase a suitable item of clothing and return it, unwrapped, to the library.

The Juniors are also assisting at Santa Claus, Inc., where they are making and filling stockings and will help with distribution and Santa Letter answering.

Problem is going home

NEW YORK (UPI) — Everyone likes to go to a party, but some people don't know when to go home.

This is a problem that faces hosts and hostesses all year round but particularly during the holiday season.

To help you be a good party guest here are some tips from the party experts at Schweppes.

—Answer an invitation with the same formality as it is tendered.

—Arrive within 15 minutes of the designated time. It is neither fashionable nor polite to be late.

—Leave at a reasonable time. This usually means when the party starts to wind down. Sometimes a specific time is given for a party —such as cocktails from 6 to 8 p.m. You should leave at the specified time.

—It is not necessary to bring a gift unless it is a housewarming or anniversary.

—Circulate. The dullest parties are those where men and women go into separate corners or husbands and wives never leave each other's sides.

—Do not bring cocktails to the dinner table unless invited to by the host or hostess.

—Be considerate of your host's property. Place drinks on coasters, use ash trays conscientiously.

—Know when to stop drinking. Other guests generally feel uncomfortable when someone gets intoxicated.

—A thank you note or phone call is always appreciated.

If singles' scene is yours

Go West, young lady

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you're making the singles scene in search of a man, go West young woman. Or head East.

California and New York have more unmarried men than any other of the 50 states —2 million unmarrieds in each state.

Pennsylvania, Illinois and Texas are your next best bets, each with more than a million eligible men.

Or just direct your plans to any urban area, where 75 per cent of the unmarried men live.

Better news, too, is that the supply of unmarried males is increasing —growing from 14.5 million in 1952 to 22.4 million at the time of the 1970 census.

Metropolitan Life statisticians, constantly studying population trends, outlined where the boys are as a holiday gift for the nation's single women.

Metropolitan breaks down the eligibles by age groups and there's someone for everybody. Some 5.9 million were in their 20s. An additional 3.3 million were 18-19. But a significant proportion was over age 45 and 10 per cent 65 or older.

By some romantic fluke, most of the eligible men under 45, or 94 per cent, were never married, 5 per cent were divorced and only a few were widowers.

But at ages 45 to 54, the percentage of divorced men rose to 32 per cent, the percentage of widowed to 14 per cent. And from 55 on, widowers represented nearly 30 per cent of the unmarried. Divorced men accounted for more than 25 per cent.

Statistically, the hunting is poorest in Minnesota, with 81 eligible men to every 100 women in the younger age brackets.

Pennsylvania, Ohio, Iowa, West Virginia and Utah also rank low, with unmarried women exceeding unmarried men by more than 15 per cent in the younger age brackets.

Presumably then, these states are where men shopping for wives should settle.

For women also, there's opportunity in Alaska, Hawaii, Nevada and Rhode Island. In Alaska, largely because of the number of servicemen stationed there, young unmarrieds outnumber single women by more than two to one. And Hawaii, Nevada and Rhode Island all have over 20 per cent more young unmarried men than women.

Nationally, the percentage of widowers ranged from 3.9 in Alaska to 12.4 in Arkansas. Other states with substantial numbers of widowers were Maine, New Hampshire, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, West Virginia, Florida and Mississippi.

Of divorced men, regionally, the highest percentage was in the Pacific states and the lowest percentage of unmarrieds in the middle Atlantic.

Christmas ornaments

The whole family can make them

This is the fourth part in a series of five articles.

The holidays are getting closer . . . now that your cards have been made and sent (and some even received and on display), it's time to decorate your windows and mantel.

Children will enjoy creating a stained-glass effect by making holiday shapes from cardboard and tissue paper.

First, cut out a large holiday shape from a piece of cardboard (a tree, bell, star, reindeer, candy cane, etc.); then cut out the inside, leaving a one-half inch border.

Trace the identical shape on tissue paper or colored cellophane and glue it to the back of the frame.

Punch a hole at the top, tie on a loop of yard, and hang in front of a window to let the sun shine through!

Brighten up your mantel with some homemade candles. The technique is a simple one, but will need supervision.

Melt odd pieces of candles (or parafin wax) in an old sauce pan or double boiler. You can add pieces of crayons to deepen the color, if you wish.

Next pour the wax into milk cartons (use several sizes with the tops cut off) and drop in a piece of heavy twine for a wick.

When the wax is hard (putting it in the freezer or outside will speed up the process), cut the milk carton away and you will have some colorful candles to add that extra glow to your mantel or table . . . or to give as gifts.

Howard J. Snider, chairman of the public relations committee, served as master of ceremonies for the evening which included a talk by Senior Scout Debbie Ansell who commented on the wide range of opportunities for girls in scouting.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Kilsby offered the invocation and members of Junior troop 625 from Pomona directed the flag ceremony. Dinner decorations were handled by Mrs. Carole Hansen and her committee.

Cornbread

Next time you serve a simple meal featuring cheese, try this bread idea. Make cornbread from a favorite recipe or a quick mix, adding chopped California walnuts before baking. Cut cornbread into squares, split and toast. Serve hot with butter.

Film available for use by women's groups

"Very Early Warning," a recent winner in the Clarion awards competition of Women In Communications Inc. is a timely, topical 16-minute, 16mm. color film on memmography, a major diagnostic method for the early detection of breast cancer. Free-loan prints may be booked by women's groups, college-age level and above through Association-Sterling Films, 866 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y., 10022 or any of the association's 10 regional film libraries.

Memmography is a special kind of x-ray examination specifically designed for x-raying soft breat tissue, different from any other part of the body, pinpointing tiny spots too small to be felt. A simple, fast, painless procedure it takes only 10 minutes and is valuable for women of all ages but particularly women 35 or older.

Insurance unit plans gathering

A Christmas party and meeting have been planned by the Insurance women of The Inland Empire Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Judy Michaud, 603 W. Rosewood Court, Ontario.

Each member will bring a salad or dessert and there will be a gift exchange.

Anyone in an insurance related industry is invited to attend and may make reservations by calling 983-5065.

For brunch

Entertaining with an informal weekend brunch? Here's an easy do-it-yourself way to offer the fruit. Arrange a pick 'n choose assortment of bite-size fresh fruit pieces on a platter. Provide forks and have guests dip their selections first into fruit flavored yogurt or sour cream sweetened with powdered sugar, then chopped California walnuts. This is especially tasty with omelets, waffles or pancakes.

MR. AND MRS. F. C. LANZING

Lanzings celebrate golden anniversary

At an open house for 135 guests in King's Way Gardens, La Verne, Mr. and Mrs. F.C. Lanzing celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

The Lanzings were married Nov. 27, 1924, in San Mateo, Calif., and have resided in this area for 30 years. They formerly lived in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mr. Lanzing is a retired painting contractor.

The Lanzings are members of First Christian Church of Pomona. Both have received the Cross and Crown award in the church. Mr. Lanzing is a charter member of the Pomona Noon Optimist Club.

Hosts and hostesses for the reception at the couple's Kings Way home were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Finch, San Diego; their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Lanzing, Redding; and son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Lanzing, Glendora. The Lanzings have six grandchildren.

Among the guests was Mrs. William F. Johnson of Pomona, a member of the original wedding party.

Fisher and Frankel vows said

Miss Deborah Frankel, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jacob P. Frankel of Bakersfield, and Josiah Howe Vose Fisher Jr., son of the senior Mr. and Mrs. Fisher of Meredith, N.H., were married at Berry farm, West Campton, N.H., by the Rev. Randolph K. Dales of Holderness School.

Miss Karen Menge of Hanover, N.H., was the maid of honor and David W. Parker of West Campton was best man.

The bride's velvet and lace gown in the fashion of the 1890s was made by the sister of the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate of Claremont High School and moved to Bakersfield when her father, formerly dean of faculty at Harvey Mudd College in Claremont, became president of California State College, Bakersfield.

The newlyweds are students at the University of New Hampshire. The groom is an Air Force veteran and served as an aerial photographer in Southeast Asia. He is employed by the town of Durham.

Riddles mark 60th year

Mr. and Mrs. Jess H. Riddle, Montclair, will observe their 60th wedding anniversary on Christmas Eve.

The Riddles were married Dec. 24, 1914, in Algona, Iowa, and moved to California in 1953.

They have one daughter, Mrs. Robert F. Chambers, who resides in Pomona. A son, Wayne, is deceased. They also have six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Before his retirement, Mr. Riddle was associated with his son as a salesman for Studebaker.

Because of Mrs. Riddle's health the couple will not hold any special celebration. Mrs. Riddle is a lifetime member of the Rebekah Lodge.

Guarantee privacy:

American dream is still owning home

Despite recent predictions to the contrary, the American dream remains largely intact; ownership of a single family home with enough property to guarantee some privacy.

This was revealed in statistics compiled by the National Association of Realtors and a random survey of Realtor boards throughout the nation.

Some researchers have been asking if the American dream of a detached house in the suburbs, with a big grassy yard and white fence is dying, said officials.

But the association said its findings indicate that dream is still alive and well and even growing. Only the white picket fence seems to have gone by the boards, giving way to redwood fencing.

For example, a study of new housing starts for 1974 reveals that construction of multi-family units has dropped precipitously from 1973 totals while single family home buildings has held relatively firm for the year.

Seasonally adjusted statistics for September show the over-all drop in construction of housing units from the September, 1973, level has been 38.6 per cent. Construction of multi-family housing — apartments, condominiums and duplexes — is down 65.1 per cent while detached single family home building fell 10.9 per cent.

In number of units, the seasonally adjusted total of single family homes for 1974 would be 822,000, down from 990,000 in 1973. The multi-family housing units, however, would be 298,000 this year compared to 854,000 in 1973.

In addition, Realtor boards surveyed indicate that inflationary and mortgage market pressures have forced millions of Americans to the sidelines in their search for new or existing single family homes.

"Although many persons temporarily have stopped looking for a home, the demand is still there," said William H. Clapp, president of the St. Paul, Minn., Board of Realtors.

An even more revealing statistic shows that this year 64.8 per cent of all households nationally were owner occupied. And that percentage is the highest it has ever been.

The association's department of economics and research notes there is a definite trend toward increased owner occupancy of households, which largely indicates a constancy of interest in and demand for single family residences.

Boards of Realtors nationally have supported this analysis with these observations, said officials.

— Wirt M. Norris Jr., president of the Fort Worth Board of Realtors: "People here are buying instead of renting. There has been a sharp drop in construction of multi-family housing. In fact, sales of single family homes in the Fort Worth area have increased recently."

— Dan C. Simons, president of the Salt Lake Board of Realtors: "Pre-commitments on housing construction in the Salt Lake City area have kept all such construction at a reasonable level. But highest on the list of possible residences is the single family home, particularly the smaller home."

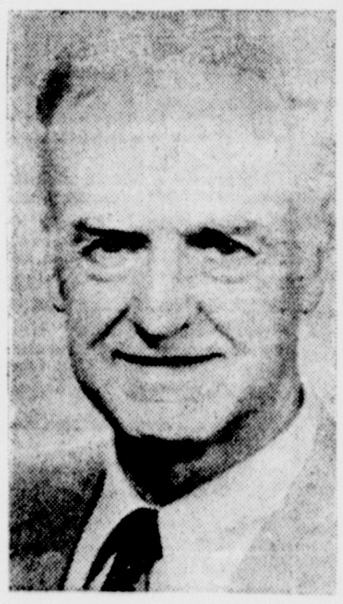
— Edward W. Blackford, chairman of the Nashville Board of Realtors' multiple listing service: "Home buyers are seeking their residences in the more established suburban areas. Condominiums here are just beginning to catch on."

— Clapp, St. Paul, Minn.: "The demand for quality houses continues high. There always will be a good demand for good property, particularly property that is priced correctly."

Board honors Realtor with life membership

Clint V. Bonham, a local Realtor, has been presented a life time membership in the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

Such membership is provided to board members who performed notable service for both the public and the board, maintained board membership for at least 10 years, and has retired from active membership when nominated for the award.



CLINT V. BONHAM

Mildred J. Heckmer, outgoing president, made the presentation at the board's annual installation luncheon held recently at Griswold's Inn in Claremont.

Bonham has been a licensed Realtor since 1927 when he joined the firm of Montrose-McCanne Realty. And he has been a member of the local realty board since 1952.

Four times while a board member he was presented the "King of the Month" award. He also hosted some 100 board members at his Mt. Baldy home.

Bonham and his wife, Edna, now reside in Corona Del Mar. They have one son, a daughter, five grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

NEARING COMPLETION — The Lewis Homes-Upland development is nearing completion on 15th Street a half block west of San Antonio Avenue. Its location within the Upland School District appeals to families with school age children. The one and two story homes are priced from $35,950.

Lewis development:

Location, schools help sell houses

Location and availability of good educational facilities for children are among the high priorities that dictate a buyer's choice for a home, said Randall W. Lewis, marketing director for Lewis Homes.

"And our new Lewis Homes—Upland development is drawing home seekers from the valley and beyond because of its location within the Upland School District," he added.

The homes, nearing completion, are located on 15th Street just west of San Antonio Avenue.

The one and two story structures, with three and four bedrooms, are built on 10,000 squre foot lots. They are priced from $35,950.

Features include cedar shake roofs, formal dining rooms, wood burning fireplaces, family rooms, garden kitchens and three car garages.

Several financing arrangements geared to the buyers' needs are being offered, said Lewis. Qualified veterans may obtain eight per cent loans.

A sales office is open daily at the development. For more information, persons may phone 982-4539 or 985-3594.

Want Ads Ring,

Want Ads have the ring of truth. When you pick up the phone to check on some item advertised in Classified, you can be sure of an honest bargain. Want Ads are famous for bargains in a wide range of goods and special services.

Are You Listening?

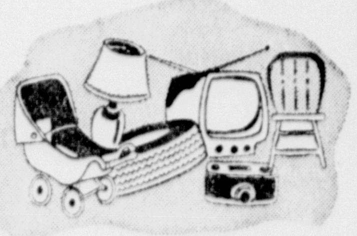
When money talks, people listen, and Want Ads mean money. There's money in all those discarded items lying around the house or garage. Someone will find them valuable and pay you good hard cash for the privilege of taking them off your hands. Be sure you are listening when Want Ad money talks.

On the Page,

This is where it all is -- in the Classified Pages. Houses, autos, appliances, furniture, toys, bikes, musical instruments, jobs, pets -- you name it.

Bargains Glisten.

Folks just naturally look to the Want Ads when they want a good bargain. They know there are valuable and serviceable goods available at amazingly low prices.



Selling in A Winter Moneyland.

Classified is truly a Winter Moneyland. Heavy Want Ad readership hits its peak during the stay-at-home time of the year. It's the popular time to round up your still useful but no-longer-used items lying around the premises. A speedy Want Ad will exchange them for welcome Christmas cash. There's money to be made, too, in the savings you'll find in Classified Yuletide gift bargains. Let Classified lead you to your Winter Moneyland.

DEAR POLLY — Plastic foam egg cartons are useful in many ways, but recently I've seen so much lettering on the tops that they're spoiled for gift items. I put some nail polish remover on a bit of cotton and with it remove the lettering on the carton tops. — MRS. J.R.

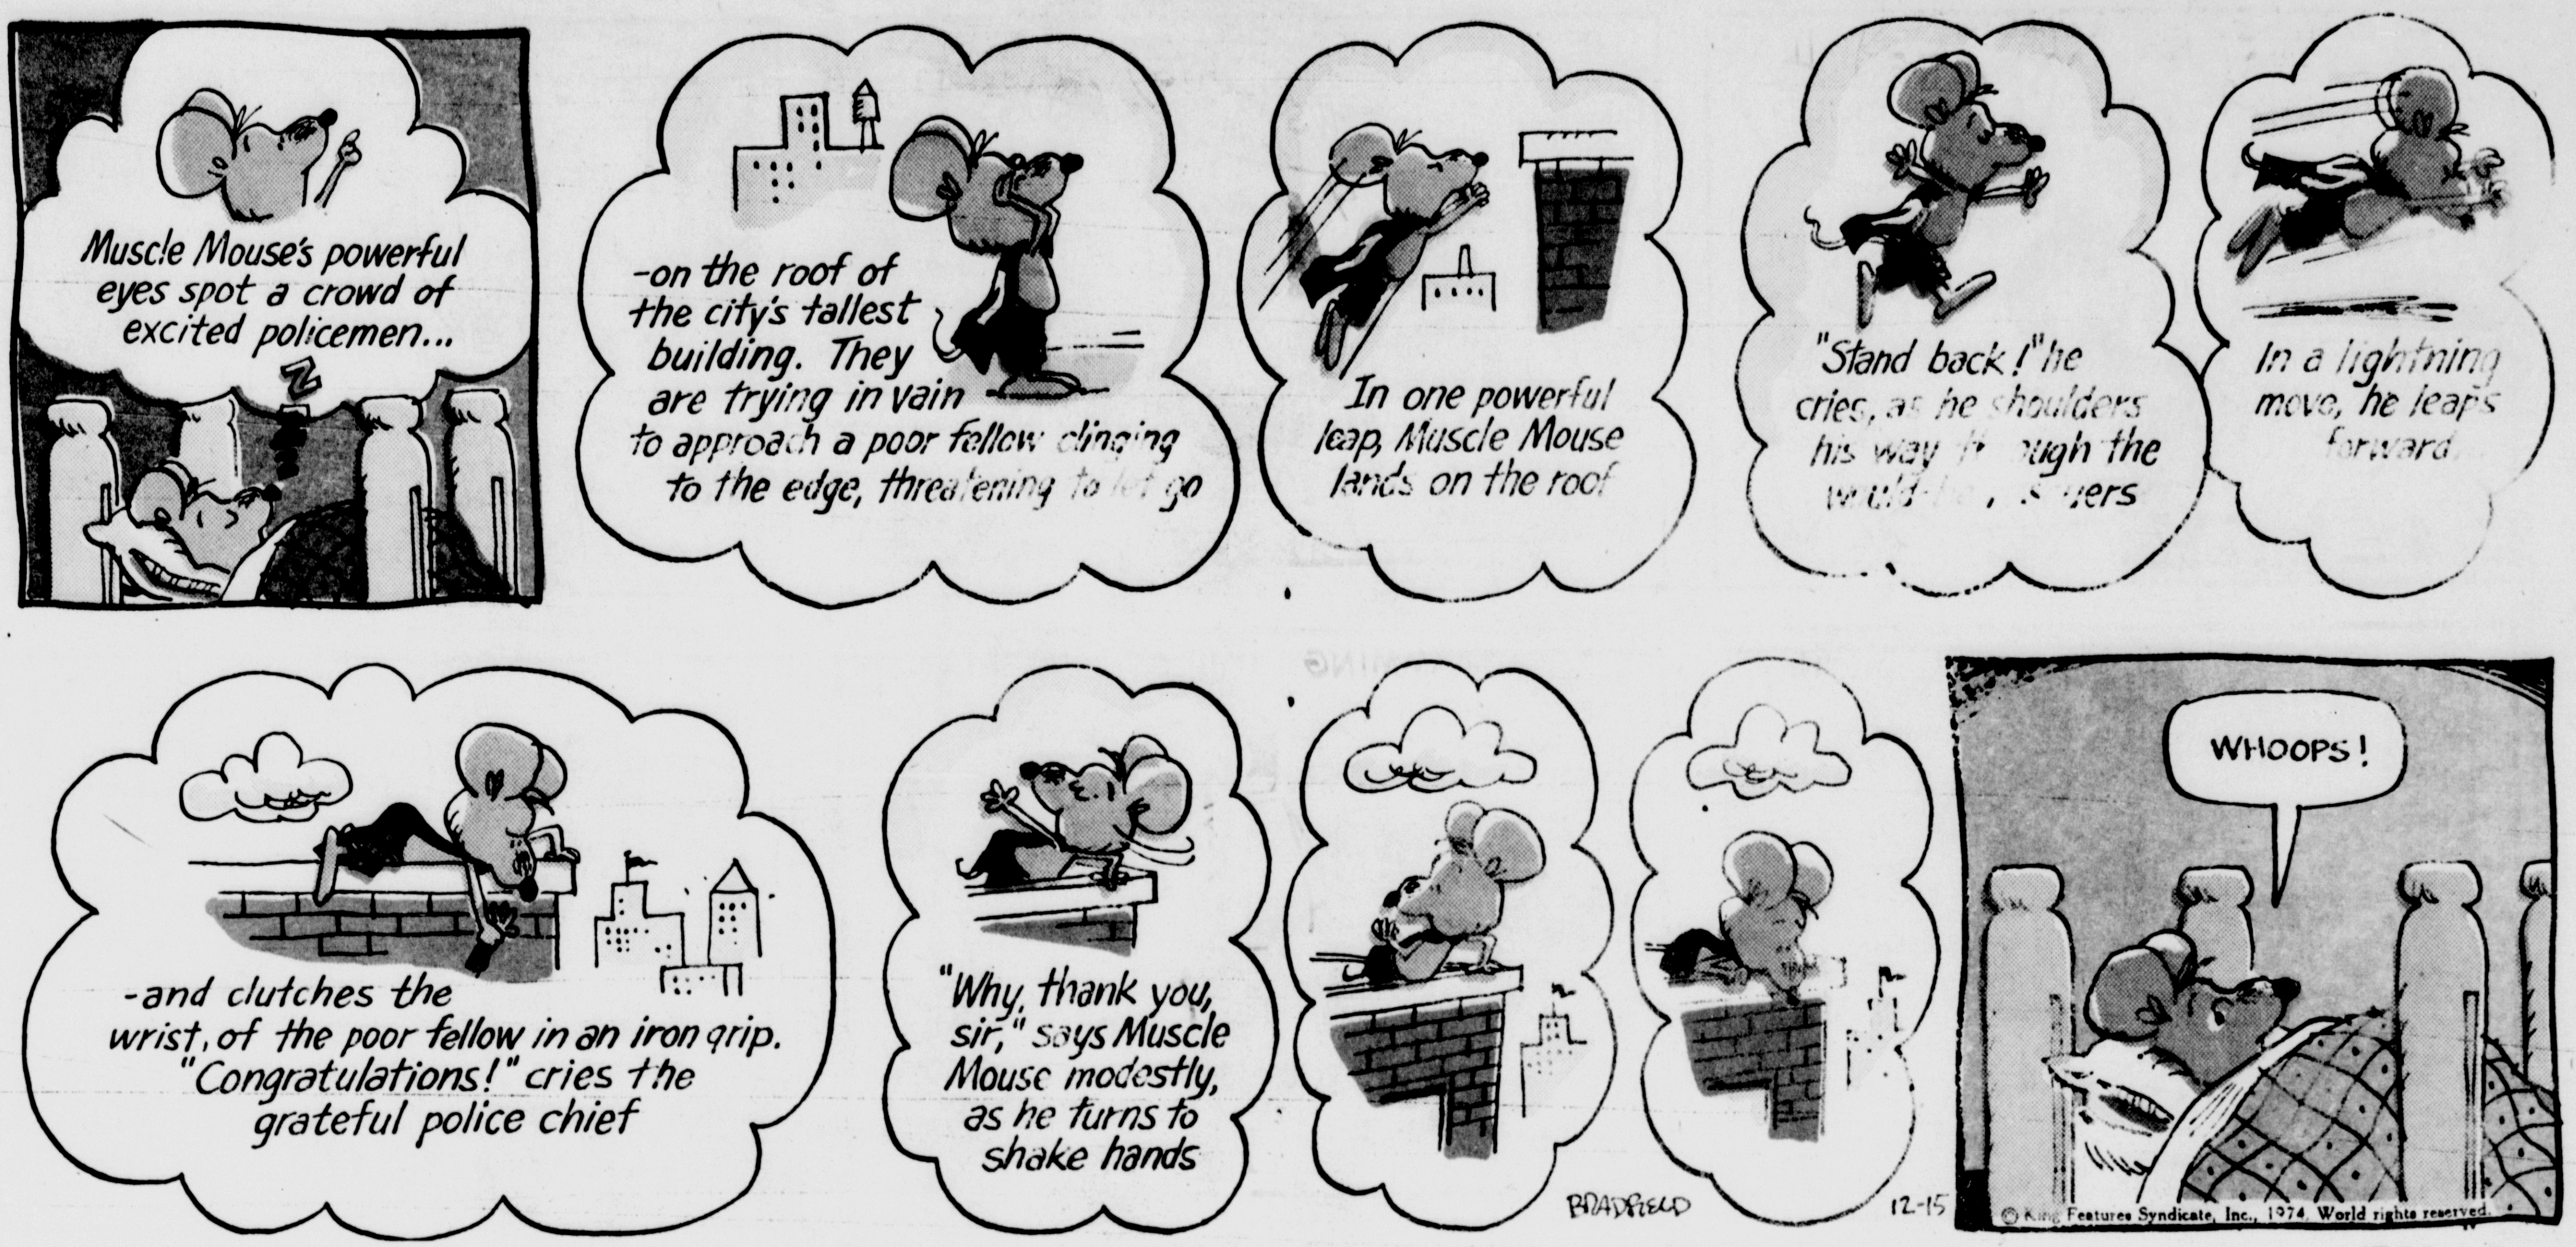
DOOLEYS WORLD

BY R. BRADFIELD



Muscle Mouse's powerful eyes spot a crowd of excited policemen...
-on the roof of the city's tallest building. They are trying in vain to approach a poor fellow clinging to the edge, threatening to let go
In one powerful leap, Muscle Mouse lands on the roof
"Stand back!" he cries, as he shoulders his way through the would-be rescuers
In a lightning move, he leaps forward
-and clutches the wrist, of the poor fellow in an iron grip. "Congratulations!" cries the grateful police chief
"Why, thank you, sir," says Muscle Mouse modestly, as he turns to shake hands

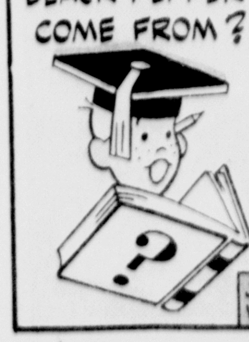
THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

KATHY THOMPSON OF PROVO, UT ASKS:

"WHERE DOES BLACK PEPPER COME FROM?"



BLACK PEPPER IS A SPICE THAT COMES FROM THE CRUSHED, DRIED BERRIES OF THE PEPPER BUSH THAT GROWS IN SUCH FARAWAY PLACES AS INDONESIA AND OTHER HOT COUNTRIES. TO MAKE BLACK PEPPER THE PEPPER BERRIES ARE PICKED WHILE THEY ARE STILL UNRIPE. THIS IS THE TIME THEY HAVE THE MOST PEPPERY FLAVOR. THE BERRIES ARE THEN SPREAD IN THE SUN TO DRY. AS THEY DRY THE BERRIES SHRIVEL AND HARDEN INTO BLACK PEPPERCORNS. THEN IT IS A SIMPLE MATTER OF GRINDING THEM TO MAKE THE ORDINARY BLACK PEPPER THAT YOU SPRINKLE ONTO YOUR FOOD. © 1974 by NEA, Inc., 12/15

‘BRINK OF WAR’

The story of the Cuban missile crisis airs as an ABC Theatre presentation, "The Missiles of October," Wednesday from 8 to 11PM on ABC. The drama details the thirteen days in October, 1962, when the world stood on the brink of war over the placement of Soviet missile bases in Cuba. With the threat of nuclear devastation growing greater by the minute, the global crisis became the personal crises of President John F. Kennedy and Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev. William Devane stars as John F. Kennedy, Howard Da Silva portrays Khrushchev, Ralph Bellamy is seen as Adlai Stevenson, Nehemiah Persoff is Andrei Gromyko, Martin Sheen is Robert F. Kennedy and James Olson is seen as McGeorge Bundy.

‘CONWAY CLOWNS’

Comedian Tim Conway stars in the title role of "Roll, Freddy, Roll," the ABC Tuesday Movie of the Week at 8:30PM. In the comedy written and produced by Sam Denoff and Bill Persky, Conway plays a mild-mannered computer expert who—in order to impress his son—sets out to get into the Guinness Book of World Records for staying on roller skates. As Chester Anderson, a one-time circus performer, he's hired as a clown by Big Sid (Jan Murray) to help sell used cars. Co-stars are Ruta Lee, Barra Grant, Robert Hogan, Moosie Drier and Henry Jones.

'COMO CHRISTMAS'

The Christmas tree ornament shimmers with reflected light, and sparks a happy memory of Christmases past. A phrase of "Silent Night" heard on the radio recalls carolling round the neighborhood when children did those things. The tickly scent of spicey cookies baking in the oven banishes all thoughts of diet—for the nonce. These are the traditions which we hold dear—which make Christmas one of the most sentimental and nostalgic holidays of all. Television adds a lot as we see favorite stars return annually to do what has become traditional for them.

Perry Como celebrates the holiday season with Yuletide songs and sketches.

The Perry Como Christmas Show, airing Tuesday night at 8:30PM on CBS, becomes a silver tradition this year. It's the 25th anniversary of Perry's helping to make the holiday cheerier for everyone. It will also mark the first time in ten years that he recreates the nativity on the program, an annual tradition until 1964.

Sharing the hour with Perry will be the Carpenters, Rich Little and Peggy Fleming.

Rich Little, the man of a thousand voices, will become the man of almost-a-thousand faces on this show, since he will do special makeup to match the voices of the famous stars he is impersonating.

'FATHER AND SON PLAY ONE'

Lloyd and Beau Bridges had to go back some 200 years in history to spend their working days together. The father-son acting team both play the role of Benjamin Franklin—at different ages—in "The Whirlwind," second drama of a four-part mini-series under the general title The Life of Benjamin Franklin, airing Tuesday at 9:30PM on CBS.

Lloyd Bridges plays Franklin from his thirties to his fifties (plus scenes in which he portrays the 71-year-old Franklin), and son Beau is the teen-age-to-thirties Franklin. Father and son have appeared together before—but never as the same character.

"We saw more of each other during this production than we have for years," said Bridges pere. "And we watched each other as actors more than ever before," added Bridges fils.

It is evident that they both liked what they saw. During taping sessions father and son watched the backstage monitors to evaluate their performances—and to coordinate their interpretations of the towering hero of the piece.

"We are father and son, but we are also two very individual actors," says Lloyd, "with different approaches and personal ideas about the character we are portraying. We had the advantage of being related—so we could argue a lot (sometimes loudly) about those differences." Lloyd and Beau worked closely together beyond the prescribed rehearsals to perfect the mannerisms—the gestures, the walk, the voice patterns—that would make them convincing as the same person at different ages.

"We had to learn to know the real man we were portraying in a much more initimate way than an actor does in interpreting a fictional hero," says Beau. "Since obviously there is no one alive today who ever actually saw the man, we had only to rely on a combination of research and personal interpretation."

"We learned a great deal about Benjamin Franklin," adds Lloyd, "and in the process we learned things about each other as professional performers that we might never have learned in any other way."

'COMING UP ROSES'

For many Americans, New Year's Day means watching the Rose Parade and the Rose Bowl. As a prelude to this year's events, KHJ-TV presents "The Subject is Roses—1975" Friday at 6PM. David Hartman is host-narrator for the documentary special which traces the color history of the world-famous Tournament of Roses.

Hartman highlights the festivities that have taken place in Pasadena on New Year's Day over the years, beginning with the first Rose Parade in 1890, and the first Rose Bowl in 1902. Never-before-seen footage of the 1898 Rose Parade (recently discovered in the archives of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences), and vintage shots of early Rose Bowl Games are shown.

Baseball's Henry "Hank" Aaron, 1975 Tournament of Roses Grand Marshal, is interviewed by Hartman on the show, which also previews some of the floats to be seen this New Year's Day. Aaron talks about his phenomenal baseball career, and what it's like to reign over a pageant that is televised all over the world.

Other portions of the special take viewers behind the scenes to watch construction of the floats that have made the Rose Parade famous, and salute Pasadena's "Men in White," members of the Tournament of Roses Association who stage the Parade and Game. A special retrospective focuses on the reminisces of four of the association's oldest members who represent a total of 150 years with the Tournament.

For the sports fans, a featurette highlights the football records set in the Rose Bowl over the years including number of passes, yardage run, most touchdowns in a game, and longest pass, plus coverage of the 1974 game between the Ohio State Buckeyes and USC Trojans, who meet this New Year's Day for the third consecutive year.

Queens and Grand Marshals who have reigned over the festivities round out the show, which will be repeated Christmas Day at 5PM.

'A SPECIAL DREAM'

"A Dream For Christmas," starring an all black cast headed by Hari Rhodes, Beah Richards and Lynn Hamilton, is a tender, moving story of faith, written by Emmy Award-winner John McGreevey ("The Waltons") with Max Hodge, which airs Saturday (Dec. 21) at 8PM on ABC.

Lynn Hamilton, Beah Richards (seated) and Hari Rhodes.

The Rev. Will Douglas, (Rhodes) pastor of a Baptist Church in Sweet Clover, Arkansas, is offered a new post in Los Angeles when a state highway sounds a death knell for the tiny town. He, his wife and mother and four children make the long trek across country in his vintage automobile which finally succumbs as they park in front of his new church.

It appears that the Elders tried to get in touch by mail to tell Rev. Douglas the church was to be torn down in a few weeks to make way for a new shopping center. He has five weeks in which to preach the gospel and, adding to his problems, most of the once flourishing congregation has moved on to newer and finer churches. Undaunted, the Douglas clan pitch in to make their dream of a full church and a joyous Christmas, shared by an overflow congregation, a reality.

COVER CLOSE-UP

'MAC IS BACK'

Mac Davis, who successfully headlined his own NBC show this past summer, returns to TV as star of NBC's The Mac Davis Show, beginning Thursday at 8PM. He will be joined weekly by different guest stars, including Paul Williams, Connie Stevens, Paul Lynde, Olivia Newton-John, John Davidson, Madeline Kahn, McLean Stevenson, Charlie Rich, Gladys Knight and the Pips, Ray Charles, Cloris Leachman, Jimmie Walker, Marvin Hamlisch, Tim Conway, Florence Henderson, Paul Anka, Smokey Robinson, Roy Clark and Joan Rivers. A regular on the series will be comedian Bo Kaprall, formerly from the comedy group Kentucky Fried Chicken.

On the production end, The Mac Davis Show is produced by Arnie Rosen and Bob Ellison, with Sandy Gallin the executive producer. Writers are Stan Burns, Don Kinkley, Arthur Julian and Mike Marmer, with special material by Earl Brown and Billy Barnes. Tim Kiley is the director. The associate producer is Jerry Madden, Mike Post is the music director, Romain Johnston the art director, Bill Belew the costume designer and the talent coordinator is Sali Bartfield.

Davis currently is one of the top attractions in the areas of concert, fairs, personal appearances and recordings. For Columbia Records, he has recorded five albums (one of them gold) and 13 singles ("Baby Don't Get Hooked On Me" is gold).

Born in Lubbock, Texas, Mac grew up in Atlanta and his songs, both as a composer and performer, reflect his origins. He worked for the Georgia State Board of Probation and studied at night. After touring the south with a band, Mac went to work as the regional manager for Vee-Jay records, later moving over to Liberty Records.

In 1968, Mac gained recognition as a song writer after Lou Rawls recorded "You're Good for Me," and Glen Campbell cut "Within My Memory." His career received a bigger boost after he wrote original material for Elvis Presley's first TV special as well as for two of his films. Davis has appeared on the top television shows and his personal appearances run from the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas to college concerts. Others who have recorded his songs include Kenny Rogers and the First Edition, Andy Williams, Sammy Davis, Jr., O.C. Smith and Bobby Goldsboro. More than 50 artists have recorded his song, "I Believe In Music."

Mac, in the midst of rehearsals for his first show at NBC's Burbank, Calif., studios, reflects on his fabulous career: "I'd like to be the kind of guy who grows in the business, not one-a-them aging hippies. I want to stick around till I'm an old man, retiring every six months and then getting coaxed back onto a stage somewhere. "You know, I'm always being asked, 'Do you write both the words and the lyrics?' and I'm obliged to correct 'em. 'No,' I say, 'I write the music and the melody . . . then I write the words and the lyrics.' "

Some of Mac's most popular songs—ones he composed—include "I Believe In Music," "Baby Don't Get Hooked On Me," "Watching Scotty Grow," "In the Ghetto," "Something's Burning," to name a few. Glen Campbell perhaps said it best. "Mac doesn't write songs, he PAINTS 'EM."

One of the high spots in Mac's career came recently at an appearance with Nancy Sinatra in Las Vegas. "That was quite a night," Mac recalls. "It was my first professional appearance, really, since those early beer-bust and jaw-bust days, and the whole place was wall-to-wall suntans and white teeth, about 2,500 full-blown celebrities. "Backstage, afterwards, Mr. Sinatra, himself, even before he goes to Nancy, he heads for me. I figure, oh, oh, I'm in trouble. He grabs me by the cheeks, says, 'You killed me country boy.' "

Mac's personal appearances continue to gain him new fans. Recently, Mac drew the largest crowd of the past 16 years at the Nebraska State Fair in Lincoln. At the Oakdale Musical Theater, Wallingford, Conn., Davis was SRO for two shows. The second show was added after the first one sold out. He drew the largest crowd in the history of the Ohio State Fair, Columbus, this year when more than 50,000 turned out. Prior to that he also registered the largest crowd in the history of the Minnesota State Fair, more than 22,000 persons. At the Ozark Mountain Fair, Springfield, Mo., Mac again set attendance records.

An Old-Fashioned Currier-and-Ives Christmas Cookbook

By Bruce Catton: Man's Death Sentence For His Own Kind

"I've Always Been a Food Hound!" Says Valerie Harper of "Rhoda"

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR O. J. SIMPSON

As a fan I'm disturbed by your talk of quitting football in two or three years. I always thought Jimmy Brown quit too soon. Are you going to follow his lead?—William Rooney, Utica, N.Y.

● I've always admired Jim Brown for his decision to quit while he was on top. I think that's why he can play all those parts as the Super Cat, breaking up the Mafia and stuff like that and have people believe it—because they still remember him as a super player. Some superstars who stayed on too long are now remembered more for their fading years than their great years. When you leave sports you're afraid, because you've never really done anything else. I know I won't be as good in something else as I am in football, but I'm trying to prepare for a career in television.

FOR ALICE FAYE, star of Broadway's "Good News"

Why did you resume your career after being away from it for so long?—H. L., Vancouver, Wash.

● I got tired of sitting home waiting for Phil [her husband, Phil Harris] to call and tell me how much fun he was having fishing with Bing! Seriously, though, I got bored. A lot has happened since I walked out of movies in 1947: My two girls are married; I've got four grandchildren. When Phil's not fishing, he's away working. This isn't a comeback for me—it's "doing something" after being idle for so long.

FOR HANK AARON

Do you believe that Frank Robinson's color will give him trouble as a big-league manager?—T. A., St. Bonaventure, N.Y.

● Not with the players. His problems will probably come from the press, who will be watching his every move, putting him under a microscope. A lot of people will be expecting him to walk on water, and that's going to be unfair. But I think Frank Robinson is going to do all right.

FOR JULIA CHILD

Why is it supposedly wrong to cut green beans with a knife when you're preparing them for a salad?—Mildred Hanrahan, Escondido, Calif.

● I've always heard that too—and I have no idea. Perhaps that was in the days before stainless steel knives. I do either one—cut or tear—whatever suits my mood and my greenery, and I can't see that it makes any difference at all.

FOR JOSE FELICIANO

Can you tell me something about your childhood?—A. R., Rapid City, S.D.

● I was born in Larez, Puerto Rico, the second of 12 children, three of whom died before we moved to a three-room Spanish-Harlem apartment (too hot in the summer, too cold in the winter). Since I was blind, I couldn't play outside. So at nine, I got a secondhand accordion, and learned tunes from scratchy records. Then a friend bought me a $10 guitar.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

What started the feud between Frank Sinatra and Rona Barrett?—B. G., Ogden, Utah

● Rona Barrett says it began when Sinatra objected to her reporting that he was divorcing his second wife. Fuel was heaped on the fire when he bowed out of Cher's TV show. He rehearsed in the afternoon, then sent word he was ill and couldn't return. Cher's representative explained his throat was bleeding and he was spitting blood. Miss Barrett's interpretation was that Sinatra was hemorrhaging. Sinatra demanded an apology, saying he only had a sore throat. Rona thought she was right, and didn't retract. Time hasn't healed the feud. At his recent Madison Square Garden concert, Sinatra said of Rona, off camera: "What an ugly broad. When she was born, the doctor slapped her in the face."

FOR SHIRLEY COTHRAN, Miss America

You're a guidance counselor. What's the No. 1 problem young people have today? — Elizabeth Lindsey, Jacksonville, Ala.

● Loss of contact with their parents. It's all because many of these parents—in their early thirties—are still struggling to make a place for themselves in their business and social lives, and that keeps them busy. Many young children respond to a friendly ear. But it's not the same as pouring out your problems to Mom and Dad.

FOR GOV. GEORGE C. WALLACE

Is Jeane Dixon right in predicting you'll leave politics for the pulpit?—Joyce Rost, Waterford, N.Y.

● All of us should respond to whatever God has called us to do. But I have not been "called" to the ministry and therefore have not considered such a move.

FOR ROGER MOORE

What's the most surprising thing that happened to you while making a film?—M. P., Boise, Idaho

● After we finished location shooting for my new James Bond movie, we had a poolside party at our hotel in Bangkok. My costars, Britt Ekland and Maud Adams, came up behind me, pushed me into the pool and poured a bottle of my favorite Dom Perignon champagne over my head. As I flapped around in the water, they made the dreadful pun: "You're now bottled in Bond."

FOR MONTY HALL, host of "Let's Make a Deal"

Why don't women moderate game shows?—Arnold Cheskin, Morristown, N.J.

● We in the game-show business have tried for years to have women included. So far, the networks haven't looked kindly on the idea—without offering any concrete reason. (Twenty years ago Arlene Francis did moderate a game show.) But there's no doubt in my mind that we will have a woman game-show emcee in the next two or three years.

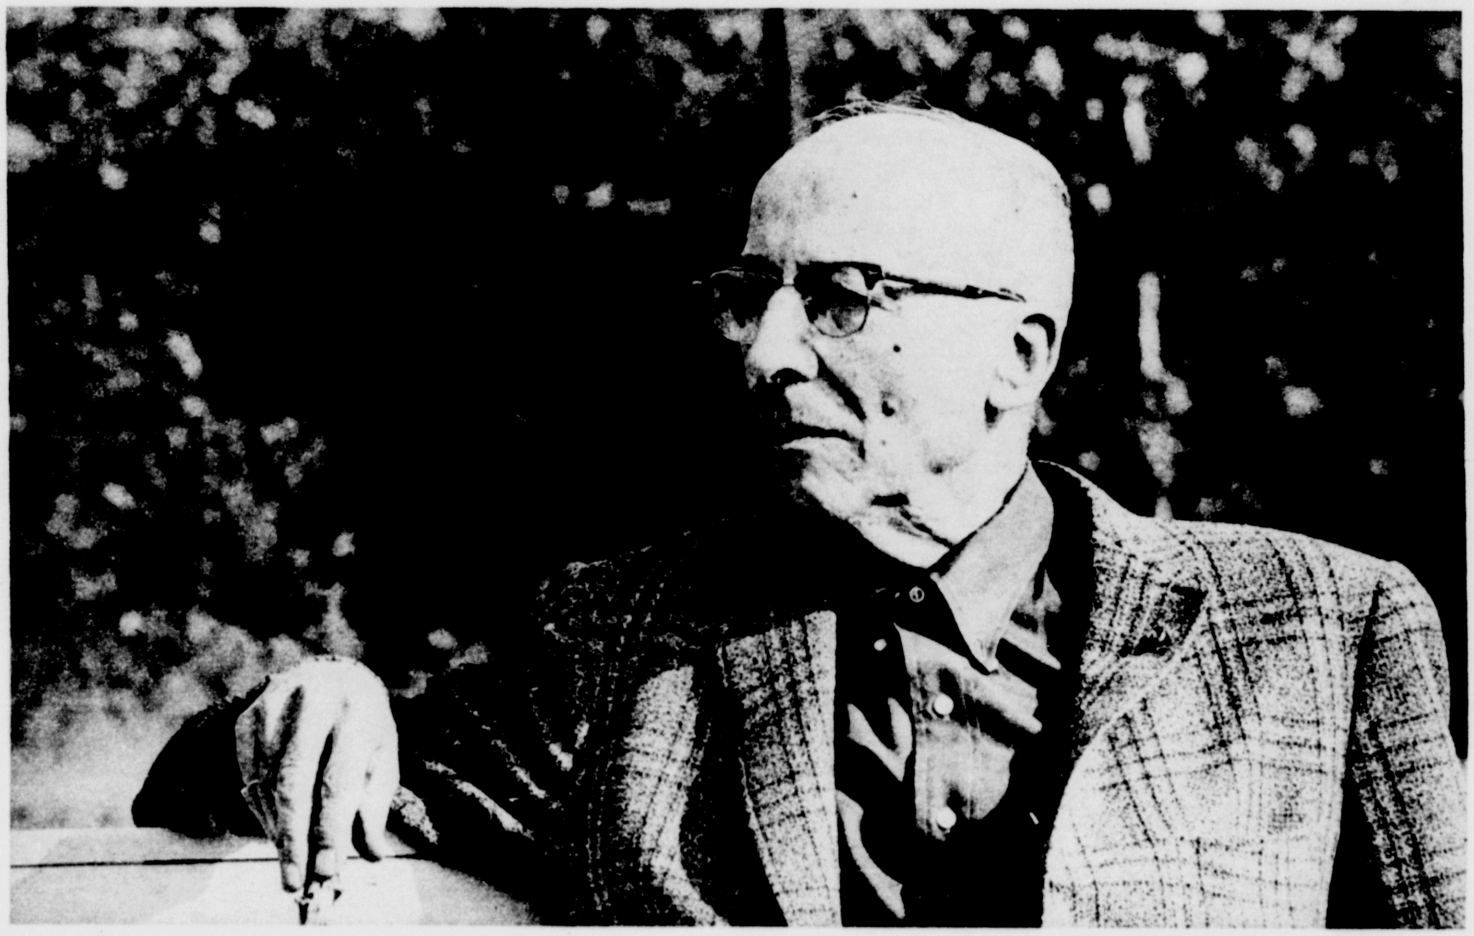
author of "A Stillness at Appomattox"

Man's Death Sentence for Man: Our Belief in Our Own Creations

"What protected man in the old days was his awareness that there were things he just could not do. That awareness is gone. . . ."



Daniel Kramer

Bruce Catton: "The one impossibility now is to turn back."

War does one thing pitilessly: It holds up, before the eyes of the society that is waging it, the essential reality on which that society is based. It is a cruel mirror, apparently as distorted as the mirrors in an amusement park, actually (on the long, cold glance) not distorted at all. I speak to you now from the world of my youth, at the time of the First World War. And what war showed us in 1916, for that and subsequent generations, was that the race had entrusted itself to a new belief. Its highest faith now was in the machine rather than in the spirit; in the mechanical devices man's brain could invent rather than in the illimitable miracle that originally set that brain free to speculate, to plan, to dream and to hope. The only reality worth mentioning is the one that can be seen, touched, tinkered with, improved —or, at times, exploded. Get into the machine you have made and ride wherever it takes you. There is no other road to salvation; or to damnation either, if that makes any difference.

In that year, 1916, I was a young prep-school senior in Benzonia, Mich. A prep-school senior is not well equipped to follow such a line of thought to its proper conclusion, and anyway things are clearer now than they were then. About all I got out of it at the time was a general feeling that something was wrong somewhere, as if the rules of the game had been changed without due notice.

Dimly taking grotesque shape somewhere in the background, not yet really recognizable, was the one dismaying fact that governs our progress across the Sinai Desert of the modern world: We have set all our other qualities aside and have entrusted ourselves entirely to our mechanical ingenuity. Proud that we have escaped from age-old superstition, we have condemned ourselves to live in a world of our own creation, a world that we fondly believe has no mysteries. We are made helpless by our own omnipotence.

The richest fruits of this began to be visible in the First World War, which shows perfectly what happens in a technician's world. Obviously, if your enemy stands in your path (as in wartime he does) you want to destroy him, and if you are going to do that it is well to be thorough and businesslike, not to say scientific, about it. Instead of going at him with bare hands, clubs and stone knives you bring up the most ingenious and intricate destructive instruments your scientists and inventors can provide, and the only guideline to follow here is the idea that if you can just bring to bear on your enemy more of these things than he can bring to bear on you, you are going to win. All of this, of course, has to be done without restraint; if it is good to drop a ton of high explosive on your enemy, it is ever so much better to drop a thousand tons on him, and better still to multiply that by a factor of at least one hundred. In the end, if all goes well, you obliterate your opponents and all that remains is to go in and pick up the pieces. You are absolutely certain to win provided you just wheel up enough machinery.

The first trouble with this is that your enemy is wheeling up machinery as fast as you are; and the second trouble, which is much graver, is that this adds up to making war without doing any thinking about it—a sure road to disaster. The one thing that is clear now about the 1914 war is that mankind's intelligence was in a coma. The brains that devised, ordered and persisted in

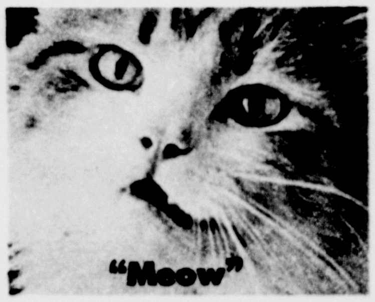
INTRODUCING MEOW MIX.

The cat food cats ask for by name.



While man may love his cat, man and cat do not speak the same language. The same can be said for woman and cat.

A situation which has given rise to all sorts of communications problems.

For example, over the years cats have been accused of being finicky eaters.

Well, maybe we've never really understood what they've been asking for. (After all, you'd be finicky too, if you had to put up with just one taste at every meal.)

So we at Purina have come out with a whole new way to feed your cat. Not just a new variety of cat food, but a cat food with real variety in it.

We call it Meow Mix.™

For the first time, a cat can get his three favorite flavors, tuna, liver, and chicken, in one package. They're in separate bite-size morsels.

The tuna is red the liver is brown and the chicken is yellow So they look as different as they taste.

Now, your cat doesn't have to wait till his next meal for a change of taste, he can get it in the next bite. Which should keep him biting. All day long.

It should also help keep him healthy. Because Meow Mix contains all the proteins, vitamins and minerals cats are known to need.

And Meow Mix even has something for you, convenience. There's nothing to mix. Just pour some Meow Mix into a bowl and the fresh, tasty morsels will stay fresh and tasty all day long.

From now on, when your cat meows, you'll know what he's asking for.

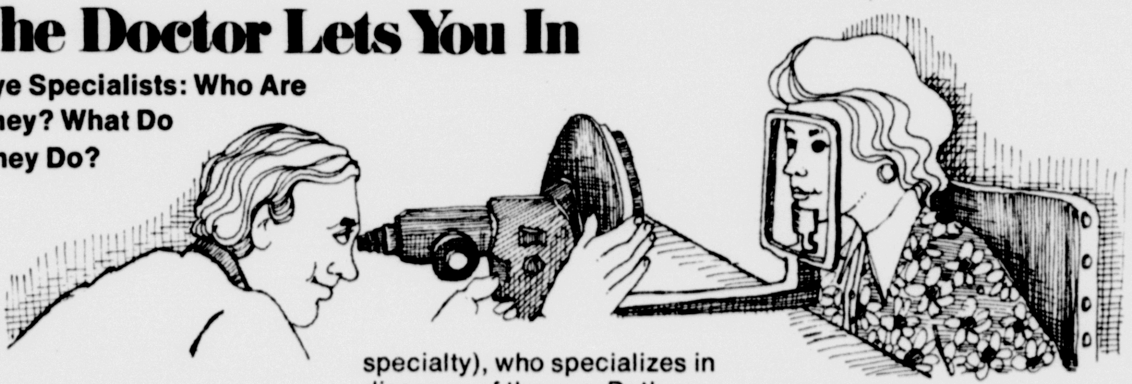
such offensives as those at Verdun, on the Somme, along the Chemin des Dames and in front of Passchendaele were not, properly speaking, brains at all. There was a certain amount of activity by the central nervous system, of course, and the purely mechanical problems involved in getting men and machines up to the point of action and removing the debris afterward—such debris as could be identified and picked up for salvage, that is—were handled quite smoothly, in the main. But to say that human intelligence was actively involved in these matters is to talk obvious nonsense. The men who directed that war succeeded only in turning it into something nobody could win. They wrecked their own countries, made Europe practically uninhabitable for decades, and left the world doomed to fight another disastrous war simply to get out from under the wreckage left by the first one. Human stupidity has had no greater triumph.

The full extent of this colossal mismanagement was not, of course, visible at the time. It was years before people would see what an incredible mess had been made of things. At the time we could only confess that what was going on resembled nothing that had ever happened before; we comforted ourselves with the faith that something good would somehow come out of it all and that somebody somewhere must know what ought to be done. (That sentence contains four of those miserable uncertainty-words – something, somehow, somebody and somewhere—and on due reflection I think I will leave them there. We were uncertain, and the uncertainty was not confined to a preparatory-school campus in northern Michigan, either.)

What was really bothering us was a point that might have been clear enough if we had known how to identify it. The world had simply gone awhoring after false gods. Having committed itself to them it had to go where they took it, and this was bound to lead to confusion, because of all the gods man has ever worshiped, the most completely inscrutable are the ones that stand behind the altars in the age of applied technologies. They give man the illusion that he at last controls his own destiny; he becomes able to reshape his physical surroundings as he sees fit; he discovers that at last he can produce more than enough of everything to go around, and unhappily he fails to see that among the things of which he can produce a blessed abundance are intolerable woes. What protected man in the old days was his awareness that there were things he just could not do. That awareness is gone, and if in its departure it took with it the last barrier on the road to the bottomless pit, we shall probably find out about that in due time. Man knows now that if he tries hard enough he can do anything he wants to do—fly through the air, leave the planet altogether, create life out of sea foam and sand (well, those aren't exactly the ingredients, but they are near enough) and unlock the power that holds the eternal mountains above the plain. By the unformulated tenets of his new religion, what he can do he must do. The one impossibility now is to turn back, or to go at half speed. This machine (to repeat) operates only at full speed. Unfortunately, it cannot be steered.

The Doctor Lets You In

Eye Specialists: Who Are They? What Do They Do?



You need to see an eye doctor. To whom do you go? Ophthalmologist, oculist, optometrist, optician? Who's who? What's what? There is a difference. First, there is the ophthalmologist or oculist (both words refer to the same specialty), who specializes in diseases of the eye. Both these men are MD's. In addition, they examine a person's eyes to determine if he needs glasses. This exam is called refraction. Also, while examining for glasses, the conscientious ophthalmologist will test for glaucoma. It is a simple, painless and important test that only takes minutes. These eye doctors give you a prescription for eyeglasses that the optometrist or optician can fill. This brings us to the next O—the optometrist. He is also trained to do refraction. If the optometrist notices conditions in the eyes that need treatment, he refers the patient to the ophthalmologist. The optometrist determines what glasses are necessary, makes them and fits them. (Note: Frames should also be properly fitted, so that the pupils are looking through the proper portion of the lenses.) The final O is the optician. An optician does not examine the eyes at all. He only grinds and fits eyeglasses according to the prescriptions that are given to him. But he is just as qualified as the optometrist to fit eyeglasses.

Jobmanship

When to "Stick to Your Guns"—And When Not To

Many a boss says, "I don't want people 'yessing' me all day. I want the truth." But does he? If you as an employee learn to be careful how and when you say "no," you may be able to block decisions that seem wrong to you, and also further some of your own projects. The last thing you want to have is a reputation as a crank and an obstructionist. So: 1) Study your boss and learn the difference between a real request for your opinion and meaningless talk. Many bosses will say, "What do you think of . . . ?" When they've really made up their minds. Don't waste a "no" here. 2) Learn when your boss is using you as a passive wall to bounce ideas off. At those times, the boss himself doesn't clearly know what he wants or what the problem is. 3) Realize that bosses are people, and when the time arrives for a genuine discussion, avoid making counterproposals in front of others. Don't put your boss in a position where he may have to ignore you in order to maintain his own standing. 4) When you do disagree, use all the tact you can. Telling the boss, "You've overlooked this . . ." or "I guess you've never heard of . . ." is sure to get his back up. Phrases like, "Might it be useful to find out . . ." or "You're right. Should we also consider . . ." are much more practical ways to tell the boss the truth.

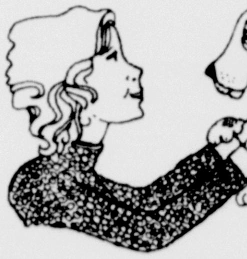
Pet Corner

Think Hard Before Buying That Christmas Pet



Pet stores do their liveliest business before the holidays. If you are thinking of giving a pet to your child, think hard. Don't buy on impulse. Analyze your family's needs, the ages of your children, the size of your house and yard or of your apartment. Who will take care of the pet? Is anyone allergic to dog or cat dander? What can you afford? Dogs and cats are the most popular gift items in the pet world, but you should give a lot of care to their selection. Purebreds cost from $25 to $200. Mixed breeds can be obtained for a nominal sum from the SPCA or animal shelter. But both require inoculations, and all dogs need training. A dog or cat will be a member of the family for many years. Be sure you choose one that will fit into your life without becoming a nuisance.—By Jean Burden

A Celebrity Cooks

Valerie Harper: "I've Always Been a Food Hound!"

Valerie Harper stars in her new series, "Rhoda," on CBS-TV.

> "I'm much more aware of what goes into food. I've started reading labels."

By Valerie Harper
In conversation with Helen Dorsey

I've always been a food hound! Losing weight has never been easy for me. I've probably tried every diet known to man. Invariably in the past, when I set myself up by making sweeping pronouncements about how much weight I was going to lose, it was always a failure.

Going to Weight Watchers was very helpful to me. But it was really becoming a semi-vegetarian that finally took off those last few pounds! I'd like to be thinner, but it's hard after years of carrying a certain amount of weight. Now I feel great.

Since my husband Dick grew up in the Midwest, he always had plenty of meat. All we've done is cut out all red meats: lamb, pork and beef. That means chicken livers, too. Now we eat plenty of chicken, fish, eggs and cheese.

I'm much more aware of what goes into food. I've started reading labels. We buy most of our vegetables at the health-food store. Cooking isn't all that difficult. We eat many, many salads—how I love them—baked or steamed vegetables and plenty of baked or broiled fish and poultry.

It's fun to entertain in our new house when and if we ever have the time! We do the buffet bit of setting up the table in our atrium, which is really a walled-in outdoor patio. We have a fabulous barbecue and refrigerator out there. It's very easy because all people have to do is help themselves.

Most of all, Dick and I love to get away from it all on our boat. I fix up little food-care packages for us. That's great relaxation. But the only trouble is, being outdoors only sharpens our appetites!

BARBECUED CHICKEN IN BARBECUE KETTLE

Heavy-duty aluminum foil
About 70 charcoal briquettes
Starter fluid
2 cleaned, whole, dressed chickens, about 2½ lbs. each
Corn oil
Freshly ground black pepper
Soy sauce
Paprika or cayenne

1. Prepare to roast chicken in covered barbecue kettle as follows: Tear off sheet of aluminum foil large enough to extend about 3 inches beyond chickens placed side by side. Fold over edge of foil, fitting corners to form drip pan.

2. Place foil drip pan in bottom of barbecue kettle; arrange about 25 briquettes on each side of it. Saturate briquettes with starter fluid. Ignite. Place grill in position. Allow 30 minutes for briquettes to be ready for roasting.

3. Tie wings and legs of chickens. Rub skins with oil. Season generously with pepper, soy sauce and paprika.

4. Place chickens on grill. Place lid on kettle; open all dampers in both lid and kettle.

5. Allow about 1½ hours to roast. Add a few briquettes to each side of drip pan after first hour. When through cooking, close all dampers and briquettes will burn out. Makes 6-8 servings

VAL'S SALAD

1 large head iceberg lettuce
1 bunch watercress
1 bunch romaine or Boston lettuce

1 pkg. (3 ozs.) Roquefort cheese, crumbled
2 medium avocados, peeled, pitted and diced
2 large ripe tomatoes, peeled and diced
2 cups cooked chicken or turkey cut in julienne strips
1 large cucumber, peeled, diced small
3 tablespoons green-olive slices
3 tablespoons radish slices
1 tablespoon chopped chives
⅔ cup diet salad dressing
Freshly ground black pepper
½ cup imitation bacon bits

1. Shred or chop lettuce; chop watercress and romaine. Combine with eggs, cheese, avocados, tomatoes, chicken, cucumber, olives, radishes and chives. Toss well with salad dressing.

2. Serve at once on large plates; garnish with black pepper and bacon bits. It's a terrific meal-in-one!

Now—for the first time—an international Jet-Setter reveals the "inside" story:

How The Beautiful People Get Rid Of Both Cellulite And Ordinary Fat—Without Dieting!

Yes, the Beautiful People cannot afford to be fat!

Those stunning, sleekly-slim couples who grace the pages of the fashion magazines and society columns...who spend each new Season in New York and Cannes and Saint Moritz and Saint Tropez...who live surrounded by a horde of admirers and photographers must remain youthful and slim right up to 50...60...70!

And yet they eat lavishly, feasting on exotic cuisines as they travel the globe, but always retaining their fantastic figures.

And, if you were to ask them what they do to maintain their Beautiful People Bodies, the answer would always be the same: "I don't do ANYTHING; I don't diet!"

The exquisite authoress: Luciana Avedon, the former Princess Pignatelli.

That's right! The Beautiful People Don't Diet! They enjoy the finest food in the world and yet the needle on the scale barely moves! How do they do it?

For the first time, Luciana Avedon (former Princess Pignatelli and now the wife of the European cosmetics executive, Burt S. Avedon) reveals the "BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE MIRACLE FORMULA" responsible for all those lusciously svelte figures on the society pages. How they NEVER go on fad diets, NEVER take dangerous amphetamines, diuretics or diet pills, and NEVER give up their favorite foods either! How they simply go right on eating the foods they like—but in a special way that keeps them always fashionably slim, without their having to jump on and off the diet merry-go-round.

To give just a few examples:

One California socialite says: "I always keep my weight fluctuation within two pounds. It's bad for the face when you go up and down."

Another stunning fashion leader says: "I weighed more at age 25 than I do now." (She's now 37!)

Another says: "Sitting down to nothing but clear soup or health food depresses me; it makes me feel like an invalid."

And another Italian Beauty confesses: "Take away pasta and I would die!"

But yet they know how to splurge like this without incurring disaster on the scales! They get their food kicks—constantly—but their figures never show it!

They eat the finest food in the world (even the delicacies and "tempters" you'd be horrified to touch), but they do it in a way that never lets them put on more weight than they can simply "peel off" in a few days any time they decide to!

(In fact, these Beautiful People secrets of delicious figure-maintenance are so powerful that, when one young, overweight model was introduced to just one of them, she lost 22 pounds in one month and stayed at that weight from then on! And another young girl, when shown how, lost 20 "impossible" pounds in two short months, even though not a single meal demanded special preparation!)

So, From Now On, Forget About Debilitating Diets! The Beautiful People Don't Use Them—Why Should You?

Once again, let us emphasize that the Beautiful People think dieting is a "bore." They eat well—very well—and they are not fat! They wouldn't think of doing without their favorite foods and the needle on the scale barely changes!

Why then shouldn't you follow their plan and lose weight—pounds and pounds and pounds of it! The process is the same, even if you start with a 50 pound handicap. And you do it all by yourself (without "fat" doctors, or the group therapy approach of diet clubs.) And, yet, (to repeat once again) you do not "sacrifice" the foods you love for a single minute!

Yes, you can still enjoy parties, restaurants, business lunches or dinners, and "super-relaxed" vacations. You can eat all the foods you usually do, and still find the pounds and inches gradually, but permanently, melting off!

Listen, As The Beautiful People Tell You How To:

Condition yourself by developing your own built-in "Fat Radar" so that the minute your weight starts to shoot up, you can shoot it down!

Take off fat while it's still "soft"...before the body has had a chance to make it part of the muscle structure. Before it marbelizes, as in a fat steak, and becomes even harder to lose!

Make the natural diuretic power of food even MORE effective, so that accumulated tissue water drains out of your body faster and you NEVER get that bloated look!

Lose tons of weight—all in the right places—and NEVER get "scrawny" looking in the face. Actually melt unwanted pounds right off your body, and still retain that "youthful" bloom in your face the Beautiful People way!

PLUS...

How to be thin as a model, and still have the energy and stamina of a truck driver!

The Beautiful People's special "Secret Elimination Diet" that disintoxicates your system...drains out internal poisons...at exactly the same time that you are painlessly losing weight!

The Beautiful People "Easy-Diet Plan", a permanent part of your life, so that you continue to lose weight for as long as you wish, and yet NEVER feel deprived!

How to prevent your body from automatically "adjusting" to your first massive weight loss, so that it actually prevents you from taking off even more pounds.

What to do if you are a "sandwich fiend" and don't want to cut them out of your diet.

Why the Beautiful People make sure that they never lose more than 18 pounds at a time.

How they painlessly "retrain their nervous system so that they don't go on eating binges during an "anxiety attack."

The most carefully guarded Beautiful People secret: how to lose weight super-fast, purify your body, and heighten your senses to a new state of awareness at exactly the same time!

How the Beautiful People lose weight while they are traveling.

How the Beautiful People keep their children from developing unhealthy and fattening eating habits.

What the European Beautiful People do at once when their skin looks bad, they have trouble sleeping, or they are just feeling dreadful.

Why the Beautiful People feel that American men are a "disaster...overweight, over-tobaccoed, over-alcoholed, and undersexed." And, what Beautiful People Males "over 30," do to retain their very special attractiveness.

The Beautiful People "cure" for sporadic over-indulgence. In other words, how to eat your cake, and have a knock-out figure too!

Yes, The Beautiful People Have Been Looking Fabulous For Years THIS Way. Now You'll Learn How, WITHOUT RISKING A PENNY!

You are just as capable of keeping younger, prettier, slimmer and more attractive as any of the Beautiful People you'll read about in this book. And once you know their "secrets", you'll be well on your way to joining the ranks of all the Beautiful People all over the world, who realize that being beautiful also means being slender

ABOUT THE AUTHORS:

Roman-born Luciana Avedon, the former Princess Pignatelli, was educated in Switzerland. Her husband, Burt S. Avedon, is Director of European operations for Eve of Roma, an internationally famous cosmetics firm. She has been a fashion designer and coordinator, and is currently a beauty consultant. Her first book, The Beautiful People's Beauty Book, was a best-selling title here and abroad.

Jeanne Molli was formerly on the staff of the New York Times, Ladies' Home Journal and Newsweek.

SPECIAL ADDED BONUS:

How The Beautiful People "Smooth Away" Ugly Cellulite, The EASY Way!

Yes, while these Beautiful People are incredibly slim and supple at all ages—actually glowing with good health—they have also learned how to FREE themselves of ugly and distorting CELLULITE! (Cellulite, as you may know, is "orange peel fat"—the hard lumps of hideous fat that stick to the back of the thighs, knees, arms, buttocks and back. The same ripply fat pockets that cause desperation and unhappiness in thousands of American women who cannot walk down a beach, or up to a husband or lover, without feeling unattractive or just plain ugly!)

This is not ordinary fat, by any means. And it can't be gotten rid of by ordinary means. Instead, it's bumpy, hard lumps of toxic material—really a gel-like substance—that become trapped in bubbly, immovable pockets just beneath the skin. It's found in pencil-slim models and housewives alike. In fact, it's reputed to disfigure almost 90% of the women in the world! But not the Beautiful People! Why?

BECAUSE OF THESE TWO SIMPLE "CELLULITE CHASERS" THAT YOU CAN USE YOURSELF RIGHT IN YOUR OWN HOME, STARTING IN JUST A FEW MINUTES A DAY!

No, you don't need fancy doctors, or expensive health spas to be able to bid farewell to these unsightly globules. You can achieve spectacular results simply by following these two simple steps beginning on Page 26:

First, attack the cellulite you're carrying around right now through this special self-massage treatment designed to break it up and quickly "wash" this figure-distorting mess right out of your body!

Second, follow the unique Anti-Cellulite-Food Program that will actually help your natural circulatory system to rid your body of annoying substances BEFORE they can build up and become IMMOVABLE CHUNKS OF FAT!

Both these Cellulite Fighters are yours, as just one section of this great Beautiful People Over-All Body Beauty Plan...yours to read from cover to cover, entirely at our risk!

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

A Look Behind All Those "Mother-in-Law" Jokes

True or False: Mothers-in-law cause more problems than fathers-in-law. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The time you are most likely to have in-law trouble is during the honeymoon stage of your marriage.

2. The seed of in-law troubles is often planted long before it flowers.

3. Mothers-in-law cause more problems than fathers-in-law.

4. One of the biggest problems for many people is what to call their mothers-in-law.

5. Mother-in-law jokes originated as the result of an age-old taboo.

6. In many cases in-laws aren't to blame for in-law trouble at all.

ANSWERS

1. True—as evidenced by University of Michigan studies which show that in-law problems occur chiefly at the beginning of a marriage, and that husband-and-wife disagreements over their respective in-laws "are commonest in the honeymoon stage, declining steadily thereafter."

2. True. Studies at Southern Illinois University have shown that when, because of an overprotective mother, an individual develops problems with his parents that are not resolved before his marriage, "he will carry these into his marriage; at this point they will involve both him and his wife and result in what we commonly identify as in-law problems. Where both husband and wife have unresolved parental problems, the situation may become extremely complicated and aggravated."

3. True. Although the mother-in-law is most frequently named by young married couples as being to blame for strained relationships, sisters-in-law ranked second. Fathers-in-law followed closely in third place. However, brothers-in-law, investigations show, tend to keep a hands-off policy and seldom receive blame for contributing to in-law hassles.

4. True. A University of Chicago study has explored this matter. The problem, it's pointed out, results from "the rather sudden meeting of two adults who have no experience of growing together and (often) no attraction for each other." In the study, about 50 percent of the subjects said they wound up calling their mother-in-law simply "Mother," or "Mother Smith" (or whatever). Other terms of address used less frequently: the given name (Mary, Alice); Mrs. S. or Mrs. Smith; pet names or personal nicknames. Others said they never had been able to resolve the problem of what to call their mothers-in-law—and often didn't call them anything!

5. True – according to the findings of studies delving into the background of this custom, which show that in earlier times a son-in-law was encouraged to tease and put down his mother-in-law with disparaging jokes, and thus reinforce the taboo against his finding her more attractive than his spouse and becoming romantically involved with her. And to further insure against this possibility, a son-in-law was also encouraged – and expected—to avoid his mother-in-law. It's pointed out in this connection that a mother-in-law may sometimes be a more attractive and interesting person than her daughter—and that some of the most fascinating women in the world are mothers-in-law. Even in present times, as one team of behavioral scientists has observed, "There are instances in which the young man who woos a girl meets her mother and marries her instead."

6. True. University of California sociologist Dr. Judson T. Landis sums up his findings in a definitive treatise on the subject: "Many of the comments of young people who complain that they have in-law trouble reveal that the trouble lies within the complaining individuals themselves. Such people would have 'in-law trouble' regardless of whom they had married or what kind of people the in-laws were."

You agree to buy just nine more selections (at regular Club prices) in the coming three years. That's right!—you'll have three full years in which to buy just nine selections ... so you are not obligated to buy a record or tape every month, or even every other month! And you may cancel your membership at any time after you've purchased your nine selections.

Your own charge account will be opened upon enrollment ... and the selections you order as a member will be mailed and billed at the regular Club prices: cartridges and cassettes, $6.98 or $7.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $5.98 or $6.98 ... plus processing and postage. (Multiple unit sets and double selections may be somewhat higher.)

You may accept or reject selections as follows: every four weeks (13 times a year) you will receive a new copy of the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest ... plus hundreds of alternate selections from every field of music. In addition, about six times a year we will offer some Special Selections (usually at a discount off regular Club prices). A response card will be enclosed with each magazine.

...If you do not want any selection offered mail the response card by the date specified

...If you want only the Selection of the Month or the Special Selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped to you automatically

...If you want any of the other selections offered just order them on the response card and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make a decision. If you ever receive a Selection without having had at least 10 days to decide, you may return it at our expense, for full credit.

You'll be eligible for the Club's bonus plan upon completing your enrollment agreement—a plan which enables you to save at least 33% on all your future purchases. Act now!

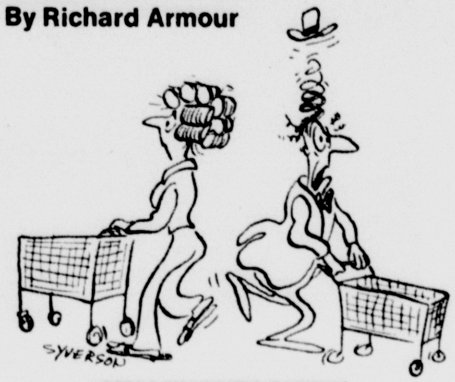
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



MY LIP CURLS TOO

My hair is straight except for when,
Perhaps like other squeamish men,
I see a sight I always dread:
Girls, hair in curlers on their head.
This makes my own hair curl, and quickly,
And I myself no doubt look sickly.

This happens most in supermarts,
Where they and I are wheeling carts.
It's not so bad, it's quite all right—
You see, I lose my appetite
And buy less food, in smaller size,
And save more cash than otherwise.

"What kind of a man is Jim? I don't believe I've ever met him." "Well, if you see two men off in a corner anywhere and one of them looks bored to death, the other one is Jim."
—Lucille S. Harper

I just read a book about burlesque; the jacket came off by itself.

A Navajo Indian decided to join the new, all-volunteer Army. During the examination, the recruiting officer asked, "Do you speak any foreign language?" "Yes, I do," the Navajo replied. "English." —Lane Olinghouse

Politics is becoming a rich man's game. In the future, Presidents won't be born in log cabins. Tax shelters, maybe. —Robert Orben

My granddaughter was often busy caring for her baby, so she taught her four-year-old daughter to answer the telephone politely. Once a man called and asked for her daddy. "He's gone to town," the little one replied. "When will he be back?" "In an hour." Then solicitously: "Would you care to wait?" —Mrs. F. M. Anderson

World's youngest licensed animal trainer

Carl Denver is the youngest licensed animal trainer registered with the Performing Animals Group of England. He learned his trade from his mother, Olga Denver, who trained the animals for the "Daktari" TV series and for Disney World in Florida. Capt. Carl Ralph Scott Denver (as the five-year-old is known professionally) started his career when his mother let him present a few animals before her audiences just for fun. One day, a government official questioned Mrs. Denver about her son's license. Soon after, he was given a stage name and a $7.50 license. Carl's specialty is training chihuahuas to push baby carriages and mice to walk tightropes. He is also training a young black bull for a bullfighting act. Olé!

QUOTE: During 1938, Hitler took his beloved Eva Braun to Italy, where she "did a lot of shopping. . . . She loved handbags, shoes and other articles made from alligator hide, and after one shopping spree in Rome she returned to her hotel looking as if she had been on a hunting trip to the Congo. . . . Between shopping trips she was squired around the city's night spots by various Italian officers, who were . . . unaware of her intimate association with Hitler but were delighted to spend the evenings with her. Eva loved to dance and on two occasions she returned to her hotel shortly before daybreak. When Hitler was told about this . . . he was angry and told Eva that he 'wanted her back at her hotel at a decent hour.' 'I will be back at a decent hour,' she told him, 'when you quit holding hands with the Italian madonnas at the Grand Hotel.'" From "Eva and Adolf," by Glenn Infield (Grosset & Dunlap, $10). UNQUOTE.

Who calls up for free sex counseling? Radio station WMCA in New York City offered such a service, and this is what they found out after a year on the air: Over 90 percent of the people had never spoken with anyone else about their problems or questions before; 75 percent of the callers were male; 60 percent were young (under 35); and almost every caller asked the plaintive question: "Am I normal?"
